DOOR OPEN IN ROSS

Chance For A Creek Alternate

By DAVID DIETZ

The unanimous decision, climaxing a four-hour public hearing that began June 24, appeared for the time being to heal the split caused among Ross citizens by the flood control controversy.

It meant that skeptics of alternate plans to a concrete channel were temporarily contented because the board's vote will keep the flood control project through the Ross Valley on schedule. It gave to opponents of the Army Corps of Engineers' plan for an open concrete ditch time to plan for an alternative north of the general vicinity of Lagunitas Bridge.

What happens in the next phase also could have a bearing on construction methods used for the rest of the flood control project tentatively proposed through San Anselmo and Fairfax.

About 200 persons appeared yesterday in the supervisors' chambers in hopes of a settlement of the divisive flood control issue. The hearing had been continued from June 24 because Supervisors Michael Wornum and William A. Gnoss were absent.

At issue were five different proposals to extend the flood control project from College Avenue in Kentfield — where construction is scheduled to halt in the fall because of winter rains — through Ross to the San Anselmo city line.

The least expensive, at $3.8 million, was the corps plan to build a 33-foot-wide concrete channel the full length of the Ross phase. Other possibilities raised by a citizens group, were to construct an underground creek diversion along Sylvan Lane from the Ross Creek confluence to College Avenue at an estimated cost of $5.75 million, leaving Corte Madera Creek in its natural state; to build a diversion that would end at the Ross-Kentfield line instead of College Avenue at an estimated cost of $5.19 million; to install the diversion upstream from the Lagunitas Bridge vicinity, with the remainder a concrete channel, estimated at $4.86 million, and to place an underground culvert beneath the Corte Made-

SAN RAFAEL MEN AMONG GI RETURNEES

Two San Rafael soldiers are among the first group of the 25,000 servicemen ordered home from Vietnam.

Sgt. Raymond F. Byrne and Sp/5 Edward H. Reuter arrived yesterday at McChord Air Force Base in Washington.

Byrne, 21, is expected home at midnight tomorrow—for his first visit in Marin, his mother, Mrs. Raymond F. Byrne reported.

She said the troop withdrawal made his homecoming only three weeks sooner than expected.

Mrs. Byrne said the family moved to 132 Knight Drive from New York last October and "he hasn't seen California yet."

Reuter's family could not be reached today. (See also story, page 2.)

Barb Linked To Berkeley Violence

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—Gov. Ronald Reagan was warned by his staff today another People's Park riot could flare at any time.

He was cautioned to take Berkeley revolutionaries seriously and reminded it was a little-noticed ranting in an underground newspaper that kindled the bloody violence.

"There are militants active within this state," he was told, "whose avowed aim is to destroy the institutions and the governmental structure of our society."

Although these statements officially were directed at Reagan, they also obviously were aimed at the eyes and ears of California citizens.

The governor's staff publicly released a 38-page report containing a blow-by-blow account of the melee that erupted when the University of California erected a cyclone fence around a vacant lot it owned.

"Street people," who had been occupying the land as a "park," reacted violently. Countless were injured and 768 arrested during the 10 days in May.

The report defended a campus tear gas spraying of hundreds by a National Guard helicopter.

It quoted the National Guard as saying the helicopter unloaded its tear gas into Sproul Plaza as "a group of 600-700 dissidents were closing on the troops and three chairs were thrown from an upper story."

The report offered no new information either on the shotgun killing of non-student James Rector of San Jose or alleged brutality of arrested persons at Santa Rita Prison.

COMBINED AP & UPI

LOS ANGELES — California State College trustees discussed a controversial student body election at Sonoma State College today and planned to confer later on the presidency of San Francisco State College.

Chairman Daniel H. Ridder of the state college's governing board said trustees were waiting for Gov. Ronald Reagan's arrival to talk about the San Francisco State job.

Acting President S. I. Hayakawa of Mill Valley was expected to be named permanent San Francisco campus president. Reagan said yesterday in Sacramento he would support the permenent post for Hayakawa.

The issue at Sonoma State involves President Ambrose Nichols' decision to uphold a student body committee's ruling validating the election of James G. Gillette as student body president. He defeated Jon Owen of Novato.

Gillette, 34, of Cotati, is a Black Students Union leader who served a jail term for importing marijuana into the state.

No action in the issue was announced by trustees after an early morning closed meeting.

In trustee committee action yesterday, these recommendations were made:

TWO BIG THREATS TO SEGREGATION

Justice Department Planning Lawsuits Against Chicago, Georgia Public Schools

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Nixon administration today threatened two large school systems — the state of Georgia and the city of Chicago — with desegregations suits unless remedial action is taken within two weeks.

In the Georgia case, the Justice Department told the State Board of Education it has 15 days to come up with a voluntary plan to end racially separate school systems in all 194 districts.

The threat was contained in a letter sent by Asst. Atty. Gen. Jerris Leonard to Dr. Jack P. Nix, Georgia's superintendent of education.

It came on the heels of a similar warning to the Chicago Board of Education that a lawsuit may be in the works to force the nation's third largest school system to desegregate its faculty.

In his letter to Nix, Leonard said 119 Georgia districts still had not adopted plans "for the full conversion from a dual to a unitary method" of operation in complicance with federal law against racial discrimination.

Leonard told the Chicago board it must act within two weeks toward integrating its faculty. He said current faculty assignment procedures deny Negro pupils equal protection under the law.

In a letter to board President Frank M. Whiston, Leonard said the department is providing school officials "with an opportunity to take appropriate steps to eliminate voluntarily the racially discriminatory practices we found in the operation of the school system."

Leonard asked for a report within two weeks on what action the board is prepared to take. He suggested steps including "a comprehensive program to disestablish the segregated pattern of faculty assignments and to equalize the distribution of certificated and experienced personnel and substitute teachers for the opening of the next school year."

Reagan Pledges Lid On Any School Funds

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—The Assembly today pressed ahead with bills providing an extra $200 million for schools and clamping down on campus rebels despite a warning flag waved by Gov. Ronald Reagan.

The economy-minded chief executive served notice he will carve down by veto any school aid finance bill whose funds exceeded the $120 million his budget proposes for extra education aid.

Reagan also told a news conference yesterday that an important provision of an Assembly package aimed at dealing with collegiate rioters would set a "very dangerous precedent."

He objected to a feature compelling the state to subsidize local police for campus disturbance work.

Reagan rarely warns he would veto legislation, but he relaxed the self-imposed policy when asked if he would reject a bill calling for an extra $200 million in state aid for hard-pressed local school districts.

"I would be forced to," he said.

The Legislature last week sent Reagan a $6.3 billion budget which called for $198 million in new school aid. Reagan vetoed the sum down to $120 million and pledged to spend any additional surpluses for school support.

Those surpluses won't be known until November. Estimates vary, but some finance specialists maintain the sum would be anywhere from $10 million to $60 million.

Reagan said the Legislature

Clean Water Bill Sent To Reagan

SACRAMENTO (AP) — The Assembly sent to Gov. Ronald Reagan today a major overhaul of the state's water quality laws, including a $6,000-a-day fine for polluters.

The lower house voted 67-0 to accept minor technical amendments the Senate made to the measure by Assemblyman Carley Porter, D-Compton.

Porter has described his bill as the first complete revision of the state's 20-year-old water quality act.

Besides setting stiffer fines for violation, the measure gives the state attorney general's office the power to take civil action against polluters.

Bill Asks Shoreline Powers

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — The Reagan administration, in a surprise last-minute shift, has proposed extensive amendments to toughen the bill it favors to keep controls on filling San Francisco Bay.

The administration-sponsored bill, SB 117 by Sen. Milton Marks, R-San Francisco, now would drop the late 1969 expiration date that would have killed the San Francisco Bay Conservation and Development Commission.

But the amendments, to be included by Marks in his bill today, would write into law the standards for bay fill proposed in the BCDC's master plan for the bay and shoreline to guarantee public access and use, and provide for controls over shoreline development.

Brand new would be an amendment stating that the Williamson Act — which permits property owners to put their land in agricultural preserves — should be applied to bay lands. This act, in effect for several years allows owners of open space to be assessed on the basis of the existing use of their land instead of on its value if developed. In turn the property owners must agree not to develop their property for 10 years.

Another amendment would expand the BCDC's jurisdiction to all of the salt ponds and wetlands around the bay, and to a 100-foot-wide strip of shoreline around the entire bay. The governor previously had questioned this provision in other bills.

However, in the "priority areas" designated in the BCDC plan, where use of the shoreline would be reserved for water-related purposes, the amendments provide that the BCDC could be overriden by a two-thirds vote by the local board of supervisors or city council. This veto provision was suggested by the League of California Cities.

In the rest of the shoreline band, the commission would be concerned only with ensuring

Nixon Orders Overseas Troop Cut

WASHINGTON (AP- — President Richard M. Nixon ordered today the withdrawal of nearly 15,000 U.S. military men from overseas bases in the next year —but not from Vietnam or other trouble spots.

The specific areas from which the men will be taken were not announced.

The White House said 14,900 men would be brought home during the coming 12 months

Unions Support Save-The-Bay Bill

OAKLAND (AP) — Organized labor threw its support today behind strong legislation to protect San Francisco Bay against unregulated dredging and filling.

George Johns, secretary of the San Francisco Labor Council, said some 35 unions representing about 500,000 members strongly support a bill proposed by Assemblyman John Knox, a Contra Costa County Democrat.

Johns and representatives of several of the unions told a news conference that the Knox bill is the only one pending before the Legislature which will protect the Bay while insuring sound development.

Unhappy On Rules Decision

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Two members of the Senate's old guard were dumped today from the powerful Senate Rules Committee by supporters of Republican President pro tem Howard Way.

REPLACEMENTS

They were replaced by two "young Turk" backers of Way—Clair Burgener of San Diego and Robert Stevens of Los Angeles. They were part of the GOP bloc that earlier had helped replace Way's predecessor, Democratic President pro tem Hugh M. Burns of Fresno.

The move solidified Way's takeover of the Senate machinery, and came in an atmosphere of bitterness.

Burns, who supported his long-time friends McCarthy and Schrade, rose before the vote and said, "Now what you are doing is harpooning the people I represent."

"In a way it's nice to be relieved of the job," McCarthy told the Independent-Journal after the vote. He quickly added, "but I still would like to have it."

NOT HAPPY

"I'm not happy about what happened — that's for damn sure," he said.

Asked what the vote would do to his influence in the Senate, where he is third in seniority, McCarthy said "not a damn thing."

That's the way it goes in politics; one day you lose, and one day you win, and tomorrow's another day."

McCarthy said his defeat did not alter his previous prediction that he may still try to unseat

814 RETURN FROM VIETNAM

Veterans Land In 'Another World'

MCCHORD AIR FORCE BASE, Wash. (AP) — The last of nine planes bringing 814 American soldiers home from the Vietnam war under President Richard M. Nixon's withdrawal program landed here last night.

One of the nine planes stopped at Hickam Field in Hawaii and the pilot reported minor engine trouble on the Saigon-Hawaii hop.

They continued to McChord without incident.

The men were taken by bus to nearby Ft. Lewis to be processed today and prepare for a nearby Fort Lewis to be procparade in Seattle tomorrow.

"It's a wonderful feeling," said their commander, Lt. Col. Peter B. Petersen of Arlington, Va.

"This place is another world," said Sgt. Frank Puckett, Olympia, Wash.

"I hope they bring them all out," said Elesto Williams, 23, Houston, Tex.

Their first night at this Army post was a far cry from their last night in Saigon, where helicopter gunships hovered on the horizon to keep the Viet Cong from spoiling their exit.

When the first group of 94 veterans, most of them in their early 20s, stepped from their C141 transport plane, Gen. William C. Westmoreland, Army Chief of Staff, told them they would find themselves "more mature, more dedicated to the service of others, more compassionate, more responsible, more realistic and more practical" than their contemporaries.

Their reaction was mixed.

"I'm going to go home and cut the grass," said Sgt. Jerome DeBold, 38, of Titusville, Pa.

"I'm going out and raise hell," said Dave Schutte, 20, of Quincy, Ill.

Of the 814 troops, 776 are enlisted men and 38 are officers. Of the enlisted men, 118 are being released from active duty and 658 are being reassigned. Sixteen officers will be reassigned and 22 will be released from active duty.

The men came home under the banner of the Army's 3rd Battalion, 60th Infantry, 9th Infantry Division, but only 138 of them actually fought with the division.

Fighting Lull Lowers List Of Casualties

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. battle deaths in Vietnam dropped last week to the lowest level since late April, giving apparent support to President Richard M. Nixon's position that casualties rise and fall with the level of enemy attacks.

Although official figures are not yet final, sources say the toll for the week ending July 4 probably will be down generally close to the 163 Americans killed in action in the week ending April 26, the last time there was a lull in the fighting.

The cause of U.S. casualties has been a matter of growing controversy, with some critics contending U.S. battlefield initiatives bring about high losses.

Nixon told a news conference June 19, "Our casualties are in direct ratio to the level of enemy attacks."

Insisting U.S. forces have not escalated their operations, the President said "We have only responded to what the enemy has done."

The six-month toll in 1969 stands close to 6,500—about 3,000 fewer than the first six months of 1968, which included the great enemy Tet offensive.

Since then, the enemy and the United States have pursued "talk and fight" strategies.

In the 14 months since the Paris peace talks got going, about 14,000 American servicemen have died in combat.

Four U.S. Air Force bases, Brooks, Kelly, Lackland and Randolph, are located near San Antonio, Tex.

Nine Paratroopers Die In Viet Cong Ambush

SAIGON (AP) — American paratroopers walked into a Viet Cong ambush 50 miles south of Da Nang and lost nine men killed and seven wounded in a day-long battle that followed, U.S. headquarters reported today.

The ambush occurred shortly after noon yesterday. A spokesman said about 150 Viet Cong deeply entrenched in bunkers near a jungle trail waited for a detachment of the 101st Airborne Division to walk into the "kill zone," then opened fire with machine guns and rifles.

"The enemy small arms and automatic weapons fire was returned immediately by the troopers, who were supported by an Air Force gunship, artillery and tactical air strikes," said the spokesman. He added that contact continued for about seven hours until nightfall.

Only two bodies of Viet Cong soldiers were found.

Elsewhere, light rocket attacks persisted and the U.S. Command reported 77 enemy troops were slain in eight small fights from the Mekong Delta to the demilitarized zone. U.S. casualties were one killed and six wounded.

Spokesmen said the actions were not significant enough to be considered a break in the Vietnam war's current three-week lull. But they reported movement of enemy troops in small groups, similar to the pattern that ended similar lulls in February, May and June.

The U.S. Command reported the loss of two more helicopters to enemy ground fire yesterday —an Army UH-1 downed 16 miles northwest of Saigon, killing the four Americans aboard and a Marine chopper downed 25 miles southwest of Da Nang, killing one American and wounding three.

The losses raised to 2,832 the number of American helicopters lost in the war.

Headquarters said 14 rocket and mortar attacks hit allied bases and towns, including Saigon, overnight. Only four of them caused light casualties or damage at South Vietnamese installations. Casualties were reported as light.

Striking Plumbers Approve More Talks

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Striking plumbers, who seek $11.48 an hour for a four and one-half day, 36-hour work week, and management representatives, who have offered $10.92 an hour for a five-day, 35-hour week, agreed last night to resume negotiations tomorrow.

The walkout began July 2 and has threatened to curtail housing construction throughout southern California.

New York state entered the Union July 26, 1788.

WORLD NEWS IN BRIEF

Necessary Now

WASHINGTON (AP) — Whether it's shocking or not, a welfare official says, birth control information should be provided for school age unwed mothers.

"Call it birth control or whatever you want to, but how can you hope to stop this cycle of illegitimacy unless you provide some sort of information and services to these young girls" — particularly under age 16, Miss Mary E. Switzer told Congress in April testimony released today.

She is head of the Social and Rehabilitation Service of the Health, Education and Welfare Department.

Rate Hike Urged

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Nixon administration will recommend next week to Congress that the interest rate on savings bonds be raised to 5 per cent from the present 4.5 per cent, says Secretary of the Treasury David M. Kennedy.

Testifying before the Senate Finance Committee yesterday, Kennedy said the proposal will be part of a larger package asking an end to the 4.5 per cent ceiling on most government bonds.

Cultural Funds

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House has approved spending another $7.5 million in federal money for the National Cultural Center, another project hit hard by cost overruns.

The building on the Potomac is now to cost $66 million instead of the $46.4 million estimated when the project was recommended by President Dwight D. Eisenhower.

The vote yesterday was 210 to 162 to increase the federal share of the total to $23 million. The rest comes from private donations.

Denies Meat Blast

WASHINGTON (AP) — An Agriculture Department spokesman has denied consumer advocate Ralph Nader's charge that the department caters more to meat packers than consumers.

Dr. Robert K. Somers, deputy administrator for consumer protection, said yesterday, "the millions of pounds of meat we condemn . . . bears out that we're really interested in all the people."

Somers denied the Nader charge that he and two aides inspected a Vernon, Los Angeles County, packing plant, found it should be closed, but did not do so. Somers said he did not go to the plant and the defects found there were corrected.

Rickover Extension

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Vice Adm. Hyman G. Rickover, 68, has received an extension to January 1972, of his terms of office in the Navy's nuclear propulsion program.

The Navy announced yesterday that Rickover, whose terms were to have expired next January, would continue for a further two years as director of the Division of Naval Reactors of the Atomic Energy Commission and deputy commander of nuclear propulsion of the Naval Ship Systems command.

HHH Refused To Expose Nixon Backer, White Says

WASHINGTON (AP) — Could Hubert H. Humphrey have changed the course of the 1968 presidential campaign by disclosing information that a Richard M. Nixon supporter tried to sabotage preliminary Vietnam peace talks?

Author Theodore H. White speculates in his book "The Making of a President 1968" that Humphrey might have won the election if he had ballyhooed the story.

But Willaim Connell, Humphrey chief political aide, doubts it and says he recommended against making the alleged intrigue a public issue.

"I thought we were on the way, anyway, and that we might get a backlash from it," says Connell.

White reports in his recently published book the Johnson Administration intercepted messages from Anna Chan Chennault, a Nixon supporter, undertaking to sabotage the Paris agreement preceding the U.S. bombing halt in and peace negotiations.

But, White reports, Humphrey refused to air the story despite urgings from some in his campaign staff.

When Nixon aides learned of the activities of the Chinese-born Mrs. Chennault, White says, there was "fury and dismay" and the feeling that "if they lost the election, Mrs. Chennault might have lost it for them."

When asked for comment Mrs. Chennault's secretary in Washington said Mrs. Chennault was in Asia.

Mrs. Chennault, widow of the wartime hero Gen. Claire Chennault and now an American citizen, had raised funds for the Nixon campaign and was chairman or co-chairman of several Nixon citizens committees.

ANNA CHAN CHENNAULT
Intrigue for Nixon?

She learned by gossip, rumor and speculation of the October halt, White says, and "she had undertaken most energetically to sabotage them."

He adds: "In contact with the Formosan, the South Korean and the South Vietnamese governments she had begun early, by cable and telephone, to mobilize their resistence to the agreement — apparently implying, as she went, that she spoke for the Nixon campaign."

But, White continues, her communications with Asia were tapped by the U.S. government and turned over to Johnson.

White says Johnson was aware of Mrs. Chennault's Asian messages before he made his announcement Thursday, Oct. 31—just five days before the election—of the bombing halt and the anticipation of the peace talks, but had not taken them seriously.

But two days later when 11 South Vietnamese senators expressed their support of Nixon and South Vietnamese President Nguyen Van Thieu repudiated the Paris agreement "The President's wrath was lit," White says and he adds:

"By Saturday he had accused Sen. Everett Dirksen of a Republican plot to sabotage peace (which Dirksen, presumably, hastened to relay to Nixon headquarters); and by Sunday, Johnson was in direct and bitter telephone contact with Richard Nixon in Los Angeles."

White says, "What could have been made of an open charge that the Nixon leaders were saboteurs of the peace one cannot guess; how quickly it might, if aired, have brought the last 48 hours of the American campaign to squalor is a matter of speculation."

"But," he added," the good instinct of that small town boy Hubert Humphrey prevailed. Fully informed of the sabotage of the negotiations and the recalcitrance of the Saigon government, Humphrey might have won the presidency of the United States by making it the prime story of the last four days of the campaign. He was urged by several members of his staff to do so.

Connell said in an interview with The Associated Press he recommended against it because he thought Humphrey was in the winning lane and he didn't want a public opinion backlash.

Cause Of Spacemonk's Death May Take Months To Determine

HONOLULU, Hawaii (UPI)— It may take months to determine what caused the death of America's space monkey three weeks before the end of his scheduled 30-day mission, according to an official of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

Dr. W. Roth Adey, chief investigator for the $92 million Biosatellite III project, said yesterday the 14-pound monkey named Bonny died shortly after midnight—12 hours after an emergency splashdown in the Pacific.

"It was sudden," Adey said. "There was no specific evidence of the heart or brain malfunction which can point to the problem now."

He said an extensive autopsy would be performed on the monkey at Hickam AFB, but the results probably would not be known for months.

Adey noted Bonny's body temperature was lower than normal on the ninth day of the planned month-long flight, but "that was the only indication the primate was not adapting."

He said the monkey's lowered body temperature posed two possibilities: Either the capsule was cooler than it was supposed to be or the monkey's metabolism dropped. Adey said the capsule temperature was 70 degrees Fahrenheit and considered safe.

Scientists from NASA's AKS Research Laboratory in Sunnyvale, Calif., ended the flight Monday after completion of 130 orbits in nine days because the monkey became sluggish and was no longer interested in his assigned tasks.

The project was designed to determine the physical effects of a long voyage in space.

Opera Diva Gladys Swarthout, 65, Dies

GLADYS SWARTHOUT
A famous Carmen

FLORENCE, Italy (AP) — Gladys Swarthout, mezzo soprano hailed by critics as the "best female singer in the opera world" during the 1930s, died here Monday of a heart attack, it was reported today. She was 65.

Miss Swarthout had suffered from heart trouble for many years and underwent heart surgery twice in Houston, Tex.

A native of Deepwater, Mo., Miss Swarthout spent a few years with the Chicago Civic Opera before making her debut at New York's Metropolitan Opera in 1929.

Her success was sudden and lasting. She was the top female star of the Metropolitan in the 1930s and was acclaimed by critics in the United States and Canada. She also sang with the San Francisco Opera Company.

She had been living for several years in Florence, the renaissance city which she fell in love with during a tour of Italy to improve her Italian.

A graduate of the Bush Conservatory of Music in Chicago, she was best known for her portrayal of Carmen although she started her operatic career with a succession of boys' roles.

She made her Metropolitan debut as La Cieca, the blind old mother of La Gioconda in the opera of that name, and went on to create the part of Cathos in the American premiere of "Le Preziose Ridicole."

She retired from the Met in 1945.

In 1950 Miss Swarthout sang Carmen in the first opera ever staged exclusively for television. Between operas she gave numerous concerts, was a regular performer on radio programs and made five Hollywood movies. None of the movies ever created much of a stir.

Miss Swarthout believed in constant training and practice she told an interviewer in 1949: "I'm still learning my trade"—and was a stickler about attending rehearsals.

Miss Swarthout, who began as a church singer, often remarked that her greatest regret was that she never performed on a European opera stage.

Miss Swarthout married Harry Richmond Kern in 1925 and became a widow in 1930. The following year she married Frank M. Chapman, who died three years ago.

REAGAN

understood that $100 million he proposes in one-time income tax rebates in the 1970 election year are not considered part of any surplus.

Asked if he would look favorably on spending the proposed rebate for school aid, he replied, "No. We couldn't do that."

Several hours earlier, the Assembly Ways and Means Committee approved for floor action an omnibus school aid bill tailored to distribute to poor school districts almost $200 million — $80 million more than Reagan said is available.

Reagan said if the measure reached his desk, he would be "forced" to scale it down to fit the $120 million in his $6.2 billion budget.

The bill writes into law fund distribution formulas for an estimated $199.9 million but is constructed so that state money would be proportionately reduced to districts in case the entire sum wasn't available.

But unlike a rival bill, it provides no extra money for big city schools such as Los Angeles, Oakland, San Diego and San Francisco. That measure would allocate $20 million to urban schools.

Reagan also was asked if he would veto campus riot control legislation requiring the state to reimburse local police for costs incurred during disturbances at half the cost after the first $100,000.

Reagan declined a specific answer, but said "I think it is a very dangerous precedent to establish that simply because there is a state institution involved in the disturbances that the state gets into paying the cost of local law enforcement."

The subsidy provision is part of a major assembly bill designed to give campus administrators more tools to deal with rioters. Another provision would suspend state aid to any scholarship or grant student convicted of disturbing the campus peace.

Kuwait, two-thirds the size of Maryland, ranks sixth among world oil producers. Its crude oil reserves are an estimated 10 billion tons or more, about 15 per cent of the world supply.

REPORT

cument—titled "The 'People's Park': A Report on a Confrontation at Berkeley"—was prepared by Reagan's staff. Information was collected from eyewitnesses, law enforcement reports, newspaper accounts, university administrators and public officials.

It was released two weeks after Reagan announced he was preparing a documentation to refute "false descriptions" of what happened during the disturbance.

The report turned out basically to be an elaboration of a speech Reagan delivered June 13 to the Commonwealth Club in San Francisco.

It told of "street people" threatening to create $5 million in property damage, growing marijuana in the "park," and attacking police with jagged pipes, rocks, chunks of cement, tear gas and knives.

The report indicated innocent persons were injured and arrested because "in such a scene of chaos, it was often impossible" for officers to determine who was assaulting them and who was "merely trying to avoid being caught in the battle area."

In a conclusion titled, "What's ahead for Berkeley?" the report warned:

"While the situation on People's Park, has subsided other confrontations are possible...any incident can serve as an excuse for intimadation through mass marches and demonstrations that have a potential for violence."

Reagan's aides noted people could weigh the Barb's message based on their own views "of whether street corner 'revolutionists' should be taken seriously'." But it cautioned:

"Before dismissing this hazy mixture of Marxism and vulgarity as the prattling of a few anonymous revolutionaries,' it should be remembered that it was just this sort of anonymous declaration that launched the People's Park controversy."

The report said the first inkling that U.C-owned lot might become the center of trouble was on March 31 when the underground San Francisco Express Times suggested the land was vacant and, "Why don't we use it?"

The Berkeley Barb followed in April with an article declaring, "We want the park to be a cultural, political, freak out and rap center for the western world."

Two days later, the report said, the property became "occupied" as the people's park.

Reagan's staff said many who worked on the park project were misguided volunteers "motivated by a simple desire to improve the environment."

But what motivated the revolutionaries, the report said, was "defiance of the law of our society for political purposes."

to declare states of emergency in cases of disruption, take whatever measures necessary and suspend students for a week before holding a hearing.

Student fees be increased from $2 to $3 a quarter or a semester to make up for a legislative budget cut of $630,000 in funds for dean of student's offices.

An investigation be made into compulsory student fees and their use with an eye to making the fees voluntary. Some trustees believed student funds were misused at San Francisco State to help militants.

SENATE

Way as pro tem. Asked when he might make his bid, McCarthy said "just speculate."

Burns complained that Southern Californians now hold three places on Rules — the Senate's most influential committee with power to assign bills to committees and name committee chairmen.

"We are going so far, so fast that it won't be long until Los Angeles County is running the Senate," he said. "It is all well and good for anyone living in rural districts to sell their people out, but I'm not going to do it."

McCarthy and Schrade were beaten in a closed caucus. Stevens beat McCarthy 24-12 and Burgener defeated Schrade 23-13.

Afterward, the decision was ratified on the Senate floor 29-4 by adoption of a resolution naming Stevens and Burgener to Rules.

Way's supporters were determined to dump Schrade and McCarthy from Rules because they said they were disloyal to the Republican Party and preferred to work instead with the informal coalition of lobbyists and Democratic and Republican veterans who had run the Senate for years.

SCHRADE PLAN

In addition, they privately said Schrade was trying to put together a coalition of old guard members to defeat Way next year.

Way, of Exeter, got support from 12 to 14 Republicans in his move to win control of Rules, and from some 10 Democrats who charged McCarthy and Schrade were too friendly with lobbyists.

Now Way, Burgener and Stevens form a three-man bloc on Rules, which has final say in running the house. Also on the committee are Democrats Stephen Teale of West Point and Joseph Kennick of Long Beach.

Republicans have been trying for full control since April when they took over the house 21-19 in a special election.

McCarthy and Schrade forces tried desperately to stop today's vote, citing a rule they said prevented the Senate from holding the closed caucus.

But Sen. Donald Grunsky, R-Watsonville, told them to stop "the monkeyshines," and declared "let's just play it straight."

After action was launched yesterday, Way said:

"A majority of Republican senators feel the two incumbent senators on rules have not worked as closely with me as they could have."

McCarthy, a member of the committee for more than 10 years, rejected the charge and countered that the conference committee was selected on "the basis of experience and not on a party line basis."

He accused Way of using the issue as "a wedge of war propaganda" to win support from other Republicans to unseat him and Schrade.

maximum public pedestrian access.

The amendments also spell out the BCDC's jurisdiction in tributaries. In Marin and Sonoma counties, its jurisdicition would extend up the Petaluma River to Adobe Creek, and up San Antonio Creek to the railroad right-of-way.

An aide to Marks told the Independent-Journal that the amendments would be inserted in the bill late today — just in time for the crucial Senate Finance Committee hearing at 9 a.m. tomorrow in the Capitol on all four surviving bills to save the BCDC.

The aide said "all the final points of the amendments have not been decided yet," so there may be some changes in the administration's proposals.

The other three bills have drawn most of the attention to date because they already included the controversial proposals for shoreline control, but the amendments to the Marks bill could make it the most likely to get out of the finance committee tomorrow.

Petitions supporting strong controls over bay fill, signed by 200,000 persons, were presented yesterday to Gov. Ronald Reagan by the Save Our Bay Action Committee.

ra Creek bed from the San Anselmo line to the Lagunitas Bridge area, with the rest a concrete channel, costing about $5.3 million.

The board, on a motion by Peter R. Arrigoni Jr., accepted the corps plan to a point 700 feet below the Lagunitas Bridge, but directed staff to study alternate plans for the upstream portion and to try to find additional state or federal funds that will be needed.

Construction on the Ross phase of the project is to start next spring. Before that's finished, however, the board will have to hold another hearing on plans for the upstream section, County Counsel Douglas J. Maloney said.

Opponents to the corps plan, led by William Bricca, who represented the Ross Citizens Committee and Ross Property Owners Association, said preservation of the beauty of Corte Madera Creek and Marin environment took precedence over financial consideration.

"Better plans cost more money," said Philip B. Lygren, engineer for the Town of Ross and adviser to the Ross Citizens Committee. "If we accept a better plan now we will have served our purpose. Why not begin now?"

"We have to begin to think big," said Marty Kent Jones of Kent Woodlands, who lost a fight to save Tamalpais Creek downstream from a concrete corset. "If Marin can't, no county can."

"An inexpensive plan is too expensive for Marin," said Mrs. Lester Bricca of Ross.

Bricca said the citizens committee was divided among members who wanted a year's delay to restudy the entire Ross phase and those who were willing, in the interest of keeping the project on schedule, to compromise in order to save the upstream portion from destruction.

An opposing group, Residents for Flood Control, said it favored project aesthetics, but would not tolerate delay.

Explained Robert L. Shearn of 153 Sir Francis Drake Boulevard, "As a resident of Ross who has been flooded eight times in the past 12 years, I tell you that the creek no longer is a thing of beauty . . ."

Clarence O. Amonette of Shady Lane said he represented concerned residents along Ross Creek, a tribuary which runs westward to the Shady Lane Bridge. Neither the corps plan nor the alternates contained any provision to eliminate a concrete channel in that stream, he said.

The county department of public works, with support from County Administrator Alan Bruce, backed the corps plan, but County Planning Director Paul C. Zucker opposed it, presenting figures of his own.

Zucker said the plan preferred by the corps, concreting the whole creek, would cost $4,030,000, not the $3.8 million estimated by the corps, and that for the larger amount Ross could have both the corps plan as far as Lagunitas Road Bridge and undergrounding the rest of the way.

TROOPS

"in the interests of lessening budget and balance of payments costs and of reducing the American presence overseas."

The cutbacks, to be supplemented by a reduction of approximately 5,100 civilian em-employees abroad, could lead to an eventual balance of payments savings of $75 million a year, it was said.

Civilian cutbacks will be carried out throughout the world, including a reduction of more than 10 per cent in federal civilian employees in South Vietnam.

The military reductions, however, will not apply to forces in Vietnam, South Korea, Berlin, those sections of Southeast Asia where they operate in support of military operations, or to forces committed to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

Press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said that about 850,000 of the approximately one million U.S. military men now serving abroad would be covered by the exemptions.

SCHOOLS

tion suit filed thus far is aimed at alleged desegregation in the Houston, Tex., school system. The Chicago system, third in size behind New York City and Los Angeles, has 580,000 students, 53 per cent of whom are Negroes. It has 22,000 teachers.

The department investigation, Leonard said, "compels the conclusion that the school system's practices with respect to the assignment and transfer of faculty and staff members has had the effect of denying to Negro students in the Chicago public schools the equal protection of the laws."

The letter said 215 of Chicago's 578 elementary, junior and senior high schools have all-white or all-Negro faculties.

In addition, the letter said, 93 per cent of the Negro elementary and junior high teachers were assigned to schools where Negro youngsters comprised 90 to 100 per cent of the enrollments.

Only three per cent of the Negro elementary and junior high teachers were assigned to schools that had more than a 50 per cent white enrollment, Leonard said.

The department contended that residential patterns alone cannot account for similarity between racial compositions of student bodies and faculties.

This pattern, Leonard said, "persists in many cases where white and Negro schools are less than a mile apart."

Moreover, the department contended its examination shows "all-Negro and predominantly Negro schools generally are assigned a disproportionate number of new, inexperienced, less educated and noncertificated teachers.

The Nixon administration indicated yesterday it will challenge some arrangements allowing Catholic and public school systems in several northern cities to share facilities.

Fashion Lens Hit In Report

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The big lens fashion sunglasses may look great, but they aren't what the eye doctor ordered.

According to evidence presented yesterday to a resolutions committee of the American Optometric Association, holding its 72nd annual meeting here, the small amount of tinting in the glass doesn't protect eyes from the sun, and pieces of glass as large as the three-inch diameter lenses almost always have optical defects.

San Anselmo Hill Dwellers Say 'Undesirables' Ruin Neighborhood

A disturbed group of hill dwellers demanded last night that the San Anselmo City Council restrict nonconforming residential uses in their predominantly single-family residential area.

Mostly from the Humboldt and Foothill avenues area, the citizens cited "undesirable transient tenants" for parking problems, rats in the neighborhood and garbage-strewn lots.

Mayor Woodrow V. Capurro set up a committee to correct deficiencies developing in neighboring areas, which will report back to council in 60 days.

Based on a recommendation by Councilman James F. Reed, the committee will study an ordinance requiring off-street parking for existing dwellings by some future date, in-lieu parking, the night parking ordinance and street assessment residential uses.

Reed and Councilman Kenneth L. Anderson were appointed to the committee. Other members will include representatives from the city planning commission, Streets and Traffic Committee, and members of the city staff. Capurro said he thought it possible to appoint Ragnvald Bernt Jr., one of the spokesmen for the group of about 15 complaining residents.

The council also voted unanimously to execute recommendations of the Streets and Traffic Committee which include placing a white line on the street in the area of 106-112 Humboldt.

Councilmen heard from Jean L. Atnip of 112 Humboldt and Mrs. Donald Asker of 106 Humboldt who urged alleviation of parking problems and removal of "no parking between these signs" signs near Bernt's home. The signs will be removed, the council agreed.

City Atty. John G. Buresh explained that it is difficult to get evidence to prove in court that someone is using a single family residence as a multiple dwelling and that the proof is on the city — not the home owner. If a person has the legal right to maintain two apartments in an R-1 zone, he said, the right cannot be taken away without giving the owner ample time to get his investment out of the property.

Charles Turner told the council that several residents will testify that a man converted the house at 16 Foothill Avenue to a multiple dwelling, then sold it to two women. "Now we have a situation which is intolerable," said Turner. Turner said he would turn his information over to the city. (The home is now occupied by two school teachers, Geil Davis and Daisy E. H. Atten.)

Resident Gene Lynch asked if homes could be investigated on the basis of health problems. Buresh said there must be reasonable grounds that there is something wrong before a writ may be obtained for search. "Would you say excessive rats in the neighborhood or lots with garbage tossed into them would be evidence?" asked Helen Amick of 139 Humboldt.

Councilman Reed stressed that the city is trying to abate irregular uses and to write ordinances that will protect the health, safety and welfare of the citizens. "It is not attempting to discriminate against anybody in any way . . . if they wear long hair and want to live within our ordinances, that's fine," he said.

San Anselmo Hits Marin Dog Policy

Dogs were drawn into the city-county double taxation issue last night when San Anselmo city councilmen agreed that cities are paying the county of Marin money for animal control but getting nothing in return.

Though San Anselmo is not one of eight cities contributing extra funds, the council agreed to write the county board of supervisors saying the county's new animal ordinance is "unfair and illegal" and if the county doesn't take remedial action, some action will be started by a San Anselmo citizen.

Calling the double taxation "a swindle," Councilman James F. Reed said he would be the plaintiff in a suit. City Atty. John G. Buresh said he wants stricter provisions in the ordinance and administrator-controller Alfred C. Kaeppel said he is continuing to charge $4 for licenses — not $5 as the county ordinance requests.

Cleveland is Ohio's largest city.

San Anselmo Names Bernt To Panel

Ragnvald Bernt Jr. of 26 Humboldt Avenue, was appointed to the San Anselmo Planning Commission last night by Mayor Woodrow V. Capurro to fill the unexpired term of Joseph Gue.

Bernt whose term will run to April 18, 1971, is a systems analyst for Western State Bank Card in San Francisco.

The mayor, with council approval, also re-appointed incumbents Dorothy Linderman and Jacquelan Perazzo to the library board but disagreed on two appointments to the parks and recreation commission and putting off their decision to July 22. The council will meet at 7:30 p.m., one-half hour early, to discuss the appointments.

An argument developed over whether to appoint Elberta Crebassa or Mrs. David Leach. Councilmen Robert M. Scott, Duane C. Ragan and Capurro favored Mrs. Crebassa while Councilman James F. Reed favored Mrs. Leach. Larry Husband was the sole other applicant and Capurro asked that his name be reconsidered at the next meeting. Prior to the argument over Mrs. Crebassa and Mrs. Leach.

San Rafael Pet Cat Set Afire, Survives

A one-year-old Siamese cat suffered serious burns when unknown persons apparently threw a flammable liquid on it and set the animal afire, San Rafael police reported today.

Shirley Marie James of 39 Dolores Street, owner of the brown Siamese, said she let the cat out Monday night. It returned with much of its hair burned.

City Council Delays Action On Public Safety Building

Four sites for the proposed San Anselmo public safety building were discussed last night by the city council after which the council instructed that all department heads submit the square footage of space they expect to need over the next 20 years.

The sites are: The city-owned parking lot A at the Hub, the Tanner Building on Sir Francis Drake Boulevard, a triangle of land on Center Boulevard bounded by San Anselmo and Hazel avenues and a proposed second story for the present firehouse.

The councilmen had diverse opinions on site possibilities but most agreed they need the space requirements first and the matter was continued to July 22.

Family Education Plan Is Adopted

A family health education program from kindergarten through high school, including sex education, was adopted last night by the San Rafael Board of Education.

Supt. John F. Plank reported that the curriculum wasn't set in detail, but approval would permit the districts to acquire materials and set up workshops for teachers.

As planned, students will be excused from any portion of the sex education program to which their parents object.

The program, recommended by a committee composed of parents, teachers and social service workers, was reviewed by the board June 17, and there was little comment last night.

Board members also heard reports from three teachers, who worked in the remedial program for disadvantaged pupils during the past year, Ruth Owens, Ann Winsor and Harriet Sherwin.

They authorized application for federal funds to continue the program, $49,023 in the elementary district and $17,912 in the high school district.

Plank reported that the elementary allocation "was about 70 per cent" of what it was for the past year, and the teachers asked that the district make up for the cut.

Board President Herman L. Childress said funds weren't available, but if funds became available, the board would consider restoring the full program.

The board also received notice that a group of residents protesting the appearance of two Chinese Red Guards at San Rafael High School will request a closed hearing on their demands to fire teacher involved, Angelo Douvos.

Two Red Guards from San Francisco passed out Maoist propaganda to Duvos's two world history classes in May, and used four-letter words.

The San Rafael Board Of Education Also:

FIRE PROTECTION — Received a recommendation from the Marin County Grand Jury that the elementary district contract with the San Rafael Fire Department for protection of Santa Venetia, MacPhail and Gallinas schools, now covered by the Marin County Fire Department which doesn't provide structural protection. Plank reported that Business Mgr. Charles L. Condrotte has conferred with city officials on the matter.

PATRIOTIC OBSERVANCES — Had a first reading on a policy which would permit various patriotic observances at San Rafael High School and Terra Linda High School in addition to the Pledge of Allegiance.

GRADUATE STUDY — Heard a report on student evaluation of counseling services, part of a follow-up of high school graduates of 1967 and 1968, presented by Audrey Kidd, study coordinator.

HIRED — Approved the hiring of Caterina Bess, French and Italian teacher, high school district, at $9,042 a year; Harold Ryan, social studies-physical education, elementary district, $7,950; Julianne Williams, girls' physical education, elementary district, $7,950; Marsha Simpson, girls' physical education, high school district, $7,208; George Coulson, custodian I, Terra Linda High School, $5,916; Raymond Ewens, custodian I, Davidson School, $5,916; Angelyne Fields, secretary II, Santa Venetia School, $4,930; James Fisher, custodian I, San Rafael High School, $5,916; Jonathan Holland, custodian I, Santa Venetia Middle School, $5,916; Donald MacMillan, custodian II, Hartzell School, $6,204; Salvador Molina, custodian I, Terra Linda High School, $5,916; and Ronald Herron, custodian I, San Rafael High School, $5,916.

LEAVE — Granted Ann Carr, kindergarten teacher, Short School, leave of absence for the 1969-70 school year due to unavailability of kindergarten assignment.

GYMNASIUM JOB — Approved working drawings and specifications for rehabilitation of San Rafael High School gymnasium to bring it up to the state's earthquake resistant standards, a job which has been estimated to cost $222,000.

MEETING SCHEDULE — Agreed to cancel the second regularly scheduled meeting in August, which would have been held Aug. 26.

CAFETERIA REPORTS — Received a report that the elementary district cafeterias had a profit of $1,806 during the year ending June 30, and the high school cafeterias had a loss of $1,896.

CLOSED SESSION — Adjourned to a closed session to discuss negotiations on salaries of administrators, who haven't been granted any cost-of-living increase this year, since they were covered in a two-year pay program last year. The next regular session is at 7:30 p.m. July 22.

Board member Lawrence I. Kramer, on a business trip to Japan, was absent.

53 Syphillis Cases Reported

Fifty-three cases of syphillis in Marin County during the first week in July were reported by County Health Officer Carolyn B. Albrecht today.

Health authorities said 12 of the cases originated in San Rafael, along with one case of salmonella and another of infectious hepatitis.

Largest number of syphillis cases, 29, were reported in Novato.

Borman Receives Warm Welcome

MOSCOW (AP) — Astronaut Frank Borman was warmly received today by Mstislav Keldysh, president of the Soviet Academy of Sciences, and informed sources said Borman may be granted a meeting with President Nikolai Podgorny before he leaves.

The Soviet government has gone out of its way to give red carpet treatment to Borman, the first American spaceman to visit this country, and his family. They are to fly home Thursday.

A smiling, expansive Keldysh shook Borman's hand and said: "So now you have changed your profession," apparently referring to Borman's capacity here as a goodwill ambassador.

Board Studies Classrooms Shortages

San Rafael Board of Education took a cautious approach last night toward deciding the way to provide housing for elementary pupils in the wake of two defeated bond proposals.

Twice this year the elementary district's $2.1 million bond proposal to construct a middle school, sixth, seventh and eighth grades, at Glenwood was rejected by voters.

Plank suggested one choice would be to construct the core of a Glenwood Middle School with about $400,000 in existing bond funds, and place portable classrooms around it to house from 300 to 400 pupils.

Another choice would be to use the $400,000 to improve existing schools, he said.

Board Member Carl J. Brown said: "I'd rather not build half a school," and Board Member Paul L. Jones said there might be yet other ways to meet the housing problem.

Board members agreed that this fall's enrollment will have a bearing on the problem, and there should be fullmstudy the there should be a full study before any decisions are made.

They decided to devote a Saturday workshop to study the housing problem, but no date was set.

New Skipper Reports Aboard Enterprise

ALAMEDA (AP) — The USS Enterprise, world's largest nuclear-powered attack carrier, has a new commanding officer.

He is Capt. Forrest S. Petersen, a former World War II pilot. He relieved Capt. Kent L. Lee, who commanded the ship and her 5,800-man crew for two years through two tours off Vietnam.

San Rafael School Budgets Adopted; Tax Hikes Likely

San Rafael Board of Education last night adopted 1969-70 publication budgets of $4,671,998 in the elementary district and $4,865,636 in the high school district.

The elementary budget is $92,201 lower than the past year and the high school budget is $179,877 higher, with both expected to carry hikes in the tax rates.

The total tax rates for the past year, including overrides and bond redemption, were $3.06 per $100 assessed valuation in the elementary district and $2.265 in the high school district.

Supt. John F. Plank said there would be a seventh-eighth grade override tax rate, possibly up to 22 cents, in the elementary district, which was levied in the past year.

There will be override tax increase in both districts to cover increased health insurance, he reported.

Plank, who has declined to estimate tax rates for 1969-70, said there was nothing definite yet on the state's contributions to the districts, a factor that will have a bearing on tax rates.

College Program Seeks Helpers

Volunteers to attack community problems are being sought by members of the community involvement project at Sonoma State College.

Jo Ann Pozzi of Petaluma, community coordinator for the program, said volunteers are needed by area recreation departments, as tutors and as teacher's aides. She said that hours are flexible and work available in most parts of Marin and Southern Sonoma. College credit may be arranged for students.

Persons need not be students or of college age to participate in the program. Information can be received by calling the community involvement office at the college.

Log Ban Is Extended; Legality Questioned

A year's extension of the interim ordinance banning logging operations in parts of West Marin was voted yesterday by the board of supervisors, despite a warning that the measure may be illegal.

Joseph P. DeLu, administrative adviser to the state Division of Forestry, told the board that the county had no power to regulate logging. He said the answer to the county's concern over siltation in waterways and destruction of the landscape lay in improved logging methods.

Supervisor Michael Wornum felt local jurisdictions had a right to regulate logging operations and said the state was lax in not extending such power to counties.

The interim ordinance, covering the Bolinas and Inverness ridges and parts of San Geronimo and Nicasio, would have expired Monday. In extending the measure a year, the board gave a special committee more time to draft a plan to control timber cutting in Marin that would be acceptable to property owners.

Several West Marin property owners complained to the board that they had not been informed of committee progress. The supervisors asked for a report every 90 days.

The Marin Board Of Supervisors Also:

OFFICE — Upheld planning commission denial of an appeal by William J. Dickerson of a use permit granted by Zoning Administrator Thomas E. Cordill for construction of psychiatrists' offices on Sir Francis Drake Boulevard near Ross General Hospital.

WATERWAYS — In a letter prepared by Pierre W. Joske, county parks and recreation director, expressed interest in including Marin in a statewide Protected Waterways Program that would preserve as natural resources various streams and bays

TIRES — Awarded contracts of $30.493 and $9,533 to Golden State Tire Service for new tires and recaps for county vehicles.

BOARD — Named appraiser Edward P. Morphy as a regular member of the assessment appeals board, with realty man David G. Cohn as alternate, switching their previous positions. Cohn's term had expired.

HIRE — Approved appointment of Jan Medbo as a current planner in the county planning department at $914 a month. Supervisor Louis H. Baar said he thought the wage was too high, but County Planning Director Paul C. Zucker pointed out that he had been unable to fill the position for three months at a lower salary.

PLANNING — Approved a $63,618 budget for the county's 701 studies, to include balanced transportation, housing and environmental quality. Approval of a tourism study under the program was postponed to insure cooperation from agencies such as the Marin County Chamber of Commerce and Visitors Bureau.

HEARINGS — Set Aug. 12 as the date for public hearings on two road widening projects — Sir Francis Drake Boulevard in the vicinity of San Quentin, and Novato Boulevard between San Miguel Way and San Marin Drive.

EMPLOYEES — Amended the county code pertaining to salaries and working conditions of county employees to conform with recent agreements with the employees.

The reception will be held from 3 to 6 p.m.

Ehrlich Tells Silverthorne Gift Ways

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Former banker Don Silverthorne was "rather liberal" with gifts to clients of the San Francisco National Bank, says a well known attorney and cofounder of the bank.

Attorney Jake Ehrlich was a defense witness yesterday in Silverthorne's retrial on charges of misapplying $200,000 from the bank, which was closed in 1965.

Silverthorne gave clients such personal gifts as paintings, said Ehrlich, but the attorney said he was not aware of any practice of giving away bank property.

In mid-July of 1964, Ehrlich said, a regional controller ordered that loan collections be stepped up and loans above $2,000 be halted.

Before that time, Ehrlich said, he did not know that fees were paid to money brokers for obtaining time deposits, and did not know that bank money was being deposited to Silverthorne's account in another bank.

Silverthorne, 69, was convicted in 1968 and sentenced to 60 years in prison, but was granted a new trial on grounds that publicity prejudiced the verdict.

Billy Graham Movie At Mill Valley Church

"The Restless Ones," a film by evangelist Billy Graham, will be shown at 7:30 p.m. July 23 at the First Baptist Church in Mill Valley.

The feature length film deals with the teen-age problems and incorporates the 1963 Billy Grahma Los Angeles crusade.

$30,000 Cultural Fund Pie Sliced

Shuffling allocations to theater groups proved a struggle yesterday for the Marin County Board of Supervisors as it parceled out $30.000 from the 1969-70 economic development budget.

Festival Theater asked $10,000, was recommended by the county administrator for $7,000, the same as last year, and received $5,000.

The Shakespeare Festival requested $7,500, was recommended for $1.000, also the same as last year, and received $3,000.

Both groups pressed for their requested allotments from the $30,000, roughly the proceeds of the motel tax, set aside to attract people to Marin.

Festival Theater business manager Jack M. Atkin told supervisors it is the only residential, professional theater which operates year-round in the Bay Area, except for the American Conservatory Theater in San Francisco.

Atkin reported federal funds received earlier were not being sought this year because most of the money had to be directed toward secondary school education. "We weren't able to do the thing we do best," he explained.

Robert A. Roumiguiere, president of the Marin Shakespeare Festival, reported about half its attendance is from outside Marin and estimated a minimum of $100.000 in tourist dollars would be generated this summer.

Both groups commented on attendance and on activities other than major productions and Atkin commented that an aim of Festival Theater is "to help this community come into the leisure revolution with style and grace."

Supervisor Peter R. Arrigoni Jr. suggested viewing all of the proposed allocations together and perhaps making up differences from other allocations which might not do as much for Marin. Later, his was the only no vote on the changes for the two theaters.

Moving on to other requests, Supervisor Michael Wornum looked at a $1,900 allocation for the Marin County Historical Society and commented, "The trouble with this is that we're dealing with a bunch of sacred cows" and wondered how many people the historical society brings in.

Frank Galli, president of the society, reported the museum is kept busy constantly answering queries about Marin and also noted the society is publishing a history of the county.

The $1,900 was approved with Wornum voting no.

Dudley Dickson, president of the Inverness Music Festival, appeared to support his group's request for $1.250, considerably more than the recommended $500. He reported 25 per cent of the festival's audience was from outside Marin.

Supervisor Louis H. Baar, whose district includes Inverness, successfully moved to add $200 to the recommended $500 appropriation for the festival and Wornum wondered how the addition would affect the unallocated reserve of $1,095.

Administrator Alan Bruce said part of the reserve would probably go for an open house at the Hall of Justice "which I hope will occur during the next fiscal year."

McInnis commented, "I had in mind inviting the architect to finance" the open house, pointing out his fees are now in the neighborhood of $2 million.

The board approved $250 each for the Fairfax Festival and the Candlelight Concert and Mozart Festival in Mill Valley, two new groups on the list. Fairfax had asked $500 and the Mozart group $2,000. Neither was included in the list of recommendations.

The board also approved $150 for the Dipsea Race; $220 for the Marin Memorial Day Committee; $2,000 for Marin Music Chest; $2,000 for the Marin Museum Association; $750 for the Novato Western Weekend.

Also, $8,500 for the Redwood Empire Association; $600 for the Sonoma-Marin Fair; $2,000 for the Marin Symphony Guild; $500 for the West Marin Junior Livestock Show; $1.500 for the Marin Ballet Association; $250 to the Corte Madera Chamber of Commerce for fireworks, and $75 to the San Rafael Junior Chamber of Commerce for placing flags on appropriate holidays.

Greyhound's Daily Runs Cut By 17

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Seventeen Bay Area commuter runs have been dropped by Greyhound Bus Lines since a strike by 350 machinists began June 10.

A Greyhound spokesman said yesterday a summer drop in the number of riders prompted the cut. An official of the International Association of Machinists Lodge 1305 blamed "extensive breakdowns" in equipment.

At least two buses were seen standing at roadside yesterday morning in Marin County where seven runs were eliminated Monday. Another eight runs were cut on the Peninsula and two in Contra Costa County.

The State Public Utilities Commission began an investigation of service yesterday at the insistence of the striking machinists, who claim the company has been using unsafe equipment.

Marinwood Budget Tentatively Up $5,628

A fiscal 1969-70 budget of $173,460, up $5,628 from last year, was tentatively approved last night by directors of the Marinwood Community Services District.

Genevieve Bolding, district business manager-secretary, estimated the district tax rate would drop about 4 cents to $1.25 per $100 of assessed valuation because of an increase in service and recreation revenue and a rise in assessed valuation.

The budget, scheduled to be adopted July 16, includes $101,715 for salaries and $14,230 for capital outlay.

In other business last night, directors named Kenneth Sharshaf of 2356 Las Gallinas Avenue and Keith Lanning of 223 Blackstone Drive to the park and recreation commission to replace Charles Mason, who moved to Los Angeles, and Ralph Tischbern, who did not seek reappointment.

George Whitaker of 18 Mount Ranier Drive was chosen as Upper Lucas Valley's representative on the fire commission. Mrs. Bolding said Whitaker was recommended by area homeowners as a replacement for Ronald Marino, whose term had expired.

Pennsylvania Avenue in Washington perhaps was a special honor to that state among the original 13 and perhaps to soften its disappointment when the nation's founding fathers decided not to make Philadelphia the permanent capital.

Abandoning Penngrove School Eyed

The Petaluma Board of Education last night considered abandoning the unsafe Penngrove School rather than rehabilitating it and began making arrangments to transfer students.

Consulting engineers and architects told the board that it would cost $185,184 to bring the building up to minimum state standards for earthquake and fire safety. The project could go as high as $269,154 if the building were also to be improved educationally and full use made of all space.

If a new building is constructed, the board indicated it would be in the present parking lot area with the 44-year-old building being demolished for a new lot.

Faced with the problem of relocating the students Supt. Lesly H. Meyer said all steps would be taken to avoid double sessions at a neighboring school, a complaint voiced by some 30 parents.

Solutions include bussing the students in equal numbers to several other schools or purchase of portable classrooms for Penngrove or another school.

By resolution of trustee Sol Fishman, the board said students would definitely not occupy the building until safer arrangements have been made.

Engineer David L. Messinger said the major weakness at the building is in the roof and floor.

Architect Malcolm Reynolds said that a great deal of remodeling within the building would be necessary indluding new lighting, heating, plumbing and restroom fixtures.

The men estimated that nine months would be needed for either the rehabilitative process or for the construction of a new building

A progress report on the continuing study as well as recommendations for future use of the building will be made at the Aug. 5 board meeting.

The Joyce Kilmer National Forest, North Carolina, was named in honor of the poet who wrote the famous poem, "Trees."

$12.7 Million School Bond Issue Is Asked

Predicting an enrollment increase of 8 per cent in Petaluma Junior and Senior high schools over the next 10 years, the Petaluma Board of Education last night called for a $12.7 million bond election for Oct. 14.

On the ballot, voters will be asked to approve the sale of $3.6 million in bonds and $9.1 million in state apportionment. The board said the funds would finance a five-to-10 year building program.

In the last bond ellction, 1959, it was also estimated to provide funds for five to 10 years. First fund projects would go for a new senior high school and a junior high school in East Petaluma.

The board questioned whether the present 5 per cent interest rate limit would still be in effect by the time of the bond election. Should the rate limit be raised to 6 per cent, a second election would be needed. Supt. Lesly H. Meyer said he had information that the interest rate would not rise, thus not endangering voting.

A recommendation for the bond election came from the board's educational advisor committee which will be forming working committees to promote passage.

The Petaluma Board Of Education Also:

The project costs total $48,850, substantially under the $53,000 estimate.

Berkeley Barb Hit By Pickets

The underground weekly was picketed and occupied yesterday by a dozen hippie-type persons claiming to represent the paper's 35-man staff.

They called the Barb's balding and bearded editor and publisher, Max Scherr, 53, "a capitalistic bloodsucker" and demanded better pay and working conditions.

Scherr said the disruption would cause the paper to miss its publishing deadline for the first time since he gave up a bar to start it four years ago. There was no damage to the Barb's offices.

SACRAMENTO ROUNDUP

Bill Advances For English Drinking Driver Test

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — A drunken driving bill its author says is "the toughest in the nation" today reached the Assembly floor.

The Assembly Ways and Means committee last night approved by a bare 10-vote majority a bill by Assemblyman John Vasconcellos, D-San Jose, adopting the English three-test program.

Under the bill a motorist with a blood alcohol count of .08 per cent runs a risk of being prosecuted for impaired or drunken driving.

Vasconcellos conceded a social drinker who downed four whiskies in an hour would, on the average, be in jeopardy.

Presently most judges and juries in California informally adopt a count of .15 or above to establish a drunken driver. A new law signed by Gov. Ronald Reagan and effective sometimes this fall sets a blood-alcohol count of .10 per cent as presumptive proof a motorist is drunk.

Here's how it works:

But if it is .08 or above he is given a second breath test using a balloon filled with chemicals at the police station.

If less than .08, he is let go but if above he must take a third test. He has his choice of a more sophisticated breath test or a blood or urine test.

This third test is the only one admitted as evidence in court. If the level is .08 to .15 he is subject to prosecution for impaired driving with lesser penalties than for drunken driving.

If the test showed above .15 the driver is subject to penalties now imposed for drunken driving.

All three tests are subject to the state's implied consent law. Refusal to submit to any one could result in loss of a motorists's driving privileges.

Vasconcellos said there was no conflict between his bill and the .10 presumptive limit bill signed by the governor. He said a prosecutor could choose to try his case either under the presumptive limit yaw or the triple test method.

BILL DIES

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—A bill to legalize betting on jal alai is dead for the 1969 session of the Legislature.

The Assembly Ways and Means Committee yesterday killed the measure at the request of its author, Assemblyman John Quimby, R-Rialto.

Quimby said Gov. Ronald Reagan opposed the bill because it would legalize another form of gambling.

"The state is spending millions of dollars annually to build and maintain roads between California and Nevada," the lawmaker said. "I'm certain that the upkeep and the snow removal funds we're spending on these roads is not so Californians can travel to listen to the Mormon Tabernacle Choir.

"They're going to Las Vegas and Reno to gamble," he said.

"If California's taxpayers are going to be taken by the state, let them enjoy parting with their money on a voluntary basis."

Quimby said pari-mutuel betting on the handball-like sport eventually would bring the state $40 million annually.

The committee killed the bill by officially taking it under submission.

HIRING CHAT

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—Gov. Ronald Reagan told a Japanese columnist yesterday that his administration has hired more minority group members for management positions than any other administration in California history.

Reagan made the statement in reply to a question at his weekly news conference from Kaoru Nakamaru, a syndicated political columnist for Mainichi newspapers.

The newspaper woman from Tokyo, who is touring America for three weeks interviewing political and business leaders, asked the governor about his policy toward helping Negroes have a better life.

"My administration has appointed in state government more minority community members to policy making position, management positions, than any other administration in the history of this state," Reagan said.

LACKS HELP

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Assembly Democratic leader Jesse M. Unruh's effort to funnel $16.3 million into college educations for minority youths died late yesterday without Republican support.

Unruh got solid Democratic support in the Assembly Ways and Means committee. But he needed the votes of two Republicans to add to the eight Democrats to clear the bill through the 19-member committee.

GOP members included to favor Unruh's Educational Opportunities Program (EOP) refused to go against the adamant opposition of chairman Frank Lanterman R-La Canada.

DEAD ISSUE

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—State regulation of credit reporting agencies today was a dead issue in the Legislature for this session.

The Assembly Ways and Means Committee last night killed a bill by Assemblyman James A. Hayes, R-Long Beach, requiring licensing of credit reporting agencies.

The same measure by Sen. Alfred E. Alquist, D-San Jose, was killed by the Senate earlier in the session.

The bill by Hayes also would have opened credit files to persons who complained false, misleading or inaccurate information jeopardized their credit ratings and employment.

BOND HIKE

SACRAMENTO (AP)—A Senate-passed bill to raise from 5 to 7 per cent the maximum interest rate on general obligation bonds moved today to the full Assembly.

The measure, by Sen. Gordon Cologne. R-Indio, one of several designed to make California bonds more competitive in the current high-interest market, was approved unanimously last night by the Assembly Ways and Means Committee.

The bill is aimed primarily at helping the financially troubled State Water Project, one of several state projects suffering from a lack of bond revenue.

Larkspur Planners Favor Sign Redesign

The Larkspur Planning Commission last night agreed that the fascia board of Disco at 1 Larkspur Plaza — now painted red, white and blue stripes — should be repainted all one color in either earth or wood tones.

Store manager Adrian Hamilton told the commission he will consult with his Los Angeles office and if it approves the change, he will submit a paint color to the Larkspur Planning staff for its approval.

Pacific Fishery Conclave Slated

LIMA, Peru (AP) — The United States will meet with Peru, Ecuador and Chile July 30 in an effort to solve a Pacific fishing dispute that has created serious diplomatic rifts.

Secretary-General Alejandro Deustua of the Peruvian Foreign Ministry announced last night the three South American nations had agreed to a U.S. invitation for the talks in Buenos Aires.

The announcement confirmed earlier unofficial reports that discussions would begin soon after Washington agreed to lift its ban on arms sales to Peru and Ecuador.

Olema Water Rate Arguments Are Due

Arguments will be filed by the Olema Water System and the California Public Utilities Commission staff with regard to the corporation's request for a 200 per cent increase in water rates.

A commission opionion is expected in two months, commission examiner John C. Gilman said today. Rates for the 28 water users, now $2.74 a month average, would be $7.41 if the request is approved.

The subject was taken under submission by the commission following a hearing July 1-2 at Point Reyes Station.

Attorney J. Thomas Hannan, representing the PUC, said at the hearing that the corporation has operated at a substantial loss for many years, has had no rate increase in over 20 years and cannot finance the $7,000 in suggested improvements.

Richard C. St. John, commission engineer, testifed that the $7,000 is sought to improve the water pressue and that there have been unsatisfactory reports on Olema water from the Marin County Health Department. The commission staff recommended an approximate 100 per cent increase, Gilman reported.

Teen Driver's Car Bumps Child

A 4-year-old Novato boy received a bump on his head when he ran in front of a car at 8:05 p.m., yesterday in front of 822 McClay Road, Novato, according to police.

Treated at Kaiser Foundation Hospital in San Rafael was Louis R. Carrara of 10 Nogales Court, Novato.

The driver of the car, Mary Jo White, 18, of 1661 Novato Boulevord, Novato, was southbound in McClay Road, told police she slammed on her brakes but could not avoid the child.

Safeguard Secret Talks Postponed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate postponed today a secret session on the Safeguard program and potential Soviet threats, but agreed to hold a closed meeting later limited to senators only.

Sen. John G. Tower, R-Tex., led the demand that all staff members be excluded from any secret session. He was joined by Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield who said, "We have a hard enough time keeping our own mouths closed."

Chairman John Stennis, D-Miss., of the Armed Services Committee wants a closed-door session to outline the potential Soviet threat.

Although there was general agreement to hold a secret session at a later date, Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen made clear any GOP member objecting to closed doors would be recognized to make a motion to go into open session. Such a move would require a majority vote.

Meanwhile, leaders of a bipartisan effort to limit the program to research while prohibiting any antimissile deployment or site acquisition say they expect a lengthy debate but are confident of victory.

Sen. John Sherman Cooper, R-Ky., and Philip A. Hart, D-Mich., prepared an amendment to block the Safeguard proposal for introduction today, as debate on the entire antiballistic tered its second day.

"It is unlikely that there would be any precipitate action," Hart told reporters.

Cooper said "I have always thought that we would have a majority. I still do."

Their amendment would not cut any of the $759.1 million in funds earmarked for Safeguard but would limit the use of research, development, testing and evaluation, plus "normal procurement incident thereto," mainly at the Kwajelein Islands test facility.

In addition, it would bar use of any funds—including that carried over from previous years—for deployment of an ABM system or for purchase of any sites for such a system.

50 YEARS A GROCER

He Likes Folks, Not Hippies, Taxes

By LARRY D. HATFIELD

James B. (Jimmy) Mayers is a pink-cheeked, friendly man who has a staccato laugh that sounds a little like hailstones rolling off a tine roof.

He still works seven days a week, although his hours aren't as long as they used to be, and drinks ("about four highballs") only on special days like his birthday, Thanksgiving and Christmas.

He doesn't like taxes or beatniks and wishes both would go away.

He likes people ("except for the beatniks") and has a "Be a Good Guy" sticker pasted on his refrigerator.

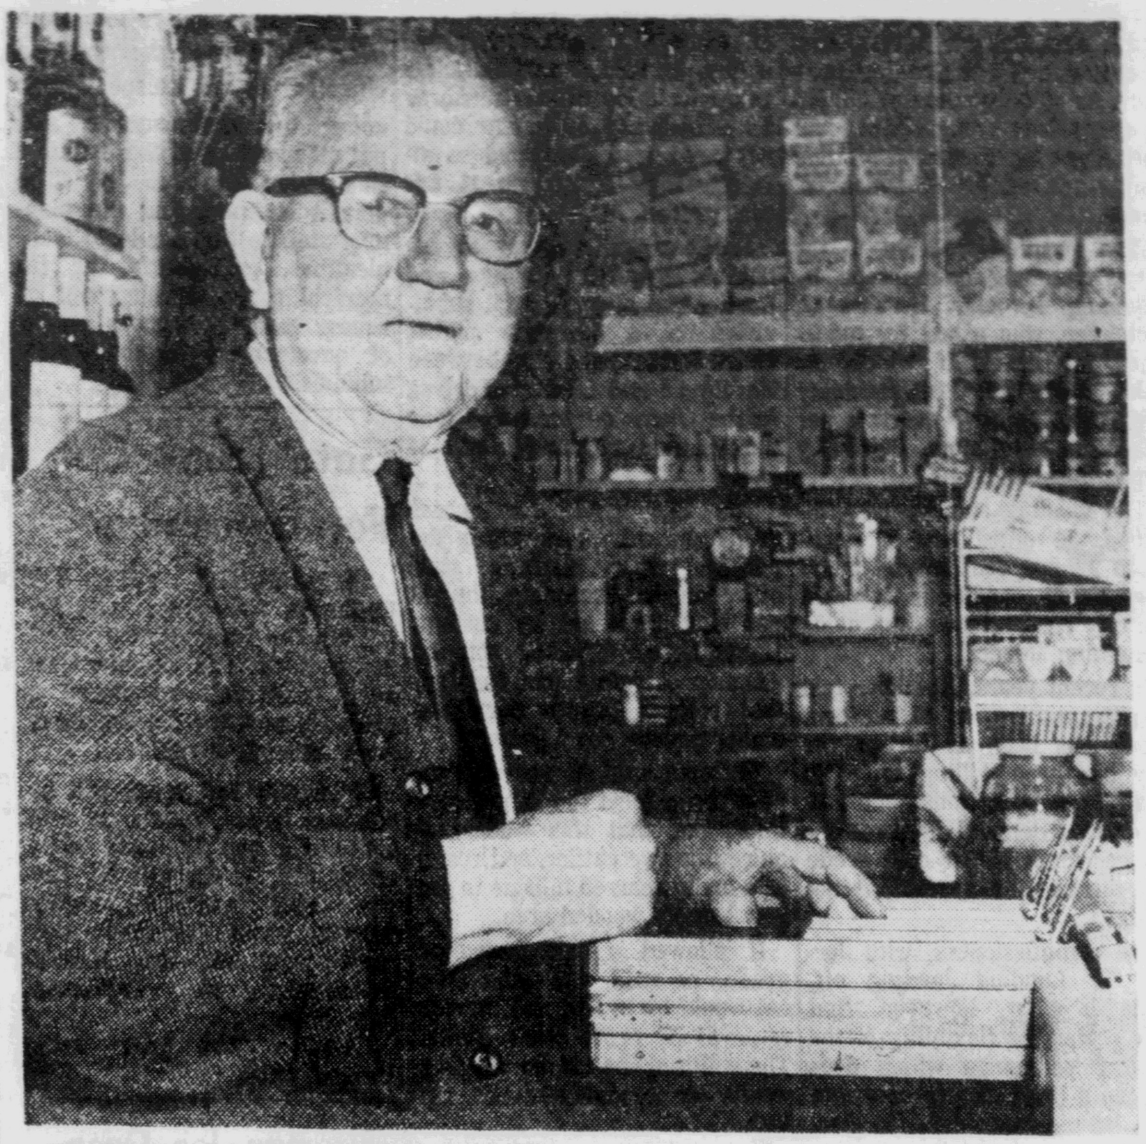
Mayers recently passed two important milestones: completing 50 years of selling groceries from the same store and celebrating his 80th birthday on April 15. Of that latter date, Mayers sayd, "That's a bad day, a terrible day. It's when the government takes all your money."

Standing in his Shoreline Highway grocery the other day, he interspersed some friendly homilizing and philosophizing on a variety of subjects with waiting on a steady stream of customers, most of them calling him Jim.



STAYING AT THE SAME STAND —Jimmy Mayers, recently honored by the board of supervisors, says he doesn't intend to retire from his grocery store where he has been for 50 years. "That's what kills you off," he says. Besides, he says, if he sold out, the government would get most of the money (Independent-Journal photo)

Taxes and beatniks (he never once used the more current word, hippie, for Marin's less orthodox visitors) bother him most.

On taxes, he said that when he came to Stinson Beach in 1919 from Maine ("I'm a Maine-ac," he says as his laugh crackles the air), the levy on his grocery store was only $130. Now it's up to $900.

"I don't call it taxes anymore," he says, his eyes sparking. "I call it rent. The county's renting to me but they don't pay for the upkeep. I have to do that."

On beatniks, he said, "They chased them out of Muir Beach. I think they're all coming up here." To a customer who asked for a jug of low-priced red wine, he said, "Only the beatniks drink that. We carry good wines."

"I don't particularly like the beatniks," he said. "They're hard to wait on. Not only that, they steal too much." Then, combining his concern about both taxes and beatniks, Mayers lamented about "welfare — that's where our taxes go."

He stopped to joke with a middle-aged customer, asking him to produce his I-D before buying some beer. He then introduced his cat ("he has to meet everybody") and showed a copy of the resolution passed recently by the Board of Supervisors saluting him on his birthday.

Accompanying the resolution was a congratulatory letter from Supervisor Louis H. Baar, whom he calls Buddy.

When he and his wife first came to Stinson Beach 50 years ago, one had to take the railroad from Mill Valley to West Point, then take a two-horse stage with leather springs on over the mountain.

"This right here (his store) was a wheat field," Mayers said. "The man who used to drive the stage had his horses here." There was only one building at that time on the other side of the road which is now lined with buildings of various shapes and purposes.

He chose Stinson because he liked the outdoors, he said, and "used to hike over here 50 Sundays out of the year" after coming from San Francisco by ferry.

He remembers when the townspeople got together and paved what is now busy Highway 1 with crushed red rock and still later when it was paved with concrete.

Stinson really started to grow, he recalled, during the heydey of Marinship in Sausalito during World War II. Greyhound, in contrast to its present one-a-day schedule, ran regular shuttle service to Stinson Beach for the shipworkers.

It was also during World War II, he said, that there was great fear in Stinson Beach that it would be the focal point for an invasion from Japan. "They figured on landing here and at Tomales Bay," Mayers, who was an air warden, said. "It was very serious."

Even though he has slowed down some, he doesn't plan to retire. "That's what kills you off. I just don't work too hard anymore." Working seven days a week is good, he says, "because it keeps you healthy."

One other grocery in Stinson has been there almost as long as Mayers' store, although it has changed ownership several times. There's also a new chain food store.

Mayers wife, Belle, helped him at his store until her death four years ago. Indeed, most of his contemporaries are also gone from Stinson now. "They've all passed on, all my friends," he said, his eyes clouding slightly.

Still, he knows everyone in Stinson Beach, he says, "except for the beatniks," and "I like my neighbors."

Farmer's Trick Sort Of Backfires

PORT HURON, Mich. (AP) — On a recent Halloween here a farmer, hoping to scare off pumpkin thieves, put up a sign in his patch reading: "Beware. There is one poison pumpkin in this patch."

He returned to his field to find another sign: "Now there are two."

How To Live On Pensions

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Charles Johnson is a pension collector.

He gets one from the Veterans Administration, one from Social Security and pensions from the telephone company and an insurance agency.

In 1943, after 25 years with Southern Bell, Johnson retired and began selling insurance. In September, 1968, after 25 years on that job, he reitred again.

Johnson, a veteran of the Spanish-American War, still drives his car, although he is 90 years of age.

Hand Crankers On The Way Out

ELIZABETHTOWN, Ky. (AP) — Kentucky's last handcranked telephone system is on the way out.

The state authorized General Telephone Company to install modern dial equipment by the middle of 1969 to serve the Upton exchange in Hardin County. Upton's 325 customers have been using old-time phones provided by the Farmers Telephone Company.

Planners Move Picnic Valley Apartment Row On To Council

The 40-unit apartment house in Picnic Valley, which has for weeks placed San Rafael planning commissioners in the middle of a neighborhood controversy, was given architectural approval by the commissioners last night.

The action — which the obviously relieved commission chairman, Joseph J. Garbarino, said, "completes our part in this" — was not taken without a final sally by Picnic Valley residents objecting to the project.

Trevor Whitsen, a leader of the residents' group, had asked that the developer, Picnic Hill Properties, chop one apartment off the building fronting on 237 Picnic Avenue and in the space created plant some screening trees. The apartment could be added to another building in the rear, he said. He also asked that one building be lowered by six feet, cutting the hillside to achieve this, so as not spoil neighborhood views.

This, a spokesman for the firm said, wasn't possible. There was no room for addition of the apartment to the other building and lowering the building would leave its occupants staring out at a huge retaining wall necessitated by any cutting.

The commission ruled that the developers had met architectural requirements stated at the previous commission meeting and granted architectural approval subject to various conditions as to drainage, street widening in front and adequacy of driveway.

The end of the matter did not appear in sight, however, as Planning Director Herbert G. Hotchner reminded the residents they have on file an appeal to the city council both from the use permit and the architectural approval granted by the commission.

The San Rafael Planning Commission Also:

ROADWAY — Put off till July 22 consideration of plans for a roadway over a sewer line, connecting Irwin Street with Bret Harte Road.

SUBDIVISION — Approved a tentative map for Henry Ghilotti for subdivision of 86,624 square feet into nine lots, averaging 9.624 square feet, on Irwin Street opposite City of San Rafael Park.

CHILD CARE — Denied a variance to Kathryn Cardoza to permit operation of a child care center for 10 children, where she has cared for six for the past eight years at 260 Clorinda Avenue.

CONSTRUCTION YARD — Continued a use permit for Holiday Magic to operate a construction yard at 2155 Francisco Boulevard until January 1970, with automatic extension to Jan. 28, 1972 if by the earlier date the property is included in a drainage assessment district.

DUMP — Granted Maggiora and Ghilotti continuance of a use permit to operate a dump in the 1500 block of Jacoby Street, with a limit of six months and notice that there is no assurance of a further continuance.

PET HOSPITAL — Denied a use permit for a veterinary hospital in Northgate Shopping Center, requested by Northgate Properties, on the ground that it was incompatible with shopping center services.

PARKING — Granted a use permit to Marin County Savings and Loan Association for expansion of its existing parking facilities from 15 to 40 spaces on Court Street between Fifth and Mission avenues, a project requiring demolition of two houses.

SWIMMING — Granted Patricia Del Prete a use permit to conduct swimming lessons and a water safety program at the Villa Rafael Motel pool on Mondays, Tuesdays, Thursdays and Fridays, or on Wednesdays instead of Fridays, the classes limited to four students at a time.

OFFICES — Granted a use permit and architectural approval to Ronald Antonioli for a 19,050-square-foot office building at 77-83 Mark Drive in Northgate Industrial Park, with parking for 68 cars.

APARTMENTS — Granted Rhird Investment Co. a use permit and architectural approval for a 24-unit apartment development at 216 Marin Street, to consist of 12 one-bedroom and 12 two-bedroom units in three buildings.

YACHT CLUB — Granted architectural approval to Marin Yacht Club for building and land improvements at its new location at 24 Summit Avenue.

W. J. SLOANE — Gave architectural approval to expansion of the second floor of existing W. J. Sloane Building in Northgate Shopping Center to add about 10,000 square feet.

BANK — Gave architectural approval to Bank of Marin at 1108 Fifth Avenue for addition of about 4,200 square feet to its third floor penthouse.

FILM SALES — Granted a use permit, with Jorgen V. Lunding dissenting, to Marin Municipal Water District to enable it to rent space to Fotomat Corp. for a 36-foot-square building at 501 Second Street to conduct drive-in film sales. Lunding held this not the best use of the property from the city's standpoint, but he afterwards joined in unanimous approval of the architectural plans as modified by the planning staff.

METAL BUILDINGS — Adopted a policy opposing erection of buildings of metal that had an unfinished appearance, such as aluminum or galvanized iron, and asked the staff to come up with detailed policy as to colors and finishes desired in metal buildigs.

OFFICERS — Agreed to continue present commission officers in office and in the future to select officers at the second meeting each January.

Guilty Plea To Credit Card Count

Kristina May Woodall of San Francisco pleaded guilty yesterday in Marin Municipal Court to a felony charge of signing another person's name to a credit card to buy merchandise to Macy's in San Francisco.

Viet Veteran Gets Second 'Discharge'

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— Vietnam veteran Richard Lee Gentile, of Hampton, Va., has been given two dishonorable discharges from the Army in as many months.

A court-martial board decided yesterday the 21-year-old private, who was convicted of mutiny last month and sentenced to six months in jail and a dishonorable discharge, would not receive additional confinement after pleading guilty to two counts of desertion.

The soldier has five months remaining of the six month sentence handed down at Fort Ord following a nine-week trial for Gentile and 13 other Presidio prisoners who took part in singing sit-down strike at the Presidio last Oct. 14.

The defendants were among 27 stockade prisoners who said they were protesting the shooting death of Pvt. Richard Bunch, 19, when he allegedly tried to escape and poor conditions in the stockade.

The board yesterday gave Gentile his second discharge, to become effective when his jail sentence is served.

Gentile, who was first placed in the stockade for taking part in a peace march, escaped twice while awaiting his trial for mutiny for taking part in the sit-down.

Telephone, telegraph and postal services in Japan are government-operated.

San Rafael Retains Policy On Hillside Road Grades

San Rafael's diminishing flatlands available for development and the resultant growing pressure for development of hillside property was brought into focus last night by discussion of what limits to set for steepness of roads.

The question was put to the city's planning commission by Planning Director Herbert G. Hotchner, who asked for guidelines for his staff which, he said, finds itself increasingly pressed to approve ever steeper roads to ever more loftily perched subdivisions.

The existing subdivision ordinance, he noted sets a maximum 12 per cent grade unless exceptional conditions warrant the city engineer approving something steeper.

In recent years, Hotchner told the commission, an 18 per cent grade has been as far as the city has been willing to go in making exceptions, but now there was demand in some instances for a 25 per cent grade and the end, he warned, is not in sight.

The commissioners, with Jorgen V. Lunding leading off, made it clear, however, that they prefer the flexibility of the existing ordinance which does impose a limit, 12 per cent, but also leaves them free to deal with individual cases.

Roy Hoffman, a San Rafael consulting engineer, who was shorty to present plans for a subdivision requiring 21.6 per cent grades, told the commission, "There are 24,000 acres in San Rafael, over one-third in slope categories of 26 per cent or more." A restricted grade policy, he said, would limit development. He cited Greenbrae as a beautiful area that could not have been developed so attractively if limited to 18 per cent grades.

Hoffman was present on behalf of Security Savings and Loan Association to seek subdivision of a 19.4-acre parcel above Robinhood Drive between Hazelwood and Lockwood drives in the Glenwood area into four parcels and ultimately into 24 lots.

The 21.6 grade for access roads and driveways within the acreage drew planning staff objection to exceeding the 18 per cent limit set by custom. Hotchner objected both on grounds of safety and the fact that steeper grades permitted higher density development.

Hoffman said it was entirely possible to meet the 18 per cent limit, but that this would require massive cutting and result in a badly scarred hillside in the now heavily wooded area.

If allowed a 21.6 per cent grade, he said, the maximum cut would be 15 feet and require removal of 14,500 cubic yards. The width of the cut for grading would be a maximum of 125 feet.

If forced to accept an 18 per cent maximum grade, Hoffman said, cuts would have to be 30 feet with a width of 175 feet and require the removal of 45,000 yards of earth.

Robert Coman, a real estate broker also representing the owner, said the purpose of the steeper grade was solely "to retain the beauty of Glenwood and avoid tearing the hillsides apart."

The commissioners told Hoffman and Coman they had no objection to the steeper grade under the circumstances and put off approval of the tentative subdivision map until July 22 to permit Hoffman and the planning staff to iron our legal technicalities, particularly the responsibility for development of access roads at various stages of development of the entire subdivision.

Gate Prices Cut For Exposition

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—The California Exposition, hurt financially by disappointing attendance during its premier last year, yesterday announced a price rollback for the upcoming Aug. 22-Sept. 9 run.

Children 6 and under will be admitted free. Youths 16 and under will pay 50 cents while adults will be charged $1. The new price schedule roughly reflects rates charged two years ago at the Expo's predecessor, the California State Fair.

Adults last year were charged $1.50.

Fireman Job Open

Applications for the position of fireman are now being accepted by the Mill Valley Fire Department. The position, open to men ages 21 to 35, has a salary range of $700 to $849 a month.

GI Is Given Reprieve On Tour Of Duty

FORT DIX, N.J. (UPI) — A soldier who was drafted despite his parents' claim that he is mentally retarded and unfit to serve in the Army, won a permanent reprieve yesterday from pending orders of overseas duty in Germany.

The reprieve for Pvt. Robert J. Hinkle, 21, of Scappose, Ore., was announced by Sen. Mark Hatfield, R-Ore., whose office in May launched an investigation and obtained a postponement of the shipping orders.

The decision to keep Hinkle at Fort Dix until the end of his tour of duty, June 5, 1970, was made by the Coordinating Action Staff of the Department of the Army.

A staff spokesman said, "Private Hinkle has adjusted well to the Fort Dix environment and is performing his duties there in an excellent manner. We believe it would be in the best interest of all concerned to continue his assignment at that military base instead of sending him to Germany."

When Hinkle was drafted late last year, he was destined for Vietnam. His father, Robert R. Hinkle, lost a federal court battle in February to have his son discharged on contention that the soldier had the mind of a 10-year-old child.

The Army suspended plans to send him to Vietnam.

ORANGE CHOCOLATE nut bombe and cassata are two "do-ahead" desserts lovely enough to serve at any summer dinner party. The secret of their ease of preparation is in the skillful use of prepared pudding mixes, which enable the cook to "bake" them in the refrigerator.

Elegant Desserts For Summer Dinner

Every hostess knows that a light, lovely dessert is the proper ending for any warm weather dinner party, but often she prefers not to heat the oven preparing such a confection. Modern cooks depend on pudding-based desserts that "bake" to perfection in the freezer or refrigerator.

These desserts can be company - bright and party - special. Home economists have adapted several complicated European recipes for American convenience-minded housewives. Capturing the elegance of true continental dining, the desserts are easily made. The secret of their simple preparation is in the skillful use of prepared pudding mixes. They add creamy richness and just the right amount of subtle flavoring and the resulting dessert closely echoes their European counterparts.

Orange Chocolate Nut Bombe, adapted from a French recipe, is a truly fascinating no-bake dessert. It features an elegant orange sherbet mold with a surprise rich chocolate nut filling. Ideal party fare, it can be made the day before so that you don't have to fuss with the dessert on the day of the dinner. Line your prettiest mold with tangy orange sherbet. Then fill with the luscious chocolate nut pudding and cream combination, sparked with orange flavoring. No need to bother melting chocolate or chopping nuts for this. The pudding mix contains exactly the right amount of each.

Place the filled mold in the freezer and your dessert worries are over. Just before serving, unmold on a pretty plate. Surround with rosettes of whipped cream, each centered with a colorful wedge of orange. The orange and chocolate combination of the bombe is truly pleasing to the eye as well as to the taste.

CASSATA, inspired by the Italian dessert, is a lovely creamy cake, made with frozen pound cake. When defrosted, the pound cake is sliced and spread with a special filling. This filling is whipped up with vanilla pudding mix, rich cream cheese and exotic orange liqueur. It is chilled and then mixed with heavy cream, dark chocolate and pretty candied fruits. The flavors mingle into a delectable combination while the cake "bakes" in the refrigerator. Ice with a bittersweet mocha frosting and you'll have a large party cake, sure to please the most exacting guest . . . and hostess.

There are many other desserts you can prepare that require no baking. Use packaged pudding and pie-filling mixes, creating your own elegant offerings of souffles, creamy pies and cakes. You and your guests will love "cooling it" with no-bake desserts!

CASSATA

2 packages (12 ounces each) frozen pound cake
1 package (3⅝ ounces) vanilla pudding
½ cup milk
1 cup (½ pint) heavy cream
1 package (8 ounces) cream cheese, softened
2 tablespoons Grand Marnier or other orange liqueur
1 ounce semi-sweet chocolate, shaved
2 tablespoons chopped mixed candied fruit
½ cup heavy cream, whipped
12 ounces semi-sweet chocolate
¾ cup strong black coffee
½ pound sweet butter
Nut slivers for garnish

Slice each cake into 5 slices lengthwise. (These cakes are used end to end to form one long narrow cake.) Set aside on serving paltter end to end. Combine pudding mix, milk and cream in saucepan. Cook over medium heat until quite thick. Beat in cream cheese and liqueur until smooth. Place covered wiht plastic wrap, in the refrigerator until well chilled. (1 to 2 hours, depending on temperature. Be sure the mixture is well chilled, so that the chocolate to be added will not melt). Fold in chocolate shavings, fruit and whipped cream. Spread between all the cake slices, ending with cake on top. Press cake together, gently. Chill 1 hour. Combine chocolate and coffee in a saucepan. Melt slowly over low heat, stirring constantly. Beat in butter. Chill until thick enough to spread on cake, an hour or so. (This can be chilling while first part of filling is chilling.) Spread cake with chocolate frosting, in decorative swirls. Garnish with nut slivers. When serving, cut with a sharp serrated-edge knife, using a sawing motion. Makes one large loaf cake or about 10 servings.

ORANGE CHOCOLATE CHOCOLATE NUT BOMBE

1 quart orange sherbet
1 package (3⅝ ounces) chocolate nut pudding
2 cups milk
½ pint heavy cream
1 tablespoon orange extract

Partially thaw sherbet and whip until it is a spreadable consistency. Press it quickly and firmly into the bottom and sides of a 1½ quart (6-cup) mold (Melon mold or any shape). This should line the setire mold. Place in freezer until hard (about 2 hours). Meanwhile, combine chocolate nut pudding and milk, prepareing pudding and milk, preparing directions. Chill thoroughly, about 2 hours, whip chilled pudding. Whip heavy cream until stiff and fold in orange extract. Fold together whipped cream and chilled pudding. Pour into sherbet lined mold and freeze until solid, overnight. Cover with paper, cut to fit mold. Once bombe is frozen, strip off paper. Chill serving plate. Just before serving, unmold bombe. To unmold, dip mold into hot water for about 5 seconds. Dry mold and turn upside down on the cold plate. Garnish with rosettes of whipped cream. Cut thin orange slices into small wedges and place in the center of each rosette. Makes 8-10 servings.

Try Your Hand At Making Favorite Sour Dough Bread

In bread-making, as in most things, America has borrowed profusely from other lands. Over the years Old World favorites have become translated through innovation into something uniquely our own.

Sour dough bread became identified with America because of the Alaskan "sour doughs" — prospectors who carried pots of sour dough starter so they could make bread out in the gold fields. However, this type of bread actually dates back several millenniums before the discovery of America. In fact, it is believed to be the oldest of all breads.

Sour dough starter is simply a self-perpetuating yeast mixture. With modern active dry yeast so readily available, there is no longer any need to keep starter doughs. However, this type of bread has a unique flavor which makes it in great demand — particularly on the West Coast. Sour dough bread can be prepared at home using a modern version of the old starter dough prepared with active dry yeast.

SOUR DOUGH BREAD STARTER

1¾ cups unsifted flour
1 tablespoon sugar
1 tablespoon salt
1 package active dry yeast
2½ cups warm water

DOUGH

5 to 6 cups unsifted flour
3 tablespoons sugar
1 teaspoon salt
1 package active dry yeast
1 cup milk
2 tablespoons margarine
1½ cups starter

To make starter, combine flour, sugar, salt and undissolved active dry yeast in a large bowl. Gradually add warm water to dry ingredients and beat 2 minutes at medium speed of electric mixer, scraping bowl occasionally. Cover; let stand at room temperature (78-80°F.) 4 days. Stir down daily.

To make dough, combine 1 cup flour, sugar, salt and undissolved active dry yeast in a large bowl.

Combine milk and margarine in a saucepan. Heat over low heat until liquid is warm. (Margarine does not need to melt.) Gradually add to dry ingredients and beat 2 minutes at medium speed of electric mixer, scraping bowl occasionally. Add 1½ cups starter and 1 cup flour, or enough flour to make a thick batter. Beat at high speed 2 minutes, scraping bowl occasionally. Stir in enough additional flour to make a soft dough. Turn out onto lightly floured board; knead until smooth and elastic, about 8 to 10 minutes. Place in greased bowl, turning to grease top. Cover; let rise in warm place, free from draft, until doubled in bulk, about 1 hour.

Punch dough down; turn out onto lightly floured board. Let rest 15 minutes. Divide dough in half. Shape each half into loaf and place in greased 9x5x3-inch loaf pan. Cover; let rise in warm place, free from draft, until doubled in bulk, about 1 hour.

Bake in hot oven (400°F.) about 30 minutes, or until done. Remove from pans and cool on wire racks.

TO REUSE STARTER: Add 1½ cups lukewarm water, ¾ cup unsifted flour and 1½ teaspoons sugar to unused starter. Beat for 1 minute at medium speed of electric mixer. Cover and let stand until ready to make bread again. Stir down daily.

Parker House Rolls have their roots deep in our American heritage. They originated in the early days of Boston's Parker House hotel. It is said that a temperamental pastry cook, flying into a rage, snatched up pieces of dough, squeezed them in his fist, and flung them into the oven. The rolls emerged in the shape we know so well, creased through the center. The new shape was greatly admired and the rolls became an American classic.

This recipe for Parker House Rolls is prepared by the method which eliminates the step of dissolving yeast in warm water before blending in other ingredients. The method treats the yeast as a dry ingredient, adding it with the flour, sugar and salt. In addition, initial beating is done with an electric mixer which not only facilitates mixing but makes doughs that are lighter and easier to handle.

PARKER HOUSE ROLLS

2¾ to 3¼ cups unsifted flour
¼ cup sugar
½ teaspoon salt
1 package active dry yeast
5 tablespoons softened margarine
⅔ cup very hot tap water
1 egg (at room temperature)
Melted margarine

In a large bowl thoroughly mix ¾ cup flour, sugar, salt and undissolved active dry yeast. Add softened margarine. Gradually add very hot tap water to dry ingredients and beat 2 minutes at medium speed of electric mixer, scraping bowl occasionally. Add egg and ½ cup flour, or enough flour to make a thick batter. Beat at high speed 2 minutes, scraping bowl occasionally. Stir in enough additional flour to make a soft dough. Turn out onto lightly floured board; knead until smooth and elastic, about 8 to 10 minutes. Place in greased bowl, turning to grease top. Cover; let rise in a warm place, free from draft, until doubled in bulk, about 1 hour.

Punch dough down; turn out onto lightly floured board. Divide dough in half. Roll each half into a ¼ inch thick circle. Cut into rounds with a 2½ inch biscuit cutter. Crease each round with dull edge of knife to one side of center. Brush each round with melted margarine to within ¼-inch of the edges. Fold larger side over smaller so edges just meet. Pinch well with fingers to seal. Place on greased baking sheets so rolls are almost touching. Cover; let rise in a warm place, free from draft, until doubled in bulk, about 1 hour.

Carefully brush rolls with melted margarine. Bake in a hot oven (400°F.) about 10 to 15 minutes, or until done. Remove from baking sheets and cool on wire racks. Makes 2 to 3 dozen rolls.

Tiny Cheese Biscuits

Tiny cheese biscuits can be made from pancake mix.

Cut 1 tablespoon of shortening and ¼ cup of grated cheese into 1 cup of pancake mix until the mixture resembles coarse crumbs. Add 1-3 cup of milk and stir until mixture is dampened. Turn out on lightly floured board or canvas; knead gently. Roll dough to ½ inch thickness. Cut into small rounds. Bake on ungreased cookie sheet in preheated 425-degree oven 12 to 15 minutes. Makes 24 tiny biscuits.

Cake 'N Cups Deceiving, Delicious

What looks like a crunchy ice cream cup filled with ice cream and topped with marshmallow, turns out to be a chocolate cake piled high with icing and made festive with chocolate shot and cake decorations.

These party-going Cake 'n Cups are simplicity itself to make. Begin with a mix-made batter, pour into the ice cream cups, bake, pile high with frosting and decorate.

This no-work baking will rate your cheers, too, because everything comes from a package. Cake, ice cream cups, and frosting. And when these cakes are baked you have nothing to clean up, ice cream cups are eaten with the cake.

CAKE 'N CUPS

1 9 oz. package cake mix
12 chocolate ice cream cups
Canned or packaged frosting mix
Cake decorations

Heat oven to 350°F. Prepare cake batter as directed on the package. Pour approximately 3 tablespoons batter into ice cream cups, filling about ½ full. Set on baking pan or in muffin tins and bake 25 to 30 minutes.

When completely baked, these miniature cakes will rise to about the top of the ice cream cups. Allow cakes to cool. Then to complete the "ice cream cone" picture, mound fluffy white icing over top of the cake, rounding it to resemble a scoop of ice cream. Top with cake decorations and serve. Serves 12.

They're great fun at parties too. To turn them into birthday party treats, top with a miniature candle.

WESTERN BARBECUED LEG OF LAMB
(makes 6 to 8 servings)

¾ leg of lamb, bone in Salt and pepper
Spicy barbecue sauce

Thrust spit of rotisserie through the lamb leg starting at the shank end just above the shank bone and coming out the butt end just below the bone. Test for balance. Sprinkle with salt and pepper. Insert meat thermometer so tip is in center of roast but not touching spit, bone or fat. Cook on rotisserie over coals until thermometer registers 170° for medium, 175° to 180° for well done lamb (allow about 25 to 30 minutes to the pound). After roast has been cooking for 1 hour start basting it with barbecue sauce every 5 or 10 minutes until done.

TO PREVENT FLARE-UPS: Shape a pan or boat of aluminum foil and place under the spit to catch drippings that might otherwise spatter on the coals.

Marin Women

COLLEGE OF MARIN retailing graduate Donna Hamilton finds work in a department store exciting and fulfilling, and wants to ultimately be a buyer for a large store. She works part-time at the Emporium in Northgate Fashion Mall.

Novato Girl Looks To Her Future

The transition from an undecided college student to one who knows exactly which career she wants to pursue isn't always an easy one.

For Donna Hamilton of Novato it was the visit to foreign ports on the world campus afloat program that triggered her decision to study toward a career in retailing and the fashion world.

Graduated last month from the College of Marin's retailing program, Donna is now quite sure where she is going both in terms of completing her education and becoming a buying executive for a retail department store. And she is combining studies with practical work experience while still a college student.

Donna was graduated with an Associate in Arts degree this June with never an anxious moment about admission to the university of her choice for completion of upper division work. Acceptance at the University of California Berkeley campus was virtually assured by her grade point average. She was on the dean's list with two semesters at 3.75, and two semesters with the rare and coveted 4.00 grade point average.

Winning scholarships came easy, too. While a student at Novato High School, she won the chamber of commerce scholarship for a student planning to enter College of Marin. This was the first of several more scholarships she won while a student at Marin. Her career goals were undecided then, and she began her studies by concentrating in the subject she enjoyed most, music. "I joined the piano ensemble class because I played the piano pretty well," she said, "and later joined the community chorus."

ONE AFTERNOON out of curiosity Donna decided to drop by the College Center and pick up some literature from the man on campus from Chapman College in Orange, representing the World Campus Afloat. 'I thought of it as something I might like to try some day," Donna said. After chatting with the representative and learning a $1,200 scholarship was available and she might be eligible, she applied, won, and much to her own amazement, was in New York in early October, aboard the S. S. Ryndam and ready for her first semester of college work.

"What a dream it was," she recalls.

"THIS WAS REALLY the beginning of my avid interest in retailing and the fashion market," Donna says. She visited such ports as Lisbon, Barcelona, Marseilles, Athens, Rome, Istanbul, Alexandria, Bombay, Ceylon, Bangkok, Kobe and Tokyo, all the while picking up a new interest in international merchandise — envisioning herself someday traveling to these cities as a buyer of fashion and merchandise for a retail store.

Donna returned via Los Angeles just in time to enter the 1967 spring semester at College of Marin. Her expenses have been minor while attending Marin, and she continues to live at home with her parents in Novato, the Rev. and Mrs. L. W. Hamilton, and younger sister, Nancy, 19, who is a College of Marin freshman. Money earned from a part-time job at the Emporium in Northgate as on-the-job training, a requirement toward completing her retailing course at College of Marin, has gone into a savings account to help defray cost of upper division study.

Scholarship money she earned this semester includes $500 from the Fashion Group in San Francisco, where she competed with some 600 Bay Area students and retail store employees, and two other scholarships. She has applied for campus housing at Berkeley, but may find it necessary to commute from Novato, riding with other students.

Donna designs and sews much of her own wardrobe, and completely avoids faddish, far-out clothes and mini skirts. She is 5 feet, 10 inches tall and has a slender, model-like form. Her hobbies all relate to her future career, but she sometimes finds time to usher at the San Francisco Symphony or the ballet, "where we get no pay, but are able to watch the performances," she said.

PART OF THE EXCITEMENT in retailing, she anticipates, will be to watch the sales of items you have personally selected for your store, bearing in mind the practical aspects of your purchases. She has heard much from her instructors, Mrs. Mary Sullivan Roy, and Mrs. Marilyn Schwartz, as to the hazards of overbuying an item that might not sell, and under-buying items that you never dreamed would sell out so fast."

Donna is perfectly at ease with people and feels she has had many advantages as the daughter of a minister. Her father has been pastor of the United Methodist Church in Novato for four years, and has also had parishes in Fallon, Nev.; Grass Valley, Marysville and Fresno. Donna and Nancy have developed poise and confidence in meeting people.

"In no other way could you meet so many new people in such a short time in your neighborhood, than through the church," Donna maintains. Both girls attend meetings with their father, assist in planning church related functions and with the Sunday School. Donna has enjoyed her duties selecting literature and materials for the church.

She has found her two years at College of Marin "all that I could expect from college and more." The retailing class is small, with an average of 20 students graduating each year, yet each student is a part of the campus since they study

DONNA HAMILTON of Novato is spending the summer between her sophomore and junior years of college getting practical experience in retailing. Visiting foreign cities gave her the impetus to work toward a career as a fashion buyer. She will enter the University of California in the fall to pursue studies toward her goal. A top student, Donna also sews most of her own clothes.

Africa And Spain Visited By Mill Valley Couple

By MOLLY MARIN

Many interesting experiences are being reported by Dr. and Mrs. Rodney B. Hartman, who have just returned to Mill Valley from a trip to Africa and Spain that they began on April 7.

The tour party of 19 included friends they have traveled with before, among them Dr. and Mrs. Willard Frier and the John Ongaros of Greenbrae.

Mrs. Hartman described some of the highlights. An unusual one for her at the famed Treetop Inn was getting bitten on the arm by a baby baboon when she had nothing to offer it as it sat on her shoulder. A real shock was learning that the accountant at Paraa Lodge had been killed by a leopard the night before they arrived.

Starting at New York the party flew first to Dakar and then to Johannesburg and while in the area two Kimberley diamond mines were visited. After noting the racial discrimination in South Africa and Salisbury, Rhodesia, the Hartmans found the contrasting situation in the emerging nations very exciting.

Other places they visited were Victoria Falls, Lusaka, and Dar es Salaam, the old sea coast town in Tanzania and the island of Zanzibar, where they stayed at a hotel that was formerly a sultan's palace.

Everywhere the Hartmans were impressed with the beautiful game lodges located right in the bush, and the one at Mt. Kenya partly owned by film star William Holden. They saw many wild animals of all kinds at the Ngorongoro crater and on the Serengeti plains.

They returned several times to Nairobi, and on one trip saw the pygmies living on the border between Uganda and the Congo.

Other fascinating places on their tour of Africa were Addis Ababa, Cairo, Tunis and Algiers, where they stayed at the St. George Hotel, once a palace and the headquarters of Eisenhower during World War II.

Also on their itinerary were Casa Blanca, Marakech, an exciting trip through the Atlas mountains on the edge of the Sahara Desert, Fez and Tangiers.

While in Africa Dr. Hartman had some opportunity to investigate voodoo medicine.

Taking a hydrofoil boat across the Mediterranean, the Hartmans landed in Algeciras in Spain. At Malaga they visited the Harold Schuttes, formerly of Marin, who bought a condominium and have lived there for three years.

After stopping at Madrid the Hartmans flew to London and then home.

Elizabeth Ann Breen Is Saturday Bride

St. Sylvester's Church at Peacock Gap was the setting for the wedding Saturday of Elizabeth Ann Breen and John Frederic Koehler of Los Angeles.

Barbara Breen of San Rafael was maid of honor for her sister, and the bride's other sisters, Margaret, Lucie and Kerry Breen, all of San Rafael, were the bridesmaids. They are daughters of Mr. and Mrs. William J. Breen of San Rafael.

Gary Quigley of Van Nuys served as best man. Ushers were Dale S. Culunis of Milpitas, Gilbert J. Mendonsa of San Rafael and Stephen J. Pelleriti of Fairfax.

A reception followed at Peacock Gap Country Club and the couple left on a wedding trip to Carmel.

The couple will live in Westwood.

The bride was graduated from Holy Family High School in Glendale and the University of San Francisco and received a secondary teaching credential at San Francisco State College. She is a teacher at James Monroe High School in Sepulveda.

Mrs. John Geraghty of San Rafael is her grandmother.

Mrs. James P. Mulkern of Victorville is John's mother. He is a graduate of San Rafael High School and Yale University with a degree from the Institute of Far Eastern Languages. He is employed in Santa Monica.

Being 'Just Interested' Is Key To Mental Finesse Says Woman

MIAMI, Fla., (UPI) — Lita Quejado says she is "just interested" in other things she does and the people she meets.

If you have trouble remembering names and such, perhaps you ought to try the "just interested" approach — which Miss Quejado credits for her fantastic memory.

SHE REMEMBERS names, dates, sports scores, can recite the first paragraph of every book she's read, and assorted oddments — like the name of the music critic who didn't like Margaret Truman's singing.

Miss Quejado won $32,000 on the old television show, $64,000 Question, for that bit of knowledge.

Born in the Philippines, she was adopted by a naval officer who married her mother during World War II. She said she is of Spanish, Chinese, Philippine and other extractions.

"I'm a walking United Nations," she said.

DURING THE WAR, cut off from many material goods and conveniences, she amused herself by inventing educational games that challenged her power to recall. The training helped her zoom through schools of all sorts.

Miss Quejado's degrees include a doctorate in law. The ex-quiz queen, now vice president of a bank, spends spare time talking on the phone to bachelors or whizzing about in her Mercedes—the latter being a universal sign that one has arrived financially.

THE LADY BANKER says men usually are overawed by her mental finesse and tend to treat her as a novelty rather than as a person.

"Men don't like women to be too competent," she said.

Also: imagine the trembling knees of a guy who considers dating a gal who has a memory like a computer.

TAKE THE CASE of the poor chap who suggested a moonlight stroll down the beach.

"But you told me you didn't like to walk," Miss Quejado reminded him.

Such contradictions in conversation register "tilt" in her memory bank. The "tilts" have deflated many a smooth-talker's tried and tested battle plan to romance.

Melinda McKown Is Bride Of Robert Homes

The Carmel Valley Community Chapel was the setting for the June 28 wedding of Melinda McKown of San Rafael and Robert Paul Holmes of Carmel Valley. The J. R. McKowns of San Rafael are Melinda's parents.

Attendants for the bridal pair were Wendy Strom, a student at the University of California at Davis, as maid of honor and Dr. Jack Copeland of San Diego as best man. Ushers were Al Nishimura and Steve Johnson of Carmel Valley and Larry Ritter of San Rafael.

Following a reception at the Carmel Valley Golf Club the couple took a wedding trip to Lake Tahoe, Woodland Hills, Newport and Disneyland. They will live in San Jose.

Melinda is a graduate of San Rafael High School and has completed two years at San Jose State College. She is the sister of Mrs. Larry Ritter and of Mrs. William Yeo of Edmonds, Wash.

Mr. and Mrs. John Holmes of Carmel Valley are Robert's parents. He was graduated from San Jose State College, where he is studying toward a masters degree.

Petersen-Spindt Vows Read At Saturday Rite

Alan Moore Petersen wed Helen-Marie Christine Spindt Saturday afternoon at St. John's Episcopal Church in Ross. A reception in Magnolia Court on Maple Lawn of the Elks Club in San Rafael followed the ceremony.

Mrs. Charles Spindt of Menlo Park was matron of honor for her sister-in-law. The bridegroom's brother, Robert John Petersen of Fairfax, was best man, and William Sawyer of Long Beach, Max Dietrich of La Canada, Dale Gardner of Mill Valley and the bride's brother, Charles Spindt, ushered.

Chris, as the bride is known, is a graduate of Los Banos High School and Oregon State University, where she was a member of Chi Omega sorority. Prior to her marriage she taught home economics for eight years at San Rafael High School. Her parents are Mr. and Mrs. Lester James Spindt of Los Banos.

Alan is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Johannes Petersen of San Rafael. He is a graduate of San Rafael High School and Oregon State University, where he was a member of Alpha Tau Omega fraternity. The bridegroom is a buyer for Broadway Department Stores in Los Angeles.

The couple will live in Long Beach when they return from a wedding trip to Hawaii.

HELEN HELP US!

By HELEN BOTTEL

Can Two Separate Generations Be Described By One Word?

DEAR HELEN:

If you had just one word to describe the present "now" generation: — those under 25 — what would it be? And what's your one-wonder for us oldsters over the hill at 30-plus? — ASKER

DEAR ASKER:

I'll take a crack at it:

One-word description of the Under-5 Generation? I'd call them "Questioners." They're taking long hard looks at every area of our lives and asking, "Why must things be this way?," "How can we change them for the better?" Let's hope they follow through on that last question (and I think they will) before they hunker down in stolid, uncaring middle age!

The word for "over-30 oldsters?" How about "Paranoid?" This doesn't apply to all of us, thank goodness, but a sizeable number are downright handwringers. They're fearful of the temptations their children face — they're even afraid of their children! They're scared to go out on the streets at night; they don't trust their neighbors or the repairman, or the government, or even their psychiatrists. They resist change, and are affronted by the questioners who demand it. They're often afraid to say what they think because they might tread on the toes of someone who can hurt them!

Now, all of us aren't paranoid about all these things, but few of us can truthfully say we aren't slowed down by certain fear hang-ups. And many just plain aren't necessary, if we'd dissect and examine them — and thus pare them down to size. — H.

DEAR HELEN:

It's a free country, true, but don't you think we can overdo the bickering over little things? I mean the moon-flyers' earthy comments. They said what they felt like saying, and I thoght it was very human. Yet some people were so shocked they are still writing letters to the editor about how our astronauts should "think of their position and their influence on the young." Now what young person old enough to watch a space flight hasn't heard "son of a bitch," and that other descriptive phrase?

Another thing: I understand certain anti-religious people stirred up such a snit that the astronauts are no longer allowed to quote scriptures to describe the grandeur of outer space. (Note from H: Check again. I doubt this.)

Must we be so little when we're accomplishing something so big? — DISGUSTED

DEAR DIS:

As I've said many, many times before, only a few are this "picky." Because their comments cause controversy, they make the headlines. — H.

DEAR HELEN:

My father was an alcoholic. Now I am married to a man who thinks there's nothing wrong in drinking and swears he'll always remain a "social drinker."

After a big argument, he called me from a bar and said he'd be home in a couple of hours. I know he is trying to punish me, but how could he be so cruel? — FRIGHTENED

DEAR FRIGHTENED:

How can you be so "paranoid?" All social drinkers don't become alcoholics any more than all cake-eaters become obese. Expect moderation, not abstinence from your husband, and I think he'll enjoy his before-dinner cocktail at home. — H.

Maybe Johnny Didn't Crawl

By ARLEEN ABRAHAMS
By ASSOCIATED PRESS

If Johnny can't read properly — and if as a result he is an academic failure or an underachiever — chances are he never learned to creep, crawl or cross-pattern walk properly either. Johnny may be neurologically underdeveloped.

"Although Johnny's meurological underdevelopment may be caused by a birth defect or by his being a premature baby, in the majority of cases it is likely that Johnny is a normal child who is a victim of overprotectiveness on the part of parents who didn't permit him to move about freely on the floor, as nature intended," warns Robert Morris, whose belief in the "fourth dimension" in educational development — neurological organization — led to his founding the University of Plano (Tex.) in 1965.

"You see," explains the Fordham Law School graduate and past president of the University of Dallas, "each experience a child undergoes — crawling, creeping, cross-pattern walking — helps develop a diferent layer of the brain. If brain development proceeds in an orderly path the result is a dominantly controlled hemisphere of the brain — a definite one-sidedness."

However, if a child misses one stage of development, incomplete dominance is a likely result and vision, speech, motor and verbal performances will be visibly affected," sayd Dr. Morris.

"Because one eye may move forward while the other takes him backward, the child may reverse words in reading — saw for was.

(If speech is affected — although vision is usually the prime casualty — hesitation between the two halves of the brain in determining dominance results in stammering or stuttering.)

Since reading is the gateway to learning, says Dr. Morris, a child may miss a great deal and will tend to be a poor student. A child with a good IQ, he contends, may learn to compensate and get by on his wits.

"But in higher grades — particularly high school or college — when heavy reading and cramming are necessary, the original weakness will show up.

"An estimated 40 per cent of all high school and college dropouts are neurologically underdeveloped," he says.

Now, at the University of Plano's College of Developmental Education, such youngsters are getting a second chance. For at least one hour every day, approximately 200 boys and girls (although the trait predominates in boys 5-1) go through the stages of creeping, crawling and cross-pattern walking—the developmental patterns of infancy.

After training, says Dr. Morris, many students originally not considered college material successfully bridge the gap and go on to the Plano Liberal Arts College or to other accredited colleges and universities.

"It isn't unusual for a youngster after training to increase his IQ by as much as 10 points. The actual IQ doesn't shoot up, but now the youngster is able to express his full potential."

The concept came to Dr. Morris when he was faced with obtaining an education for his son William (the fifth of seven children) who had sustained brain injury at birth. Searching for relief, Dr. Morris took Willie to the Institute for Achievement of Human Potential in Philadelphia.

"There a whole new vista opened up. We came to realize that Willie hadn't crept or crawled as an infant. After he was introduced to these steps he improved greatly. He wasn't able to talk until he was three. Then in six weeks he was talking words; six months later he was speaking complete sentences. Now he is achieving slightly under grade."

Dr. Morris looks forward to the day when every university and college will have a program of developmental education. Currently, it is believed that his University of Plano is the only university offering a degree in developmental education enabling graduates to teach it. "Only if every school offers neurological organization to its students, can every student be certain that he is achieving the highest possible performance level of which he is capable," he says.

Novato Girl Receives Scholarship

subjects related to and outside their major. Donna found both anthropology and calculus "the hardest courses for me," and this, she maintains, kept her from her 4 point grade average those two semesters.

DONNA IS LOOKING forward to the big school feel of the Berkeley campus, and would ultimately like to receive her master's degree there, although the executive training programs offered by most department stores accept applicants with a bachelor's degree if they have the recommendations.

Recommendations are assured for Donna. She was one of three students, state-wide, to win the Sears Foundation retailing student of the year award, taking first place for Northern California. Donna stresses, however, she will stick to her studies and to her part-time work until at least a bachelor's degree in business administration has been earned.

U.S. Pop Art Display Astonishes English

LONDON (AP) — Londoners gaped at the city's first major exhibition of United States pop art today, mesmerized by a loudspeaker endlessly belting out Kate Smith's "God Bless America" at the Hayward Gallery on the south bank of the Thames.

The paintings and sculptures were described as a "recurrent iconography"—meaning bottles of Coke, slices of bread, Marlon Brando's cowboy boots, cans of soup, candies, and a host of comic book characters including Alley Oop, Lil Abner, Dick Tracy and Batman.

Crowds were fascinated by Edward Kienholz's "The Portable War Memorial," described in the catalogue as "an environmental construction with operating Coke machine."

The memorial consisted of a blackboard with the names of states no longer in existence, cafe tables, a Coke machine, a two-dimensional man and woman sitting on bar stools, the man holding a three-dimensional dog, capped by a plaster reconstruction of the flag raising on Mount Suribachi by headless U.S. Marines.

"I'm not at all sure this can be called art but I'm having fun," said one elderly spectator.

Film Festival Dates Are Set

Restaurant's Founder Buried

VACAVILLE (AP) — Edwin I. Power, who founded the popular Nut Tree Restaurant in 1921, was buried yesterday at the Vacaville-Elmira Cemetery. He was 76.

His restaurant, one of the most widely known in Northern California, was named for a giant walnut tree beside Highway 40 — now Interstate 80 — where he and his wife, Helen, started their business.

The tree, long gone, offered shade for motirists on the way between San Francisco and Sacrament.

Power was born in San Jose and attended Santa Clara University and the University of California at Davis.

He died at Sutter General Hospital in Sacramento after a long illness.

Symposium Set At University

Dr. Surjit Singh, Baird professor of Christian Philosophy at San Francisco Theological Seminary in San Anselmo will lecture on Karma yoga at the 1969 University of San Francisco Symposium Aug. 7, 8 and 9.

Main symposium topic this year is "Asia: Man the Contemplative."

Several speakers are scheduled for the three-day event that will include oriental dinners, interpretive dance and music. A registration fee will be charged and registration is limited to 100 persons. Information may be obtained by calling or writing the university.

Sounding Board Topic: Fair-Marin

The future with Fair-Marin will be discussed at 9 a.m. tomorrow on the KTIM Sounding Board by a panel including the new Fair-Marin general manager, Leon Kalimos; Harold Stockstad, president of the Fair-Marin board; Mrs. Harold Summers, member of Fair-Marin master plan committee and Pierre W. Joske, Marin County director of parks and recreation.

Questions may be phoned in during the live broadcast. The program, moderated by Kitty Oppenheimer, will be repeated by tape-recording Sunday at 10:05 a.m.

Three-School Cast In 'Oliver!' Tomorrow

Sixty-five students from Redwood, Sir Francis Drake and Tamalpais High Schools will perform in the musical, "Oliver!" to open tomorrow at 8:30 p.m. in Ruby Scott Auditorium, Tamalpais High.

Kathi Wood, a 1969 Redwood High graduate and Corte Madera resident, will act the lead role in the play based on Charles Dickens' "Oliver Twist."

The choice of a girl in the role of one of Fagin's workhouse boys was a "theatricalism," according to Louis R. Casazza, technical director of Drake High. He added that the main thing is the allusion they are trying to create.

"Oliver!" will be given again on Friday and Saturday, July 17 through 19, all at 8:30 p.m. curtain times. There will be a special matinee at 2:30 p.m. next Wednesday.

The students are part of a 5-week course, summer drama-music workshop, at Tamalpais High.

Jamie Norton plays Fagin; Robert Herrmann, the artful dodger; Lynn Phillips, Nancy; Brent Huber, Mr. Bumble. Double cast are Chris McRee and Joel Blum as Bill Sikes; Ann Long and Kathy Quinlan as Bet and Pat Petzar and Cricket Waldech as Widow Corney.

Settings, designed by Casazza, are on wheels to allow fast changes visible to the audience. An admission will be charged.

Inverness District Postpones Session

The Inverness Public Utility District board did not meet last night because its secretary, Alice Cherrigan, wanted to go bowling.

The board will meet at 7:30 p.m. today in the Inverness firehouse at which time it plans to discuss the 1969-70 budget and perhaps set a different meeting date which doesn't interfere with Mrs. Cherrigan's bowling night, director William H. Thompson reported.

Mill Valley Benefit For Firefighters

The 24th annual Mill Valley Firemen's Ball, sponsored by the Mill Valley Volunteer Firemen's Association, will be at 9 p.m. Saturday at the Mill Valley Outdoor Art Club. Music will be provided by Bill Sachs and his band.

Tickets for the party may be obtained from the fire department or at the door. Proceeds will benefit the Volunteer Firemen's Sick and Relief Fund.

Tryouts Are Slated For Musical 'Gypsy'

Tryouts for adults and children for the 51 cast spots in Terra Linda's Way Off Broadway Troupe's production of "Gypsy" will be held at 8 p.m. tomorrow at the Terra Linda Recreation Center.

Cal Admissions Officer Quits

BERKELEY (AP) — David B. Stewart said last night he is resigning as chief admission officer at the University of California because his department is not given enough money.

"I can no longer tolerate the pressures of undergraduate admission at Berkeley with the staff I have and the lack of budgetary support I get," he said.

"The Berkeley campus budget has been continually cut by the legislature and the governor and I get less and less money each year to operate on," he added.

Stewart's resignation is effective Sept. 1. He said he would take a job in the field of educational services with a private firm in San Francisco.

U.S. PROFESSIONS FOUND WANTING

U.C. Professor Calls For New Look In Professions, Education For Them

(Special to the I-J)

LOS ANGELES — America's professions, from engineering and medicine to law and business administration, are not meeting their responsibilities to the public, a UCLA professor charged today on the basis of a 12-year study.

Their failures, he said, are reflected in the deteriorating quality of American life, the level of professional education in colleges and universities, and in increasing student unrest.

To counteract the trends, Dr. Allen B. Rosenstein urged a basic change in the outlook of the professions, a fundamental restructuring of American universities, and creation of a federal National Professions Foundation.

In a book entitled "A Study of a Profession and Professional Education," the UCLA engineering professor scored the professions for not involving themselves in the most pressing social problems of our time and the universities for not preparing future professionals to anticipate the long-range consequences of their activities.

The root causes of what Dr. Rosenstein terms "the crisis in the professions" are two-fold:

The working professional is almost completely oriented toward the needs of the individual client rather than the needs of the public in general.

The future professional as an university student is steeped in research but badly prepared for "a life of action and responsible decision-making."

"As a result," said Dr. Rosenstein, "we perform marvels in space but our air and water are polluted. We win Nobel prizes in medical research, but our infant mortality is such that European obstetricians consider the United States 'an underdeveloped nation.'

"In international trade, we lead in a few research-minded fields, such as computers, aircraft and electronics, but at least 122 of our bread-and-butter manufacturing industries suffer chronic trade deficits. And the law and legal professions, according to a leading law professor, 'have not kept up with the massive alterations in society and government.' "

As a first step in reforming the professions, Dr. Rosenstein recommended that "individually and collectively, the professions must accept public responsibility for their sectors of society. The medical profession must assume responsibility for the health environment, the legal profession for the civil environment, the engineering profession for the physical environment, and the business administrators for the business environment."

Secondly, he urged creation of a National Professions Foundation, along the lines of the existing National Science Foundation, "to provide direction for the discharge of the social responsibilities of the professions" and to support professional schools in seeking solutions to major social problems.

For the universities, Dr. Rosenstein suggested a basic change in the academic structure by dividing undergraduate education among three main colleges — for the humanities, the sciences, and the professions.

"The main function of a common professional undergraduate college would be to educate society's future doers and decision-makers," said Dr. Rosenstein.

The binding tie in the education of future engineers, doctors, lawyers and businessmen is the preparation for decision-making, or, as the UCLA professor termed it, the discipline of design.

To Dr. Rosenstein, design is the distinctive and crucial skill of the professional, which distinguishes him from the humanist's cultural and artistic functions and the scientist's exploration of nature.

Dr. Rosenstein's findings and recommendations grew out of a 12-year study by the UCLA engineering faculty which started as a detailed analysis of every course taught to UCLA engineering undergraduates and expanded into a broad study of the functions and goals of the professions and the effectiveness of their education.

The study, ultimately known as the Educational Development Program, was primarily supported by a $1,200,000 grant from the Ford Foundation. It resulted in the publication of 13 major reports, of which Dr. Rosenstein's current book is the final one.

Dr. Rosenstein found the painstaking investigation of a university curriculum "the most valuable education I have ever received — for the first time I saw the whole educational process in perspective."

He recommended the same sort of self-education to restless students, who feel frustrated when their deeply-felt demands for "more relevance" in their studies are stymied by a lack of facts on which to base change.

"The present generation of students can become a constructive and creative force for educational change," said Dr. Rosenstein. "But at the present time, these students cannot really make any knowledgeable recommendations because they don't know how the pieces of the curriculum fit together, what are the possible alternatives for change, or how applicable their courses are to their future roles in society."

Old Mint Talks In Washington

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Hearings by the National Advisory Council on Historic Preservation concerning San Francisco's abandoned Old Mint will be held in Washington, D.C., Rep. Phillip Burton, D-Calif., said Monday.

Burton had urged that the hearings be held here.

Council hearings are necessary before the building at Fifth and Mission streets could be given by the Federal government to San Francisco State College which wants to raze it and construct a downtown educational center.

San Francisco's supervisors want the structure preserved.

Burgler Claims Gun, Recorder

John M. Hamren of 13 Zephyr Court, Lucas Valley, reported to the sheriff's department that when he arrived home Sunday from a vacation he discovered his house had been burglarized, deputies said yesterday.

Missing were a tape recorder, microphone, a revolver with holster and belt, an ammunition pouch containing 15 rounds of ammunition, 30 records, an amethyst ring, a diamond ring and costume jewelry as well as $60 in cash.

Bus Transit Freeze Urged To Allow Ferryboat Tests

By PAUL E. PETERZELL

A halt to virtually all plans to improve bus transit between Marin and San Francisco for at least two years was proposed yesterday by the consultant who headed a study of reviving ferryboats on the bay.

Dr. Claude Gruen, of the Arthur D. Little Inc. consulting firm, said the time was needed to test new kinds of vessels, and conceded that improvement of bus service could attract the same patrons the ferry system would need to be financially feasible.

The only bus routes that should be improved now, he said, were those such as the one between North Marin and the San Francisco Civic Center, a route that would not be replaced by ferry service.

Gruen proposed the halt to bus improvement as he presented the results of his firm's $45,000 study for the San Francisco-Marin Water Transportation Study Committee.

The committee unanimously adopted a resolution by former Marin supervisor Thomas T. Storer urging officials of the two counties and of the Golden Gate Bridge and Highway District to implement a ferry boat system "at the earliest practicable time."

Gruen's proposed halt to bus improvements was contrary to the Marin County Transit District's position favoring plans by the bridge district to go into the bus business. The transit district paid one-third of the cost of the ferry study, and the San Francisco Board of Supervisors paid two-thirds.

Ferry advocates have opposed the bridge district's bus plans, however, on the ground that action on it should await the findings of the ferry study. The bridge district's bus plans, as a result, have been held up since last December.

Gruen's report envisioned a $51 million ferry system that would carry more than 11,000 commuters a day, or more than one-third of the commute load expected on the bridge by 1971.

Michael R. Peevey, of San Rafael, co-chairman of the bus-oriented Marin Transportation Action Committee, asked from the audience how Gruen could expect such heavy ferry use. The Marin County Transit District figured that about 8,000 persons would use a modern bus system a day, Peevey noted.

Gruen, saying bus and ferry systems "are two entirely different things," responded he could not answer "without getting into a quibble."

The exchange brought a San Francisco woman to her feet with a declaration that Marin commuters would get a new bus transit system "only over our dead bodies. Ferries are the only way we'll allow the Marin commuters to come to San Francisco," she said.

Gruen estimated that $1 million would be needed to test vessels and design the details of a ferry system over the next two years. The federal government may be the source of the money, he suggested.

According to his report, the ferry system should be run by the bridge district, which has enough money to finance it.

At the end of the two-year test and design period, Gruen said, contracts could be let and the system built.

Orris W. Willard of San Francisco, a member of the ferry committee, praised Gruen's proposed system as "a very inexpensive way to solve a very bad problem." He added that "we could still back out" if it did not pan out after the $1 million test period.

San Francisco Supervisor Jack Morrison, co-chairman of the committee with Storer, termed the proposed ferry system "an alternative to the freeway treadmill." He said he would see that his board of supervisors promptly began hearings on Gruen's report.

Novato's Youth Again Running A Jobs Agency

For the second year, Novato young people are running an employment agency to find part-time jobs for Novato and San Marin High School students.

The youth employment agency, which is sponsored by the Novato Rotary Club and the Novato Teen Club operates offices from 1 to 5 p.m. daily in the Novato parks and recreation department at 917 Sherman Avenue.

There are now 103 students seeking all types of work, according to Ronald Pugh, one of the directors of the agency. The students will do any type of work by the hour or the job, he said.

Novato young people had a similar agency two years ago, but did not operate it last summer. This year there are more students than ever looking for work, Pugh said.

Sanitary Board Adopts Budget

A final 1969-70 budget of $3,500, just half the previous budget, was approved Monday by the Alto Sanitary District board, Director Carl O. Heynen Jr. reported.

The board allocated no funds for capital outlay, a $3,500 item in last year's budget.

The board also announced it will accept applications for a board member to replace Secretary Robert Black, who has moved to Novato.

Manslaughter In Car Crash

Frank Edward Jordan, 20, of Novato was arraigned Monday in Marin Municipal Court on felony manslaughter charges arising from a June 22 car crash in which Michael W. Gramlich died.

Jordan's case was continued until July 21 for entry of plea.

The youth was released from Marin General Hospital June 26 after being treated for multiple cuts and bruises.

Fringe Area Zoning Topic For Sonomans

A program on fringe area zoning will be presented at the Sonoma County Mayors' and Councilmen's Association meeting tomorrow at 6:30 p.m. at the Grapevine restaurant, Cloverdale.

Participation in the panel discussion will be George Kovatch, Sonoma County planning director; Kenneth Blackman, Santa Rosa planning director, and Robert Byrd, director of the California office of Harstad Associates, Inc., planning consultants. Byrd was formerly a member of the Petaluma planning staff.

Sitka was Alaska's capital until 1906 when it was moved to Juneau.

HITCHHIKERS EVERYWHERE

Popular—But Dangerous

By PATRICK SULLIVAN
(First of two articles)

The time is late afternoon on a typical warm Marin summer day. Two comely teen-age girls walk out of a store in a central county shopping center, turn west and amble off at a slow pace toward home.

Traffic is brisk along the tree-lined avenue with commuters returning from San Francisco. The girls decide it would be easy to thumb a ride.

They stop, swivel their feet in the gravel and wait. Within minutes a small, dusty car pulls over. The girls glance momentarily at the face of the young man driving as they run up, pull open the door and hop in. No words are exchanged — and another hitchhiking episode begins in Marin.

Once the practice almost solely of servicemen, college boys and youngsters going trout fishing, hitchhiking has become, for many young Marin residents, practically the only way to travel. For some, too young to obtain a driver's license or not allowed to use the family car and not enthusiastic about scheduling trips around nearly nonexistent bus service, it becomes the only way.

The trend is drawing mounting concern from law enforcement officials.

They cite incidents of teen-age girls or young women being raped or narrowly escaping from attackers who gave them a ride as well as of motorists being robbed and assaulted by hitchhikers.

The most recent serious incident occurred less than two weeks ago. An 18-year-old Mill Valley girl, hitchhiking on East Blithedale Avenue, had to fight to escape from a man who picked her up in his truck.

The case is only one in a file maintained by deputy Jeanette Prandi of the sheriff's juvenile division which cites no less than 30 incidents dating back to early 1967, when most officials say the craze began to spread.

At least 16 of the cases in the file involved sexual assaults against young women. Seven were actual rape cases. The others included accounts of strong-arm robberies against motorists and one case in which a 14-year-old Larkspur boy, hitchhiking in Greenbrae, was shot at.

Despite published reports of such cases — and a public warning of the dangers of hitchhiking issued last year by the sheriff's office — the phenomenon has continued to grow. It is perhaps at its height now, with the county's thousands of students free for the summer with places to go.

Prime hitchhiking locations dot the county from Sausalito to the Sonoma County line and west to the beaches.

Young hitchhikers are roadside fixtures at Dolan's Corners in Tamalpais Valley, along East Blithedale and Miller avenues in Mill Valley, at the Hub in San Anselmo, all along Sir Francis Drake Boulevard from Highway 101 out through the San Geronimo Valley and in lesser degrees in San Rafael and at myriad other locations.

Young persons interviewed expressed without exception a conviction they could take care of themselves and minimized dangers they might face.

"I don't take every ride — it depends on who is driving," said Linda, a minidressed, blonde 18-year-old student at Sir Francis Drake High School.

Linda, who said she had been hitchhiking around the county for about two years, asked that her real name not be used for fear her parents would become furious if they knew her habit.

"Uusally you can tell not to take a ride when the driver says something like, 'I'm going anywhere you're going, baby,'" she said.

"Or if they say where they are going and you still don't want to get in, you can always say no . . . or that you are going somewhere else," she added.

Cindy, a tanned Sir Francis Drake High School junior, and her friend, Debbie, carrying her two-year-old sister, say they only hitchhike when they are with someone, never alone.

"Sometimes we even hitchhike back from the Fillmore at 3 a.m.," said Debbie. "We got a ride once all the way to Fairfax."

The girls, both 16, do not have driver's licenses. Even if they did they seemed to think their parents would not let them use the car for trips such as one they made last week from their homes to a bakery.

The trustful philosophy of hitchhiking youths is considered naive by Sgt. James G. Dukes of the California Highway Patrol, who regularly sees young persons thumbing rides at the Corte Madera on-ramp to Highway 101.

"I think it is stupid and unethical," he said. "These girls are playing Russian roulette with their lives."

Dukes says he would not hitchhike "even with my gun in my pocket."

The concern of Dukes and others is not unfounded. One 21-year-old Berkeley woman was raped in Marin by a man who picked her up while she was hitchhiking with a San Francisco man. Her companion was forced from the car at gunpoint before the rapist drove off with the woman.

Police and sheriff's worries are not limited to sex crimes generated by the hitchhiking traffic.

"This (hitchhiking) is the way a lot of the kids we arrest for drugs say they were first turned on," said Sgt. Al Howenstein of the San Anselmo police.

Recently, he said, there has also been a rash of complaints from drivers saying they found radios, wallets and purses missing after dropping off hitchhiking youths.

Mrs. Prandi and her husband, Inspector Charles Prandi, estimate they have apprehended at least 50 juvenile runaways during the past year by picking up hitchhikers, even during off-duty hours.

Some came from as far away as Connecticut, New York, South Dakota and Alaska, they said.

The only law in California regarding hitchhiking gives authorities little to work with. Primarily a safety measure, the ordinance prohibits hitchhiking from a roadway. That is all. The law says persons who do so are to be cited.

In Sausalito, police organized a crackdown on illegal hitchhiking in an effort to curb it. The result: scores of fines, but yet another hitchhiker attacked.

(Tomorrow: Why hitchhiking seems here to stay.)

Pier Might Solve Waldo Point Woes

A Waldo Point property owner has asked the county planning commission for a use permit to construct a 610-foot pier to which houseboats could moor at Gate 5.

The action was seen as a step toward possible end to the impasse between the County of Marin and the Waldo Point community over houseboat standards.

T. J. Nelsen, owner of a Sausalito marine salvage company, submitted the plans in behalf of property owner Donlon J. Arques. The planning department said nothing more than a sketch was submitted, but Nelsen reported that more detailed plans would be submitted.

The county has been trying for two years to compel Waldo Point residents to bring their houseboats up to health and building code standards. The issue is now in the courts, with the houseboaters fighting attempts to turn off their electricity and to demolish houseboats which remain on county rights-of-way.

Supervisor Michael Wornum, who represents southern Marin, said he had conferred with Arques about building a pier to which houseboats could moor and connect with legal sewer and electrical outlets. "I think he's genuinely interested," Wornum said.

"I think he's doing it to prevent trouble in case the houseboat owners lose their case, but I think he's also coming around to the point where he'd like to see it developed," said an associate of Arques who did not wish to be identified.

Besides county approval, Arques proposal would require acceptance by the Bay Conservation and Development Commission.

Arques has submitted various development plans for his property during the past decade, according to the planning department, but these have been stymied by BCDC restrictions and work on a Richardson Bay master plan.

Bolinas-Stinson Board Interviews

Bolinas-Stinson School District trustees last night interviewed six applicants for teaching posts but took no action following the closed session meeting, Trustee Jessie Reasoner reported.

Mrs. Reasoner said the board will interview more applicants at 7:30 p.m. tomorrow in closed session and will make final hiring decisions at that time.

Trustees also reviewed a letter of resignation from Erika Zettl, Bolinas School teacher, but delayed accepting the resignation until tomorrow night, Mrs. Reasoner said.

Long Ordeal; Woman Kept From Leap

A woman who said she was afraid of losing her boy friend and job spent more than 17 hours on a foot-wide beam under the Golden Gate Bridge before she was grabbed by bridge workers yesterday morning.

The near-frozen woman, Annette McDonald, 31, of San Francisco, a speech therapist, told the California Highway Patrol she had been under psychiatric care in the past for emotional problems.

Bridge maintenance superintendent Bud Mullins of Corte Madera, one of her rescuers, said she was so stiff with cold after her ordeal that "we had to hold a coffee cup up to her lips so she could drink."

SEEN BY PEDESTRIAN

She was spotted at 7:45 a.m. by a pedestrian, Patrick J. Lacey of Santa Rosa, who told officers he saw her sitting on an outside railing under the bridge deck. When he went to look closer, she crawled back into the network of beams under the deck near the north tower — 210 feet above the water.

Mullins reported he and Buck Haymond of San Francisco, foreman of the ironworkers, "tried to reason with her for a half-hour. Then I ordered the nets moved under her so she would have fallen only 35 feet.

"But she panicked when she saw the net moving in, and tried to jump to another beam, catching it with her hands," Mullins said.

WOMAN GRABBED

Mullins and Haymond grabbed her legs while she was swinging from the beam, and iron workers Robert Lawson of Napa and John Camilleri of San Francisco grabbed her wrists from above.

Painting superintendent Hale Sharrett of Rohnert Park also made a grab for her after a rope was tied around her, and was bitten on the hand. They finally got her back up on the deck at 8:44 a.m. — along with the white straw purse she had clutched during the entire ordeal.

Bridge officers said they saw her walking alone on the bridge at about 3:30 p.m. Monday, and believed her story that she climbed over the east rail at about that hour.

She was taken to San Francisco General Hospital for observation.

Tools Stolen

Sausalito Trustees Question Grand Jury

The Sausalito School District, questioning rumors that it is being investigated by the Marin County Grand Jury, has asked that any such investigation be conducted in "an open and responsible manner."

In a letter to Alfred W. Bowman, foreman of the grand jury, Supt. Phillip W. Schneider noted that rumors of the investigation have persisted for several weeks, and that he was writing at the unanimous request of the school board "in order to put such rumors to rest."

He wrote that if the jury's education committee is investigating the district, the board requests "that such an investigation be done in an open and responsible manner. The board and the administration believe that all of the district's operations are legal and we would welcome the opportunity to cooperate with the grand jury in every way possible."

Verna Vargas, chairman of the education committee, would not confirm or deny the rumor and refused comment on the request, saying any information must come from Bowman. Bowman was unavailable for comment today.

Schneider said yesterday that the rumored investigation centers about the district's hiring of William Bradley (Chaka), who has no California teaching credential. Bradley took over a class in Martin Luther King School after one teacher resigned and another was transferred at his own request after seven weeks on the job.

A Sausalito mother charged that antiwhite teaching by Bradley led to a school ground attack on her daughter by 11 black students in May.

Schneider said County Schools Supt. Virgil A. Hollis had written the grand jury June 2 inviting a meeting with Hollis and Schneider but there has been no reply.

Commission Readies Fairfax Pavilion Rules

A preliminary draft of rules governing use of the Fairfax Pavilion — including limiting attendance to 500 — was approved last night by the city's parks and recreation commission.

The rules will go to City Atty. Wallace S. Myers for review before going to the city council, secretary Eleanora Edgar reported.

The draft had recommended 700 as the maximum attendance figure but the recreation director, the teen club and the commission all agreed on 500, Mrs. Edgar said.

It was attendance — an overflow crowd — which sparked a shouting match and blows at a Memorial Day dance.

The rules also included requiring one police officer per 100 persons, plus a police matron during all dances with costs to be paid by the dance's sponsors.

The commission recommended to the council that the department's teen club be permitted to hold a dance Aug. 15. The proposal has the approval of Police Chief James R. Orr, Mrs. Edgar said.

The commission also discussed forming a youth commission but instead decided to investigate appointing a young person to the parks and recreation commission. Commissioner Conway E. Enscoe was appointed to study the plan.

Kilimanjaro Guides Union

DAR ES SALAAM (AP) — The mountain guides of Tanzania's Kilimanjaro, who make their living assisting tourists climb the 19,340-foot peak of Kibo, have become union-minded.

At present the guides are registered with two hotels which normally cater to climbers. The hotel pays the porters and guides for each five-day trip up and down the mountain.

The guides believe they could improve their conditions — including such fringe benefits as uniforms — if they formed a union. With the aid of Tanzania's National Tourist Board, they intend to start one.

Vacationer Returns To Find Burglary

Ray W. Roland of 50 Meadow Drive, Santa Venetia, reported to the sheriff's department Monday that when he returned from a vacation he discovered that burglars had kicken in the rear door of his house, officers said today.

Missing were $12 in change, a watch and locket, trading stamp books and a shotgun, which he later found outside.

$500,000 Car Death Suit Filed

A suit asking more than $500,000 has been filed in Marin Superior Court by the parents of a 19-year-old Novato girl who died last fall as the result of an accident on Highway 101.

The death of Gail M. Sturgeon, according to the suit filed by Clifford and Doris M. Sturgeon, was due to negligence on the part of other drivers involved in the accident, the state of California, County of Marin, City of San Rafael and Volkswagen dealers.

Miss Sturgeon was injured Oct. 12 in an accident on Puerto Suello Hill near the Marin Civic Center in which nine cars crashed on the rainslick highway.

She was a passenger in a car driven by Susan Rippon, 18, of Novato, which collided with another car which had stopped because of bogged down traffic slowed from a previous wreck.

Two other cars then piled into the crash.

Named in the suit as being negligent are Antonio Cardoza Jr. of Nicasio, and Thomas Hernberger, of Novato, who drove the cars which hit the rear of Miss Rippon's vehicle. Their parents, Antonio R. Cardosa Sr. and Barbara Hernberger, who own the cars are also named.

The driver of the stopped car, Jimmie Blackwood, of Novato is another defendant.

The Sturgeons also claim that the state failed to post signs or markers warning of hazardous road conditions and that the county and city did not clear debris from the earlier wreck.

Volkswagen Werk A. G. and Volkswagen of America Inc. are blamed for providing a defective car to the parents of Miss Rippon.

The Sturgeons ask $500,000 damages in addition to $14,541 for medical and funeral expenses.

Houseboat Resident Sickened By Injection

Ellen Brandstadter, 22, who lives on a houseboat at Waldo Point, was treated Monday at Marin General Hospital for an overdose of drugs, according to hospital officials.

Sheriff's deputies said that she had injected a mixture of paregoric, opium ashes and water into her veins.

Loot Is Scanty

Burglars who entered the Terra Linda Cleaners at 669 Del Ganado Road last weekend only got $1.25 in pennies and some coins from a gum machine, sheriff's officers said today.

Good Reason To Insist On Minimum Standards

The importance of complying with county building and safety regulations has been hammered home once again by the series of tragic events which plagued Rancho Olompali north of Novato.

Ever since Donald C. McCoy Jr. and his Chosen Family moved into the historic Burdell Mansion almost two years ago, the ranch has been beset with problems.

Police made several raids on the ranch to confiscate marijuana and round up some users and possessors.

Last Feb. 3, a fire destroyed the 26-room mansion and damaged the old adobe walls dating back to the 1840's.

Then last month came the swimming pool tragedy, resulting in the death of girls aged 2 and 4, who were pulled unconscious from the murky pool on June 23.

IT IS TRUE that similar tragedies might have occurred under the occupancy of a family other than the chosen few. Yet there is little doubt that the relatively unrestricted use of the buildings and dormitory by a transient group of free thinkers contributed to the tragedies.

Statements by the present landlord and his attorney attest to the fact that there was little control over the comings and goings of ranch residents. They blamed the troubles, not on the Chosen Family, but on "undesirables coming on the property and living there." They said tenants were continually bothered by trespassers; yet their compassion would not allow them to kick the transients from "this beautiful piece of land."

AT LEAST one of the little pool victims happened to be on the premises because of this well-intentioned benevolence.

A protective fence around the pool or the stationing of a lifeguard could have prevented the double deaths.

There are other communities in the county where equally well-intentioned people are resisting county regulations as too harsh and repressive.

The same authorities who listed building and safety hazards at Olompali have been warning of electrical and health hazards in the congested houseboat colony at Waldo Point.

Boats served by improper wiring are literally lashed to each other, with narrow planks over water as the only means of access from one boat to the next. Fire on one can trap the exitway for all other boats attached to it.

THE OLOMPALI experience is proof that the county must insist on minimum standards for safety and health, however unpopular such insistence may be. Structures that do not comply must be removed.

Fortunately thus far, no major fires or disasters have occurred in this area. But if a tragedy should strike and lives are lost, the sincerest expressions of benevolence and the purest of motives would be of little comfort to the families of the victims.

Are These Your Kids?

Those who despair of today's young people and the tremendous difference between the generation, might be interested in the following quote:

"Our youth now loves luxury. They have bad manners and contempt for authority. They show disrespect for their elders. Children are now tyrants, not the servants of the household. They contradict their parents, chatter before company, gobble up their food and tyrannize their teachers."

Biddle Comes Up With Proposal To Circumvent Budget Fiasco

By HENRY C. MacARTHUR

SACRAMENTO (CNS) — Now that the legislative hassle over the 1969-70 state budget is settled, and all of the dire consequences predicted as the result of the state having to operate with no money have not come to pass, the question now is how to prevent similar events of like nature from occurring in the future.

It is feared in some quarters, particularly in the fiscal departments of state government, that the Legislature's failure to pass the budget on time, that is before the beginning of the new fiscal year, may result in the setting of a precedent for the future.

In other words, if the Legislature can get away with it once, the solons might be tempted in forthcoming years to use the document for political aggrandizement in the future. Of course, they have done this in the past, almost without cessation, but up until this year, have always come up with some kind of a budget before the deadline.

IN THE newspaper world, he who fails to meet the deadline usually gets fired, unless there is some valid excuse, and it had better be good, to placate the boss. But things are different with the Legislature, and it is likely no one will lose a seat because of the budget fiasco, for which literally, there was no excuse. And besides, the whole thing probably will be forgotten by next election time.

But a few will not forget in the effort to circumvent a future fiasco. One of these is Assemblyman W. Craig Biddle, R-Riverside, who is proposing a constitutional amendment radically changing the basic law of the state with regard to passage of the budget.

Biddle will ask that a proposition be put on the next general election ballot which will require budget passage for the ensuing fiscal year by May 30, each year.

AND SHOULD the Legislature become so wrapped up in partisan politics as to fail to perform its constitutional duty, the current fiscal year budget would become the budget for the ensuing year, less ten per cent. The proposed ten per cent reduction would be an over-all cut, to affect each state agency, department and function of state government.

The proposal has some holes in it that have to be worked out before it can appear on the ballot. Conceivably, the Legislature could refuse to pass a budget for ten consecutive years, and the state would wind up with no money at all when the decade came to an end. But this objection can be corrected by changing language.

ALSO ECONOMY minded legislators could consider the ensuing year budget too big, and refuse to vote for it, thereby working on behalf of economy in state government, rather than using the document for partisan politics. This might be good for the taxpayers, but nevertheless, it could create more troubles by creating a situation in which certain functions of government could not operate on a reduced amount.

But in any event, the Biddle proposal marks the beginning of attempts to halt another such fiasco as the one which held the 1969-70 budget up for three days, uselessly, as nothing was gained by either party through the delay.

Fortunately, the state did not encounter any irreparable damage because of the delay, as there were no major disasters requiring the addition of temporary help, and the delays in Medi-Cal payments were no more than normal. But it could happen again.

Summer Drive To Lower Voting Age

The denial of the right to vote to the 18 to 20-year-old group has persisted as a serious injustice in California. This segment of society is clearly as qualified to vote as middle aged and elderly persons.

Assemblyman John Vasconcellos of Santa Clara County has recognized the imperative need to extend the franchise to this group. He stated last year, "American politics need the transfusion that younger voters would give it. In a time of complexity, uncertainty, and cynicism, we badly need their educated minds, motivations, ingenuity, and idealism. They have much to offer; are we going to deny them the right to contribute?"

A major campaign in California to lower the voting age to 18 is being undertaken this summer by Citizens for Lowering the Voting Age, an organization first established in Los Altos Hills. The statewide campaign must obtain 525,000 valid voters' signatures by September 15, 1969, in order to place a state constitutional amendment lowering the voting age on the November, 1970, election ballot. A strong and sustained effort from progressive and enlightened citizens will be needed if this significant goal is to be attained.

Petitions for voters' signatures and further information can be obtained from the voting age campaign in your county or by writing me at 1611 Spruce Street, Berkeley, 94709.

We Lost War When First Man Died

In rebuttal of Sue Middleton (I-J June 30) and Mr. Burton (I-J July 1).

She speaks of unrest on campus due to the war in Vietnam. Where in hell was she when as many men got killed in Korea in three years that was killed in eight years in Vietnam.

I never mentioned the war but now on the subject. In 1954, President Eisenhower and Vice President Nixon offered to help South Vietnam. In 1959 the first U.S. troops were killed. When the first man was killed, we lost the war. Something was destroyed that could not be brought back. Buildings, ships, cities can all be rebuilt but they can't bring back the first man killed.

My reference to the Catholic schools as an example was not to glorify them but to point out the difference in educational standards that some discipline can instill into young minds to a better understanding of the 3-R's than the public schools.

My letter to the I-J was not printed in its entirety. So you would not grasp my solution and also that I am not a Catholic.

I did not intend that the state support the Catholic schools. I used them as an example of better education in the tender years.

Mr. Burton. It was only juvenile nit picking to single out 17 Catholic students who disagreed to quote the unrest in papal states. It was not religion but political differences in countries that were scourged in war trying to get on their feet. We did not have that here.

Mr. B. T. Rocca Sr. (I-J July 3). I did not write that the Catholic Church rules by fear. You did. My primary motive was to get more discipline in the public schools. You are also nit picking to remark about nine Catholic priests coming to you for help. What if all the demonstrators came to you for help and you helped less than half. Not a very good average, and you would be lost in the mass.

License Houseboats Under State Code

I advocate the licensing of houseboats under the Harbors and Navigation Code, Section 680 and 685 of the Harbors and Watercraft Department, Resources Agency, State of California, for the reason that such houseboats are capable of being used for transportation, usually, in dangerous flotation condition, to and from repair marinas.

They are a hazard to sail and power boats, berthed or nonberthed.

I further suggest that the Supervisors of Marin County appeal for this corrective registration to the Harbors and Watercraft Department. I also suggest that the county set up a moving permit system and collect in the same manner as a business license.

TRY AND STOP ME

By BENNETT CERF

WHEN HEYWOOD BROUN set out to do an interview he didn't let his quarry get off too lightly. One testy, antagonistic senator tried to fob him off with "I have absolutely nothing to say." "Everybody knows that," agreed Broun. "Shall we get started with the interview?"

One of the most unfortunate typographical errors on record was perpetrated by none other than the famous author, Bret Harte. While editing a small Western newspaper in his salad days, his obit for one of the town's most respected ladies concluded, "She was distinguished for her charity." The proofs came back as "distinguished for her chastity." Harte, anxious to go fishing, didn't bother correcting the proof, but put a big question mark in the margin.

The final version of the obit — as printed in the entire edition — read, "Mrs. Gilligan, above all the ladies in this area, was distinguished for her chastity (?)."

Nixon Plants Himself Solidly With Hard-Liners Of The South

The Nixon administration on a whole series of moves has come down on the conservative side. The President won the nomination and the election with a Southern strategy. He is following a Southern strategy today, the appeal being to the entrenched hard liners of the South.

These are the men who control the powerful committees in Congress. They can smooth the way for Nixon programs pared to their prejudices. That, and a gain in Republican seats in the House from the South next year, may be the goal of the President as pragmatist.

THE ON-AGAIN, off-again hassle over the appointment of Dr. John M. Knowles to a key position in the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, with the climactic reversal at the end, was not nearly as important as other decisions. This was a technical blunder that made no sense at all.

Extending the school desegregation deadlines in the South and trimming the Voting Rights Act to the pattern of the Southern establishment were clear signals of direction and clearly understood by the defenders of things as they are. HEW Secretary Robert Finch insists he has won and the South, after all, may not get another year of grace. Attorney General John N. Mitchell discovered that Republicans were more indignant over his voting rights "compromise" than were Democrats. But equivocation will not blunt the thrust of these moves.

IN FOREIGN policy the Romanian visit, to say the least, has a curious look.

Given the hard-nosed opposition to any reduction in the barriers around east-west trade, the stop in Bucharest has little substantive meaning. It is as though Premier Alexei Kosygin or President Nikolai Podgorny should make a state visit to Peru, with the Peruvians defying big brother to the north. The whole journey — six countries in 12 days — is the script for a television spectacular that will fade in significance as the image fades from the screen.

Having delayed completion of a negotiating position on the nuclear arms talks with the Soviet Union for six months, the White House has appointed an advisory commission likely to be dominated by hard liners. William J. Chase, chairman of a committee propagandizing for the antiballistic missile, and Paul Nitze, former deputy secretary of defense and a highly articulate advocate of ABM, are conspicuous. They are offset to some degree by Cyrus Vance, James R. Killian and other moderates opposed to ABM. Yet, the net effect of the commission, if it has any effect at all, could be to fence in Director Gerard C. Smith of the Arms Control and Disarmament Agency.

NOW ALL of this may add up to the pragmatist's prescription for winning in the congressional elections next year and consolidating a victory stance for 1972. The country is moving to the right, alienated by both black and white extremists, and nothing can check the trend that Mr. Nixon, as an astute opportunist, knows so well how to exploit.

A comic aspect of this solemn assumption is supplied by certain figures normally identified with the liberal establishment. They have set up their own wailing wall and their loud wails of "all is lost" echo and re-echo. They advise Sen. Edward M. Kennedy to take the vow of silence and keep his head down until after 1972.

Major Changes Sought In Poverty Program

By ROBERT S. ALLEN and JOHN A. GOLDSMITH

WASHINGTON — It is possible that Congress may continue the scandal-scarred multibillion-dollar anti-poverty program for another year—but definitely not in the form being urged by the administration.

There isn't a chance that will be approved by the House Education and Labor Committee — which has been considering the widely controversial legislation for months.

A strong bloc of Republican and Democratic committeemen are flatly against the administration's proposal to extend the anti-poverty program for two more years — with no changes of any kind in the first year, while a study is being made to decide what should be done the next year.

The bipartisan opponents are insisting that if the program is renewed, it be limited to one year with major changes.

The inner committee outlook is that this is what will be voted.

Significantly indicative of that is the attitude of two influential members of the committee — Rep. Edith Green, Ore., second-ranking Democrat, and William Scherle, Iowa, leading Republican.

Both not only vigorously favor drastic revision of the Economic Opportunity Act, but are forcefully saying so.

WHAT'S WRONG with it? At the root of the committee's pronounced bipartisan aversion to OEO is a five-year accumulation of innumerable scandals, waste, gross mismanagement, excessive costs, interminable bungling and very meager results for the billions expended so far.

Citing this long and dismal record, Rep. Scherle characterized OEO as a "catastrophic flop unequaled by any other government agency in many years."

Two underlying changes advocated by Scherle are:

"Less emphasis on OEO as a social revolutionary agency and more concentration on providing income-producing jobs."

"A more meaningful role for the states in planning and coordinating poverty programs within the states. An overwhelming majority of governors favor that."

It is Scherle's contention that making the states the central agencies responsible for poverty programs would "Noticeably upgrade them."

STRANGE "OUTSIDERS" — Donald Rumsfeld, who gave up a safe House seat recently to become head of OEO, has started off by launching what is described as a "complete review of the war on poverty."

This latest in a long and expensive list of studies would be made, it was announced, by a "Director's Task Force . . . staffed entirely by experts from outside OEO."

But a check of these authorities discloses that while they may be outside now, not long ago they were very much inside. A number of them are former OEO officials, as follows:

Head of the Task Force is Morris Liebman, Chicago attorney who has been chairman of the National Advisory Council on the Economic Opportunity Act the past several years. He was named to that job by former President Lyndon Johnson.

Another top official of the Task Force is James Gibson, former director of the Neighborhood Development Program, an agency of the Washington, D.C., Community Action program financed by OEO. Still another is Robert Levine, until recently assistant OEO director for research, plans and evaluation. Others are David Gottlieb, former associate director of OEO's hotly embattled Job Corps, and Father Geno Baroni, leading militant Catholic priest and anti-poverty crusader.

Living Cost Up 17 Per Cent? Yes, We Include Food Prices

By and large budget sessions by taxing agencies are dreary affairs but they liven up a bit when the hired hands clash with their bosses on salaries and assorted fringe benefits.

Each side starts well armed with statistics to prove its point and then sets out into a series of maneuvers, strategies and concessions something like this:

EMPLOYEE: We also would like an additional paid holiday. Checking other cities we find that we're lower than average.

MAYOR: Well, what cities did you compare with?

EMPLOYEE: Let's see, there's Washington, D. C., where they have 147 paid holidays; Sacramento, where they have 96, and . . .

MAYOR: Wait a minute. We compared with other places. . . . Bodega Bay with 3, Valley Ford with 2 and Olema with none.

EMPLOYEE: But they're not cities.

MAYOR: Okay, let's not quibble. What day do you want off?

EMPLOYEE: How about Saint Christopher's Day?

MAYOR: Now, you know we can't do that. He's not a recognized saint.

EMPLOYEE: All right, we can come back to that. Now how about increasing health benefits to cover the common cold?

MAYOR: I don't think we can do that. Too many people get colds. How about if we gave you coverage for scarlet fever?

EMPLOYEE: I'll have to take that back to the association. I don't have the figures here on how many had scarlet fever last year, and some employees might rather have coverage for scurvy.

MAYOR: Now, let's get down to this cost of living business. You're asking for 17.5 per cent and our figures show the cost of living has gone up 1.7 per cent.

EMPLOYEE: Well, you see, we've included food in ours.

MAYOR: Oh well, if you're going to nitpick about this, we can prove that the cost of 78 rpm records has gone down 20 per cent.

EMPLOYEE: Okay fellows, it looks like time for our song.

ALL EMPLOYEES (SINGING, ROUGHLY, TO THE TUNE OF "BY THE TIME I GET TO PHOENIX"):

BY THE TIME I get to payday — It's all gone.
And the bills I left unpaid
Are on the floor
We laughed when we placed the ad that says we're bankrupt,
Because we've placed that ad, so many times before.

MAYOR: Very good. I see you all have enough spare time to practice singing. Now hear this.

ENTIRE COUNCIL (SINGING ROUGHLY TO THE TUNE OF "LITTLE GREEN APPLES"):

We can't collect any more in taxes
And it don't help to have empty pockets every budget time.
There's no such thing as overtime.
Health and welfare can't be paid,
Until next year.

THE PEOPLE'S SCHOOLS

Minimum Standards For High School Diploma

By BRYCE W. ANDERSON

The California State Board of Education did a remarkable thing last month: It established standards for graduation from high school, to apply throughout the state.

This was remarkable in that it was the first time it had been done, at least within living memory. For many years, the state required that certain subjects be taught at certain grade levels, and beyond that left to each high school district the determination of graduation requirements. The George Miller Jr. Act of 1968 removed most of the state course requirements, but also provided that the state should set minimum standards for award of a high school diploma.

The board, meeting in Sacramento, solemnly resolved that hereafter no one can be graduated from high school in California unless he can demonstrate eighth grade competency in reading and mathematics.

That is not a misprint. It's what the board did. It decreed that hereafter a student must be up to eighth grade levels in these two basic subjects before he can be graduated from the 12th grade.

STATE SUPT. Max Rafferty, who has written several books and dozens of newspaper columns berating the lack of standards in American public education, spelled out what this requirement means. "Students who reach this level of proficiency should be able to read newspapers and keep records for home finances," he said.

He did not particularize. He left it open whether the newspapers he had in mind would be of the class of the New York Times or the Bull River Bugle. The household finances quite obviously would not include working out one's income tax return.

Mitchell L. Voydat, chief of the state education department's bureau of elementary and secondary education, explained why the eighth grade level was chosen as appropriate for 12th grade graduation. "We felt that when children leave high school, the least we can expect is elementary school competency," he said.

LEST THE tough new rule prove too much of a hardship on California high schools, the state-adopted regulations provide an "out."

If it appears the would-be graduate is not going to be able to master the eighth grade mathematics, the state board ruled, he can fulfill the requirement by "satisfactory completion during grades 9-12 of a one-semester course in the subject focusing upon diagnostic and remedial instruction."

(It is too late this year for the Legislature to pass a bill appropriating a special fund for hiring remedial reading and mathematics teachers for high schools, to match the state-supported programs which are designed to correct deficiencies in these subjects in the elementary schools. Such a bill may be expected next session, however.)

ADOPTION OF eighth grade standards for high school graduation naturally raises some questions. The most obvious one is: If eighth grade level is required for graduation from 12th grade, what is required for graduation from eighth grade? There is no answer to this one, since the Miller Act did not provide for setting state standards at that level.

Also unanswered, apparently, must be another obvious question: If the state superintendent and state board feel that eighth grade competence is the most that can be required for a high school diploma, does this mean that less than eighth grade competence has been accepted for graduation from California high school heretofore?

Flood Discussion By Ross Council

Informal discussion of the controversial Corte Madera Creek flood control project will be taken up Thursday by the Ross Town Council.

Discussion is slated for 7:30 p.m., prior to the regular council meeting at eight.

In other matters, councilmen will discuss a hitchhiking ordinance and reintroduce an ordinance amending code provisions governing animal control.

Tiburon Sign Controls Sent To City Council

Tiburon's proposed sign ordinance, three years in the making, has been approved by the Tiburon Planning Commission, according to Planning Director Wayne E. Moody.

The strict ordinance calls for design review of all signs in the city with special attention given to internally illuminated and projecting signs. Rooftop signs are prohibited.

However, variances may be granted for unusual signs which don't meet the regulations, Moody said.

The sign ordinance also prohibits temporary signs pasted inside windows but does allow taped temporary signs, such as for markets, with a general permit.

Political signs no large than 24 by 30 inches may be posted 30 days before an election but must be removed within seven days after the election.

Only one real estate sign, not to exceed three square feet, will be allowed on each parcel of land within the city.

Che commission, meeting Monday night, modified the ordinance to allow only one square foot of sign for each four lineal feet of property frontage, rather than for each two lineal feet of frontage as previously allowed.

The ordinance will be forwarded to the city council for adoption.

The Tiburon Planning Commission also:

REZONING — Approved adjustments in the boundary between the parks and duplex zones between 2236 and 2344 Mar East Street.

MASTER PLAN — Continued discussion of a master plan for property between Main Street and Juanita Lane, proposed by Fred G. Zelinsky, until 8 p.m. tomorrow in city hall.

CONTINUANCES — Continued discussion of an ordinance to allow horses in the city by permit, and amendments to the planned development, design review and planned residential zone ordinances to 8 p.m. Aug. 4.

OFFICERS — Named Alan N. Littman Chairman and Peter MacGowan vice chairman.

Korean Sailors Keep Lost American Plane

OSAKA, Japan (UPI)—The U.S. Navy is trying to buy back a drone reconnaissance plane it lost off Okinawa but so far the South Korean sailing crew that recovered the craft isn't selling.

The Navy first offered $250, then $500 for the plane, but the Korean skipper of the freighter Edelweiss demanded $11,220, which he said was 10 per cent of the aircraft's worth.

O'GAD Festival Boosts Coffers

Operation Give A Damn raised more than $1,000 at its Fourth of July festival in Sausalito, Rev. James Symons said yesterday.

The money will go to O'GAD's companion program, in which older Marin City youths and young men help younger ones on the verge of trouble.

Symons says the program has 10 teams in operation at a cost of $700 a month.

He estimated a thousand people attended the celebration, and said the total income may rise because not all the money from some 20 booths has been turned in yet.

The parade to the festival site, Symons said, included the Redwood High School Band, the mayors of Mill Valley and Sausalito, Chairman Samuel L. Banks Jr. of the Marin City Council, and ex-supervisor Peter Behr, who gave the festival address.

Fighting Pulls Arabs Closer To Red Camp

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Heavy fighting in the Middle East during the past two weeks appeared today to be driving the Arab nations closer to the Soviet bloc. Egypt prepared to establish diplomatic relations with East Germany and Syria renewed its appeal to the Kremlin for more military aid.

Four Arab nations already have recognized the Communist East German regime — Iraq, Syria, the Sudan and southern Yemen. An Arab diplomat in Cairo said the breakdown of Big Four talks on the Middle East spurred Egypt's decision to recognize East Germany.

The diplomat said Egyptian President Gamal Abdel Nasser was particularly angry about what he considered unreasoning and blind support by the United States for Israel and a total lack of sympathy with the Arab cause.

In Bonn, Chancellor Kurt Georg Kiesinger and Foreign Minister Willy Brandt said Soviet influence and pressure was behind Egypt's decision to recognize East Germany. Brandt said the Russians apparently tied an arms deal to the diplomatic decision.

Israel claimed its biggest Middle East victory since the June, 1967 Six-Day War in an aerial battle with Syrian jets Tuesday — seven shot down against no losses. But in Beirut diplomatic sources said the victory would persuade the Soviet Union to provide more planes for Syria.

No major border fighting was reported today, but in Cairo a military spokesman said Egyptian gunners downed an Israeli rescue helicopter, sank one Israeli patrol boat and drove off another boat in the Gulf of Suez yesterday.

Ship Companies Sign Union Pact

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A new three-year contract between eight American flag steamship lines and three ships unions was announced yesterday by the Pacific Maritime Association.

James R. Hammer of the PMA said the contract was reached after two months of negotiations and is retroactive to June 16. The eight companies operate 130 vessels.

The agreement provides increased wages, improved welfare benefits and better vacation allowances to employes in the Sailors' Union of the Pacific, Marine Firemen and Marine Cooks and Stewards.

It provides that on June 16 of each year, the unions will receive approximately 7 per cent of total employment costs to be allocated for wages and overtime.

In addition, a 50 cent per day increase in welfare contributions is to purchase new benefits.

Deputies Blast Sheriff Carberry

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—"Hue and Cry," the magazine of the San Francisco Deputy Sheriffs' Association, contains an open letter accusing Sheriff Mathew Carberry of a "do nothing" administration.

The letter signed by association president John J. Courtney, calls attention to an escape by four men from the county prison near San Bruno after which two of them were charged with murdering an elderly man in Pacifica.

Carberry, denying the assertions, said that Courtney "has a long list of personal grievances and his letter is filled with inaccuracies."

Newton Lawyers Rap Trial Jury's Makeup

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—The manslaughter conviction of Black Panther leader Huey P. Newton for shooting a white policeman should be overturned because only one Negro was on his jury, according to his attorneys.

In a 208-page brief filed yesterday with the U.S. court of appeal, attorneys Charles R. Garry and Fay Stender claimed the list of prospective jurors taken from voting lists "under-represents black people by at least 20 per cent."

Newton, minister of defense and co-founder of the Panthers, was convicted last Sept. 8 of voluntary manslaughter in the street-corner shooting of Oakland policeman John Frey.

The shooting took place Oct. 28, 1967, when Frey stopped the car Newton was driving for a routine check and attempted to arrest him for outstanding parking warrants.

The Black Panther leader was arrested about an hour after the early morning shootout when he entered a hospital emergency room for treatment of a bullet wound in the stomach.

Garry and Stender argued the manslaughter conviction should be set aside because the trial jurors were chosen from voter registration lists which "systematically excluded black persons and other minority races."

The attorneys also complained about the "prevalence of white racism in the general community" and "prejudicial publicity disseminated by the City of Oakland and County of Alameda poisoning the atmosphere and prejudicing potential jurors against the defendant."

Mrs. Abigail Adams, wife of the second president, hung clothes out to dry in what is now the East Room of the White House.

U.S. Accuses Drug Makers Of Restraint

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government charged two large drug manufacturers today with conspiring to restrain trade in prescription drug products.

Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell said the civil antitrust suits accused the Ciba Corp. and CPC International Inc. of using restrictive licensing agreements to prevent other companies from obtaining the drugs for marketing purposes.

The complaints, filed in U.S. district court in Newark, N.J., charged Ciba with entering into various patent license agreements involving drugs known as benzothiadiazines, which are used as diuretics and antihypertensives.

Under the arrangements, the suit charged, license holders agreed to sell hydrochlorathiazide of cyclothiazide, principal benzothiadiazines sold in the United States, in dosage form only.

The government complained that this prevented other companies from obtaining the drugs in bulk form for preparation in dosage form and resale under their own labels.

Prison Officer Denies Brutality

OAKLAND (UPI) — The executive officer of the Santa Rita Rehabilitation Center filed a notice of appeal yesterday concerning misconduct charges made against him and nine other officers during the "People's Park" dispute in Berkeley.

The officer, Lt. Howard R. Davis, was the first of the 10 to file an appeal with the Civil Service Commission. Friday is the deadline.

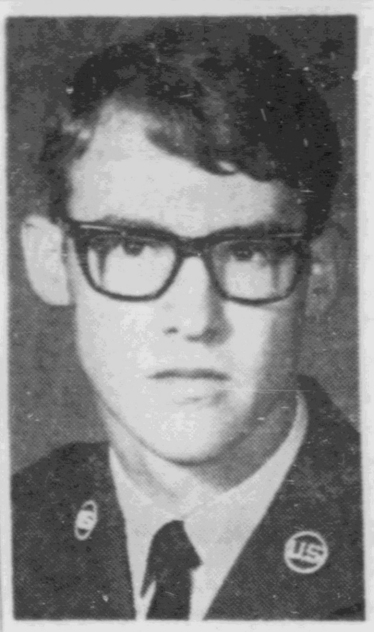
Almeda County Sheriff Frank Madigan cited Davis and the others for allegedly violating department rules in the booking and processing of more than 400 persons arrested May 22.

Madigan recommended that Davis, who was in charge of the booking desk the night of May 22, be demoted to sergeant and suspended for 15 working days when his case is reviewed by the commission.

Innocent Plea To Motorcycle Theft

Rodney J. Arnold, 18, of Novato pleaded innocent in Marin Municipal Court yesterday to a charge of stealing a motorcycle June 30. A preliminary hearing was set for July 17.

Anold was arrested at a construction site in Novato, where officers said they found him with a motorcycle belonging to another person.



AIRMAN OF QUARTER—Airman 1/c Edward R. Clements of the 1902 Communications Squadron at Hamilton Air Force Base, recently was selected as Airman of the Quarter for April through June, for his performance as an air traffic controller in radar approach control at the base. He received a certificate and $50 from the San Rafael Chamber of Commerce.

Bond Foulup Could Delay New School

The Cotati School District board last night learned that illegalities that canceled out an attempt to sell $50,000 in local bonds may add to the delay in construction of the Thomas Page School.

The bond sale was invalidated by the Sonoma County Counsel's office after an error in publication dates was discovered. The bonds had been purchased by the Bank of America at an interest rate of 5 per cent. The bonds will be sold again on July 22 by the board of supervisors.

Supt. Duncan A. Coleman said the lack of funds would hold up the installation of a major water line by the Argonaut Construction Co. He said actual work cannot begin until after the bonds are sold and funds received.

Trustees said the target date for completion of the buildings remains Sept. 15. Originally, it was hoped to have the building finished by late spring.

The Cotati School District board also:

NURSE — Hired Winefred Hogue as the district nurse at a salary of $7,830.

PORTABLE — Approved plans of the Sonoma County Board of Education to locate a portable classroom for trainable mentally retarded students at a district school, possibly Waldo Rohnert School.

MEETING — Decided to move the July 22 meeting up to next Tuesday at 8 p.m. when the preliminary budget will be reviewed.

READING — Approved application for state funds to provide six reading specialist teachers under the Miller-Unruh Act.

Woman Treated For Overdose

A 22-year-old Mill Valley woman was reported in fair condition today at Marin General Hospital where she was taken Sunday unconscious from an overdose of drugs.

Sheriff's deputies said that Cindy Dawn of 339 Northern Avenue was found asleep Sunday afternoon by her roommate, Vicki Leeds. Miss Leeds, according to deputies, said that when she could not awaken her friend she gave her a "shot of cocaine to help her out"

Later, however, Miss Dawn was taken to the hospital.

New Yorker Learns About Farming Life

BRULE, Neb. (AP) — Far from the hustle of Manhattan, the son of Sen. Jacob K. Javits is spending part of his summer vacation as a Nebraska farmhand and finding it "very rewarding doing an honest day's work."

"You know, all we New Yorkers know about Midwesterners is their politics. And that is usually conservative. But we don't know why," said Joshua Javits, 19, a Yale University junior whose father is New York's senior Republican senator.

"So I'm finding out," young Javits continued, "not as a privileged spectator, but by working and fitting in where I'm needed here on the farms."

The youth's comments came as he perched atop a tractor, straw hat pushed back on his head, in a dusty field on a western Nebraska farm, working as a hired hand of Ed Prochaska and Roger Rankin of Ogallala.

"Believe me, nothing could be more different than what I've been doing," Javits said, squinting into the sun. "Here I'm working 12 hours a day, six days a week, and last summer I worked from 11 to 6 in an air-conditioned museum."

The work ranges from ranching and sheep raising to overseeing irrigated and dry land corn, beets, wheat and alfalfa.

"I wanted to get away from the hustle and bustle of the big city," he said. "I wanted somewhere quiet where I could do some thinking. I also wanted to see Nebraska.

"Everybody talks about the land," he said. "But to me the sky here is just incredible. Back in New York we don't get to see much of it for the buildings.

"I can really appreciate the farmer's problems. It sure takes a lot more brains and perseverance than I thought."

No Relief Seen In Cost Of Food

WASHINGTON (AP) — The rising cost of food, already having a painful impact on the nation's consumer, is still going up and the government says there is no sign of any leveling off.

Agriculture Department economist Stephen J. Hiemstra made the grim assessment after it was disclosed yesterday that wholesale food prices jumped another 1.2 per cent during June.

"There's not anything that we can see to indicate a drop or a leveling off" he said.

Due entirely to the jump in food costs, the government's Wholesale Price Index climbed four-tenths of one per cent in June to 113.2.

Continuing to lead the way in the rising food prices is the cost of meat, particularly beef.

Hiemstra said currently high farm prices for beef, the most popular meat, are expected to continue their momentum for most of the summer at least.

The Labor Department said yesterday wholesale prices for processed meat, poultry and fish jumped 4.5 per cent in June, leading all other food items.

Calling meat a significant factor in consumer food spending, Hiemstra said that it accounts for 25 to 30 per cent of the average grocery bill.

Consumers as an average spend about 17.2 cents of their take-home dollar on food.

Retail meat prices have been rising steadily while livestock prices paid to farmers have gone up over the months. The wholesale price of livestock went up 6 per cent in June, said the Bureau of Labor Statistics.

Despite efforts of the Nixon administration to discourage inflation, the impact of the food price spiral is more than obvious to the consumer.

As an example, the January index for beef and pork was 118.6 which means consumers paid $11.86 for meat which cost $10 in the 1957-59 period upon which the index is based. In May the same meat cost $12.34.

But nearly all food items have risen, Hiemstra said. Dairy products went from $12.27 in January to $12.36 in May; fruits and vegetables from $12.70 to $13; and cereal and bakery products from $12.05 to $12.16.

Eggs, which declined from the consumer price index rate of $11.98 in January to $9.74 in May, went up 6.6 per cent in the latest wholesale price report.

Course Confusion Shows In Probe Of Ship Collision

SUBIC BAY, Philippines (AP) — Statements by a young deck officer of the U.S. destroyer Frank E. Evans indicated today misunderstanding of a crucial message led to the collision with the Australian aircraft carrier Melbourne. Seventy-five American seamen perished.

The unsworn statements, made by Lt. (j.g.) Ronald C. Ramsey just hours after the June 3 collision, were read today before a U.S.-Australian inquiry board studying the cause of the crash. Ramsey, 24, of Long Beach, Calif., was officer of the deck in charge of the Evans at the time of the accident.

Ramsey's statement said he thought the Melbourne messaged a few minutes before the crash that she was taking a course of 160 degrees, which would have been a left turn, and he maneuvered the Evans accordingly.

But the Melbourne's commander, who sent the message, and officers aboard nearby ships who heard it said the message simply stated the carrier's course as 260 degrees.

Ramsey said there was panic and confusion on the bridge of the Evans in the final moments before impact. He said his junior deck officer, Lt. (j.g.) James A. Hopson, who was giving the steering orders, appeared quite panicked. Ramsey added he did not know if the ship's helmsman stayed at the wheel.

His statements indicated the destroyer was not on a wrong basic course before the collision as Hopson had testified.

Hopson, 28, of Kansas City, Kan., told the board the six-ship formation was maneuvering from a basic course of 185 degrees. Other witnesses have said the basic course was 205. Ramsey's account generally agreed with that or varied so slightly that Navy officials said it would not have been crucial.

Governor Says Some Hospital Attacks 'Valid'

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — A Sonoma State Hospital trustee who resigned in protest of Department of Mental Hygiene policies had many "valid" criticisms, Gov. Ronald Reagan said yesterday.

The governor was asked at a news conference if he believed hospital trustees should be given more control.

"I don't know whether that's the answer or not," Reagan said, "but the whole area of mental hygiene must have reform."

Dr. James V. Lowry, mental hygiene director, issued a statement through an official spokesman defending the department against criticism by Thomas J. Farrell, a Republican trustee of Sonoma State who resigned after eight years.

Farrell said he had become "increasingly dissillusioned after Dr. James V. Lowry became state mental hygiene director." He charged the department's bureaucratic system no longer responds to the voice of the people. It dictates without representation."

One-Car Accident Injures Vallejoans

Bobby E. Weir, 32, and his wife, Bobbie A., 29, were reported in satisfactory condition at Petaluma General Hospital. Weir suffered head cuts and his wife a possible broken nose. The California Highway Patrol said the car ran off the roadway and overturned.

Broadcasters Would Phase Out Tobacco

WASHINGTON (AP) — Cigarette commercials on most of the nation's television stations would be phased out over a four-year period under a surprise recommendation by the TV Code Review Board of the National Association of Broadcasters.

The plan, which would eliminate all cigarette commercials from subscribing networks and stations by Sept. 1, 1973, must be approved by the association's TV board of directors before it becomes effective.

In phasing out the commercials in a five-step program, stations and networks would first figure the minutes of such advertising each carried in a base year from July 1, 1968 to July 1, 1969.

Beginning next Jan. 1 each station or network would cut back advertising to 90 per cent of the base period. They would reduce cigarette ads to 75 per cent by Sept. 1, 1970; 50 per cent by Sept. 1, 1971; 25 per cent by Sept. 1, 1972; and be totally eliminated by Sept. 1, 1973.

The phase-out would apply specifically to the three national networks and 64.4 per cent of the nation's 623 commercial stations which subscribe to the NAB television code.

In other action, the review board moved to prohibit cigarette commercials in or adjacent to any program directed primarily at young audiences.

Driver Treated For A Possible Stroke

A Petaluma man was injured yesterday at 9:50 a.m. when he apparently suffered a seizure and struck parked car at 830 Petaluma Boulevard North, Petaluma, according to police.

Abe Feit, 69, of 14 Payran Street, was reported in satisfactory condition at Petaluma General Hospital suffering from a possible stroke. Police said he struck a car owned by Edward Matthias, 404 Cortez Drive, Petaluma.

Big Fuss Erupts In Parliament

LONDON (AP) — Members of Parliament hurled books, paper and invective at each other in the biggest row under the face of Big Ben since the Suez crisis of 1956.

Nearly 500 MPs participated in the uproar last night after the Laborite leader of the House of Commons, Fred Peart, moved to shelve a review of constituency boundaries under which opposition Conservatives had hoped to gain 15 seats in Parliament.

Conservative MP Geoffrey Rippon tore up paper and flung it at Peart, following through with a flying book. Peart winced when the paper hit him, caught the book and, white with anger, hurled it back.

Other Conservatives began chanting "shame, shame" and unleashed a barrage of paper on the Laborites opposite them.

Spaceship Gets Detailed Check

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — Crews of specialists painstakingly inspected the Saturn 5 rocket and Apollo 11 spaceship today with only hours remaining before the start of the countdown for the moon-landing mission launch.

Engineers and technicians prowled the 36-story-tall combination both inside and out, searching for possible flaws that could delay or ruin the $350 million flight.

The lengthy countdown is to start at 8 p.m. (EDT) tomorrow, aiming for a liftoff next Wednesday at 9:32 a.m.

TELEVISION IN REVIEW

Seizure Of Pueblo Documentary Is Set

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Several highly provocative summer documentaries have been announced by the television networks: one about the seizure of the American ship Pueblo, the other concerning the 1968 presidential race.

"Pueblo: A Question of Intelligence" is the title of a one-hour program that will be broadcast on NBC-TV Aug. 25. The network describes it as a "closeup study of a traumatic military event in American life," and makes clear the hour will go well beyond a mere recapitulation of the well-known events.

The broadcast "will attempt to assess the implications (of the Pueblo case) on American society today," says NBC-TV.

The purpose of the program, says the network, is "to examine all factors concerning the seizure of an American ship in neutral waters by an enemy nation, the internment of her crew in that country, and the failure of the military and the intelligence community to foresee what might happen under the existing circumstances—and to act when it did happen."

First, there will be a study of the mission itself. Next, the program will ask: "Who was to blame? . . . was the incident more than just a failure of a man, or a ship, or a service, or a government, or a national policy?"

Finally, the broadcast will explore "the role of the intelligence community, and the methods of gathering of military information . . .

Several weeks after "Pueblo: A Question of Intelligence" is broadcast, another provocative network documentary, "The Making of the President: 1968" will be presented for 90 minutes on CBS-TV. The air date is Sept. 9, it is the third in a series of programs that also covered the 1960 and 1964 presidential campaigns, and once again it reunites historian Theodore H. White with producer Mel Stuart of David Wolper productions.

Says an announcement from CBS News: "The production of the broadcast has been under way since January 1968, beginning with the primary in New Hampshire and running through President Richard M. Nixon's victory election night. There were three film crews in the field acting on directions from White as to what to cover."

Captain Raps Vessel Holding

VANCOUVER, B.C. (UPI)—Coast Guard officials boarded and detained a Canadian fishing vessel for seven hours on June 26 before ordering it from American waters, a Vancouver skipper charged yesterday.

Hugh MacLean, 52, captain of the Shirley Rose, said the unprecedented incident occurred off the Shumagin Islands, located some 300 miles southwest of Kodiak, Alaska.

Capt. MacLean claimed the action was a violation of an unwritten agreement between Canada and the United States which allows fishermen from both nations to fish within three miles of each other's shores.

He admitted his halibut vessel was three miles inside the U.S. 12-mile territorial limit when intercepted by the U.S. Coast Guard Cutter Confidente.

Two Bus Stop Shelters Planned

The Loma Verde Homeowners Association has voted to put up $275 to construct two school bus stop shelters for children during the winter rains, according to President Bruce B. Robinson.

One of these will be constructed in front of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints on Calle Arboleda. The second location will be selected later, he said.

Construction on Lois Curtain Playground Park on the same church site is progressing slowly because it is all being done by volunteers. The completion date has now been moved to August, he said.

Richmond School Tax Hike Passes

RICHMOND (UPI)—Trustees of the Richmond Unified School District were relieved today after voters in the area approved a school tax increase to $1.50 per $100 of assessed evaluation.

Of the district's 73,000 eligible voters, 31,410 turned out yesterday to pass the plan 16,558 to 14,852. A simple majority in the vote was necessary.

After a higher tax increase plan was defeated last month, trustees of the district expressed fears that special programs would have to be stalled and some schools run on a double-session basis.

The Richmond school district, which encompasses the area between Pinole and El Cerrito, defeated a proposal in May which would have placed the school tax at $2.50 per $100 of assessed evaluation.

New Parking Fine Rates In Effect

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — New parking fine rates went into effect yesterday in San Francisco, most of them an increase of $3.

The fine is now $5 for parking in crosswalks, in curbs and safety islands, on a sidewalk and in construction zones designated as no parking areas.

Overtime meter parking and parking in taxi zones still costs $2.

$2.4 Billion Tax Base Is Announced

SAN JOSE (UPI) — Santa Clara County published its new tax assessment roll yesterday, showing a $2.4 billion tax base, highest in the Bay Area.

Assessor Dwight Mathisen said the assessment role showed a value of $2,463,319,080 — a net increase of $185.5 million despite reduction in assessment of business inventories and elimination of household goods under new state law.

No Church Merger

LONDON (UPI)—Clergymen of the (Anglican) Church of England rejected plans yesterday for a merger with the Methodist Church of England. A 75 per cent majority by both sides was needed for a merger. Sixty-nine per cent of the Anglicans favored the merger and 77.5 per cent of the Methodists approved it.

Arizona Seeks Judd Delivery

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Papers asking the extradition of Winnie Ruth Judd, trunk murderess of the 1930s, were mailed by Arizona's Gov. Jack Williams to California's Gov. Ronald Reagan.

Williams yesterday signed the papers which charge that Mrs. Judd is a fugitive from a murder conviction.

A woman identified as Mrs. Judd has been in custody in Martinez, Calif., since being arrested June 27 at Danville where she was working as a housekeeper. Her fingerprints turned up while detectives were investigating another case.

Stanford Seeks Robot Teacher

STANFORD (AP) — Stanford University has received $300,000 from the National Science Foundation for development of a talking computer that would be able to teach classes.

Dr. Patrick Suppes, who directs the university's Institute for Mathematical Studies in the Social Sciences, disclosed that Monday at a meeting of school planners and educators.

The computer, he continued, will be programmed to conduct a dialogue with students on a question and answer basis.

Although the goal is a long way away, the computer may be a "teacher in every sense of the word," he declared.

No Neighborhood Restrictions For 100 Novato Low-Rent Units

Novato will have 50 more low-cost leased housing rentals for a total of 100, not limited to districts, the Novato City Council decided last night.

Philip S. Ehrlich Jr., chairman of the Marin County Housing Authority, asked the council — which had previously authorized 50 units, five in each of 10 districts — to permit another 50 units.

He said the housing authority had filled 39 of the first 50 authorized, but that the avialable low rent units were in the older portions of the city and not located according to the district limitations set by the council.

The vote on eliminating the district qualification was 3-2 with Mayor Harley A. McAskill and Councilman M. E. Babe Silva against because they felt that without the district limits, that there would be a concentration of low income families in the older areas of the city.

At Ehrlich's request, the council raised from 10 to 20 per cent the number of apartments which could be leased in one building. It also eliminated all duplexes and triplexes from any restrictions for low rent housing.

Ehrlich also asked that next fall the council consider putting permissive legislation on the ballot next June to authorize the housing authority to develop public housing in Novato. This must be approved by the people before the hossing authority can construct housing within the city, he said.

The Novato City Council Also:

Skeleton Solves An Old Mystery

SANTA CRUZ (AP) — A skeleton found in a hollow log at Big Basin State Park was identified yesterday as that of a San Francisco medical student who disappeared nine years ago.

Hugh Kilpatric, Santa Cruz County deputy coroner, said a wallet found with the skeleton contained papers belonging to William J. Moger, 28, a San Franciscan who had been a student at the University of California Medical Center.

Moger, who had previously threatened suicide, vanished from his home April 13, 1960. His car was found then near the park but a search by sheriff's deputies and rangers was unsuccessful.

A hiker found the remains on Friday, in a sleeping bag inside the hollow log, in a remote part of the park.

Four Piggy Banks Looted

Four piggy banks in two Fairfax homes have been robbed recently, Fairfax police reported today.

Dale Alstrom of 19 Rocca Drive reported yesterday his home had been entered, possibly through a window, during the July 4 holiday and $30 was missing from two banks.

Carolyn Sue Jean of 14 Sequoia Road reported Monday $18 in cash had been taken from two piggy banks at her home while she was away for the weekend. She reported the burglars had dumped garbage from a sack to the living room rug and apparently used the sack to carry away the banks.

Bando Likes New Role Of A's Team Captain

OAKLAND — Can a chubby little Italian boy from Cleveland find happiness with a lovely heiress from New Jersey while at the same time performing inspirational duties as captain-select of the good guys in the White Shoes?

Probably.

Salvatore Bando, the teddy bearish third baseman of the A's, was blessed before the season with a marriage to a lovely girl from the East and a month ago was named team captain by Manager Henry Bauer. If all these pleasures have his Italian crebellum swimming, there's no outward sign. Marriage, he says, has provided him more rest, which can mean anything. The captaincy, he says, has given him more baseball insight.

Like A Legal Mussolini

"I've matured with this," says Sal, who is only 25 and playing but his second full major league season. "Before Bauer named me captain, I used to do a lot of the same things I'm doing now. Talking to the pitchers when they seemed to be in trouble or hollering it up in the infield.

"Now I feel I have a license to do this 'advising.' You know, now I'm sort of a legal Mussolini."

Because there are older players on the A's than Sal, and because others have been on the club longer there might have been some resentment when Bauer gave Bando the title and the 500 buck bonus that goes with it. Did Sal encounter any?

"If there was any there, nobody said anything," said Sal.

Soured After 1967 Incident

Dick Green was team captain in Kansas City but soured on the job after the "cocktail party in the sky" incident late in the 1967 season. And because, as Sal suggests, the captain should be an infielder, Bando seems a logical choice — for shortstop Bert Campaneris speaks only with his feet, second baseman Green is becalmed and first basemen Danny Carter prefers to concern himself with hitting to the exclusion of most other team issues.

Thus the investiture of Bando. Yet, Sal finds he's had to adopt a toothy-grin image that often is uncomfortable. "I can't let myself get down. If I strike out or hit into a double play, I can't sulk about it. I have a responsibility, I think, to keep everybody else up. Yet I've got to get on the backs of the other guys if they let down — if they don't hustle on a defensive play or if they ignore being called off a fly ball or pop up.

Knows Problems Of Manager

"But the interesting thing to me is the insight I've gained into the manager's problems. I see his job in a new light. Now he takes me into his confidence, he talks to me more." And Sal, in turn, talks to the pitchers more.

"It's an impossibility for a pitcher to know what's going on all the time during a game," he says. "He's so busy thinking about making his pitch that he ignores maybe a double play situation or foreout possibilities, or who's covering on a pickoff. So I just walk over there and give the pitcher friendly reminders."

Friendly? "Well," smiles Sal, "I guess I do enjoy this sort of leadership role. Just like Mussolini . . ."

The next thing Charlie Finley may build in the Coliseum is a balcony on which Bando can watch his troops pass in review.

Raider Rookies Open Grid Camp

SANTA ROSA (UPI) — First year coach John Madden greeted rookie hopefuls today as the Oakland Raiders opened their training camp. Madden and his staff have 11 days in which to get the "rooks" into shape for the "All-Rookie" game against the Dallas Cowboys July 21st at the Oakland Coliseum.

The Raider veterans report to camp Monday.

Hazeltine Hesitant About Reporting

Fourteen years ago, a young first-year San Francisco 49er linebacker named Matt Hazeltine was having trouble making up his mind about staying in professional football.

Today, 14 full seasons later, the former Tamalpais High School star, University of California All-American and 49er senior citizen in terms of service, is having doubts again.

"It's been 14 years," he said yesterday. "It's a great sport. It allows men to be little boys for a long time. But you just can't go on forever."

With the opening of rookie training camp only four days away; Matt isn't sure whether he'll show up. (Veterans are due at the 49ers' Santa Barbara camp July 20.)

'I haven't made up my mind," he said. "I am very unsure.

"I don't know though," he added. "I may change my mind. Maybe this is the year and my eyes will get big again."

Hazeltine, called on to assess the 49ers' chances in the National Football League race this season, explained that his hesitancy about playing is not a matter of any difficulties with the 49er organization, nor a matter of not being in shape.

"I've stayed in good shape," he said. "I run every day. I run in the rain, I run in the wind. You have to do that."

As far as the 49ers chances, Hazeltine was full of his usual optimism.

"It's going to be a hell of a season," he declared. "The 49ers have probably the best passing attack in the league. It might be a year away, but it's a great one. And that's the name of the game. We're looking for a winner.

Elmer Collett, the Tamalpais High School grad and No. 1 offensive left guard for the 49ers, will be playing this year, although the issue was in doubt at one time.

Elmer, an Army Reserve private with the 6253d hospital unit of the Sixth Army, had received orders to report for 120 days of active duty next Monday, which would have all but nixed any football this season.

Collett, however, managed to receive a deferment on grounds that he is head of the household that consists of two young brothers and his mother, and that football is his only livelihood. Collett will also be taking six units of classes at San Francisco State.

The San Francisco State grad, who broke into the 49er starting lineup in his rookie season two years ago, was originally scheduled to report for active duty Nov. 20 but had received no orders until this month.

PRAISES RESERVES

King: Don't Give Up On Giants

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — What happens if you are Giants Manager Clyde King and five of your regulars are out of the lineup while Houston right-hander Larry Dierker hurls a one-hitter for six innings?

The answer is simple. You sit back patiently, watch reserves collect seven of the last nine hits and the Giants overcome their Houston hex with a 7-4 victory over the Astros.

RALLY

"Don't ever give up on this club," warned King after the Giants scored twice in the seventh yesterday and bunched singles in a five-run rally in the eighth. The win ended Houston's seven game victory streak against San Francisco.

This afternoon Giants hurler Bob Bolin, 5-5, faced Houston's Denny Lemaster, 7-8.

"Our guys just don't care who is pitching," added King. "A lot of clubs would relax if they are behind a top pitcher. But these kids don't know how to quit. The reserves are doing quite a job."

IN LINEUP

Mays was back in the lineup when the three-game series ended today.

Despite five walks in the first five innings, Dierker was in command against the second-stringers, allowing only a single to reserve outfielder Dave Marshall in the first six innings. Marshall opened the seventh with his second single and Tito Fuentes and Ron Hunt each belted run-scoring doubles, pulling the Giants to within 3-2.

With one out in the eighth, Bob Burda singled and went to second on Jim Wynn's error. Ken Henderson followed with a run-scoring single, and Marshall collected his third hit, chasing Dierker, 11-6.

Catcher John Stephenson, obtained from the minors Saturday, greeted reliever Fred Gladding with his first major league hit of the season, scoring Henderson.

With two down, Fuentes ripped a run-scoring single and Hunt followed with a two-run single. Hunt, shaking an 0 for 10 slump, was the only Giant regular to figure in the scoring.

Fuentes, who is batting .500 in the four games since replacing Lanier, collected two hits, scored twice, had two RBIs and made a defensive gem prior to Wynn's second homer.

"I know I'm playing for a guy who's doing a great job, so I know I have to play well," said Fuentes.

Athletics In July Swoon?

CHICAGO (AP) — Are the Oakland Athletics suffering a June swoon in July?

The Athletics, who held the American League Western Division lead last month, slipped another half game behind the Minnesota Twins last night as they split a doubleheader with Chicago while the Twins beat Kansas City.

The A's, who have lost five of their last six games and are 3½ behind the Twins, send Chuck Dobson, 9-7, to the mound tonight against Chicago's Billy Wynne, 3-1.

SPLIT

Oakland clipped Chicago 2-1 in yesterday's first game on Jim Hunter's rocky seven-hitter but dropped the nightcap 5-2.

Hunter, gaining his sixth victory against seven losses, was in trouble much of the way in the first contest.

He retired the side in order only in the second, third and ninth innings and needed Dick Green's great catch of a pop fly down the right field line to avert a tie in the eighth.

STRAND SIX

The A's, who left six men stranded in the first four innings, scored in the fifth on Sal Bando's single and got the winning run in the eighth on Green's sacrifice fly.

The White Sox broke open the second game with a four-run sixth inning, highlighted by Tom McCraw's bases-loaded triple.

Bando figured in the A's two runs in the second game. He was hit by a pitch to open the second and eventually scored on Dave Duncan's single, then walked to open the fourth and scored on Ted Kubiak's single.

CATER HURT

The A's took a 2-1 lead into the disastrous sixth, when the White Sox knocked out A's starter Jim Nash.

The first White Sox run came in the third on two singles and a throwing error by Reggie Jackson, who hit teammate Danny Cater in the back of the neck and knocked him out of the game. It was not immediately known whether Cater could play tonight.

Some 170 would-be-champs in 14 divisions have signed to play in the six-day tournament.

This will be the first year for action in the boys 18 division, in which Bob Klyce of San Rafael, the 16-year-old champ last year, is top-seeded.

Entries for the tournament closed last night. The draw for opening day action is scheduled to be completed today.

Opening matches will start at 9 a.m. Monday. All entrants are asked to report to Albert Park, although some opening day matches are expected to be played at San Rafael High School. The San Rafael Recreation Department will provide transportation from Albert Park to San Rafael High School when necessary.

BRIT!SH OPEN

Charles Shoots A Sizzling 66

LYTHAM ST. ANNES, England (AP) — Bob Charles, the New Zealand left-hander who won here six years ago, equalled his own course record with a five-under par 66 and seized the early lead over a star-studded field in the first round of the British Open Golf Championship today.

Among the first American finishers the leaders were Orville Moody of Killian, Tex., and Davis Love Jr. of Atlanta, who shot 70s. Neither of the other two, Gardner Dickinson nor Lee Trevino was able to break par. Trevino, of Dallas, finished with a 75, Dickinson, of Palm Beach, Fla., came in at 76.

RAIN

Charles fired his superlative round over a course freshened by overnight rain and, with only a light wind blowing, the field of 130 had virtually ideal conditions.

The New Zealander went out in 31 and came home in 35 over a course lengthened by 200 yards over the one he mastered in 1963. He had a 277 total that year and won the title in a 36-hole playoff with Phil Rodgers of La Jolla, Calif.

He had five birdies on the front nine and three on the back nine, and his round far outstripped the field. The nearest to him at this point were Moody and Love.

LIKES START

Moody, the 35-year-old former army sergeant who won the U.S. Open earlier this year, said after his round:

"That's the way I started out when I won the U.S. Open. If I start out like that then I tend to improve."

Trevino, taking a 41 coming home after opening with a 34, was anything but exuberant about his round. "Thursday," he said, "I'm going to leave my driver in the clubhouse and go out with a three wood and one iron.

"Once you get into the rough here you've got a bogey. That's why I bogeyed so many holes on the last nine."

Dickinson also had trouble on the back nine, taking a 41 after going out in 35. Included in his last nine were two sixes.

Among the other early finishers, Bruce Devlin of Australia shot a 71 and Roberto de Vicenzo of Argentina had a 72.

De Vicenzo, the British Open champ in 1967, had a brilliant 32 going out, but slipped to 40 on the back nine.

Young Red Sox Hurler Triumphs

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

Nagy, Boston's 21-year-old pitching prodigy, ended Lolich's string of nine consecutive victories last night with a 4-1 three-hit triumph over Detroit.

The Red Sox' right-hander also drove in the first two runs of his brief major league career with a second inning single—after Lolich loaded the bases on three straight walks.

NOT OFF HOOK

"He had walked a few, and I didn't want to let him off the hook," Nagy said after reeling off his fifth victory in six decisions. "They never let me off the hook when I walked a few."

Lolich, 11-2, had been beaten just once—by the Red Sox 5-4 on April 25—in 19 previous verdicts, three of them in the 1968 World Series, since last Sept. 9.

The victory sent the Red Sox back into second place in the American League East—one half game ahead of the Tigers—but they lost half a game to Baltimore's runaway Orioles, who swept a twi-night doubleheader from New York 10-3 and 4-1.

Elsewhere, Chicago shackled Oakland slugger Reggie Jackson in a doubleheadersplit with the Athletics, taking the nightcap 5-2 after a 2-1 loss; Clevelandpitched around big Frank Howard and nipped Washington 6-5; Cesar Tovar's first 1969 homer got Minnesota past Kansas City 4-3 and Seattle beat California 3-1 on Don Mincher's three-run blast.

LONE RUN

Nagy was tagged for a first inning double by Tom Tresh, then held the Tigers hitless until the eighth, when Dick McAuliffe singled. A hit batsman, Jim Northrup's double and a ground out produced Detroit's lone run in the ninth.

Lolich walked Tony Conigliaro, George Scott and Russ Gibson in the second before Nagy's single to right put Boston ahead to stay. Gibson's bases-loaded single in the third gave the Red Sox a pair of insurance runs.

Dodgers Take Over Lead From Slumping Braves

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Los Angeles Dodgers ache all over but the Atlanta Braves are the ones feeling the pain.

Led by super-cripple Manny Mota, who banged out eight hits, one short of the major league record for most hits in a doubleheader, the Dodgers swept Atlanta 5-3 and 4-3 last night and took over first place in the National League West from the Braves by one-half game.

After rapping seven singles and a double in 10 at-bats, driving in three runs, scoring twice and stealing a base, Mota limped into the clubhouse, where his left elbow and left knee were packed in ice.

Mota broke the elbow playing winter ball in the Dominican Republic and injured the knee sliding a few days ago. The elbow probably will require post-season surgery, but the injuries didn't stop the 5-foot-11, 168-pound outfielder from raising his average since coming to the Dodgers from Montreal to .412 and his over-all mark to .366.

Elsewhere, the New York Mets rallied to nip Chicago 4-3 and trimmed the Cubs' lead in the East to four games, Cincinnati whipped San Diego 8-2, San Francisco turned back Houston 7-4, St. Louis downed Philadelphia 6-3 and Pittsburgh walloped Montreal 8-2.

Mota's big night began with an infield hit in the first inning of the opener, after Hank Aaron had put the Braves ahead 1-0 with his 23rd home run and 533rd of his career. Willie Davis singled Mota to third and they both scored when Orlando Cepeda threw wildly to second trying to trap Davis in a rundown.

In the third inning, Mota singled and was out trying for a double. In the fourth, he doubled a run home and was out trying for third. In the sixth he got a harmless single and he flied out in the eighth.

Mota singled in the first inning of the second game and stole second, but was stranded. He wasted a single in the third and grounded out in the sixth, one of 14 straight batters retired by Ron Reed.

But Maury Wills broke the spell in the eighth with a two-out triple and Mota singled him in, cutting Atlanta's lead to 2-1. Mota then scored the tying run on singles by Davis and Len Gabrielson.

The Braves went ahead 3-2 in the ninth on Rico Carty's pinch double, but Tom Haller, who homered in the first game, started another rally with a lead-off double in the Dodgers' half. A single by Bill Sudakis knotted the score again and, after a single by Willie Crawford, the Braves elected to walk Wills intentionally and pitch to Mota. He promptly singled, scoring Sudakis with the winning run.

Hunters Get Chance At Special Elk Hunts

A special controlled hunt for tule elk in the wens Valley has won the conditional approval of the alifornia Fish and Game Commission and special unts for the Shasta elk herd and antelope have been pproved.

The commission, at its June meeting in San Francisco, pproved the Owens Valley elk unt on the condition that the epartment of Fish and Game se only DFG personnel in making its August census of the erds and the census discloses least 300 elk.

THE DEPARTMENT of Fish nd Game has recommended a ontrolled hunt for 85 animals, 4 bulls and 51 cows, under the ommission's policy of keeping he herds between 250 and 300 nimals to maintain them in ealthy condition. The August, 968, census disclosed 335 aninals in the five Owens Valley erds.

Applications for the hunt will e available from DFG offices and license agents about Aut. 1. Deadline for submitting applications will be 5 p.m., Aug. 20, and a statewide public drawing for permits will he held Aug. 25. The fee for successful applicants will be $50. The hunt will be held in three periods during October.

THE SPECIAL Shasta elk hunt will be held Nov. 8-30 with 100 permits for Rocky Mountain elk in the rugged Squaw Creek country around Shasta Lake in Shasta and Siskiyou counties. The herd consists of about 1,000 Rocky Mountain elk which are descendants of 50 elk transplanted to the area from Yellowstone National Park in 1916.

The DFG cautioned hunters that success will be low, probably 10 per cent or less, because of the difficulty of spotting elk in the heavy cover of mixed brush and timber.

APPLICATIONS for the drawing must be submitted to Department of Fish and Game Sacramento headquarters by 5 p.m. Oct. 1. The drawing will be held Oct. 6 and successful applicants will be notified by mail and required to pay a fee of $25.

The state's sixth consecutive special controlled hunt for surplus buck antelope will be held Aug. 23 - Sept. 1 in Modoc, Lassen, and eastern Shasta and Siskiyou counties, and will involve 315 permits costing $15 each.

Applications will be available about the middle of this month, and the deadline for submission is 5 p.m., Tuesday, Aug. 5. A public drawing will be held Aug. 7.

THE STATE Fish and Game Commission has approved 42 special antlerless, either-sex deer hunts with 14,980 permits for the 1969-70 season. The Department of Fish and Game had recommended 50 special hunts with 17,860 permits but six counties vetoed or modified hunts proposed within their boundaries.

Permits for the special hunts will be awarded on the basis of statewide public drawings. Applications for the drawings are included with the regular deer tags. Successful applicants will be required to pay a $5 fee for special hunts except on the Dixie Refuge Hunt in Plumas County, in which hunters will need a permit and a regular "B" buck tag.

APPLICATIONS must include both the name and number of the hunt applied for. The Department of Fish and Game will distribute special hunt maps showing the hunts and listing their names and numbers. Drawing for early hunts will be Tuesday, Aug. 12, with applications due at DFG headquarters in Sacramento by 5 p.m. Aug. 11. Drawing for the late hunts will be Thursday, Aug. 21, with the application deadline 5 p.m. Aug. 19.

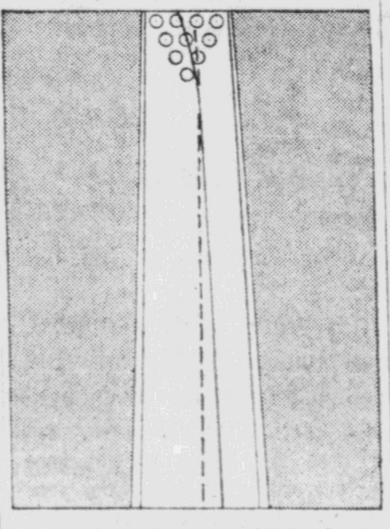
BOWLING TIPS

By DON CARTER



On fast lanes, which don't allow the ball to hook normally, don't give the ball an exaggerated lift. Instead, move a few boards to the right of your usual starting point. If that doesn't get the ball up to the pocket, try slowing down a little.

Quite A Start For Golfer

BURLINGTON, Vt. (AP) — It was the first time Dale Dusabllon, 18, of Burlington had ever held a golf club.

It was the first hole of the Quarry Hill Golf Course, 115 yards long, and Joseph Boutin, of Essex Junction, Vt., with whom she was playing, told her: "Spread your feet and hit the ball easy."

The ball popped in the air, landed about a foot short of the green and rolled into the cup.

Wolman Not Giving Up

BALTIMORE (AP) — Jerry Wolman asked U.S. District Court today to void its previous approval of Wolman's conditional sale of the Philadelphia Eagles football team to Leonard Tose.

The Silver Springs, Md. financier contended that Tose, a Norristown, Pa., trucking executive, "acted deceitfully and in bad faith" and repudiated "his written and court pledged undertaking to resell the Eagles" to Wolman.

Hyman P. Tatelbaum, Baltimore attorney for Wolman, filed the application for a restraining order against Tose. Joseph O. Kaiser, U.S. referee in bankruptcy, signed an order giving Tose 20 days in which to show cause why the relief should not be granted.

'New' Don Lazzarini To Play This Time

(Third in a series on entrants in Sunday's Marin County Golf Tournament of Champions.)

Don Lazzarini will be playing in his third Marin Golf Tournament of Champions Sunday, but there is a big difference in the Meadow Club champ.

He's married, now.

Lazzarini, 28, third in the 1967 tourney and fourth last year, was a bachelor in those two tournaments. Eight months ago the handsome young golfer was wed to Sharon Serafin of Denver, and the couple now make their home at 118 Ross Street in San Rafael.

Don, a two-handicapper, concedes an advantage over the field by playing on his home course. "Anytime you play on your home course there is an advantage," he said, "mostly on the greens."

"I feel I have as good a shot as anybody in the tourney," said the husky belter, "and my game is starting to fall into place."

Lazzarini, a sales representatie with J. H. Baxter Co. of San Mateo, dealing in forest products, feels it will probably take a score of about par to win on the par-71, 6,383-yard Fairfax course.

He won his third straight Meadow Club championship last August, breezing to the title by downing Dr. Marv Gilberg by nine strokes in the 72-hole tourney.

Lazzarini says he doesn't know much about the other golfers in the tourney, as he, Ken Harnquist of San Geronimo National and Mill Valley's Byron Eggleston are the only repeaters in the TOC. "But I heard that Orv Suttles is quite a golfer," he said.

Don, like younger brother Dean, was a football star at Drake High School and made all-county in 1957. "But I wasn't as fast as Dean," laughed Don. (Dean, now 21 and a halfback at University of Pacific, is coholder of the Marin County Athletic League record in the 100-yard dash, 9.8).

ALMANAC

Today is Wednesday, July 9, the 190th day of 1969 with 175 to follow.

The moon is between its last quarter and new phase. The morning stars are Mercury, Venus and Saturn. The evening stars are Mars and Jupiter.

On this day in history:

In 1850 President Zachary Taylor died of a typhus infection after serving one year and four months. He was succeeded the next day by Vice President Millard Fillmore.

In 1900 Queen Victoria signed an act by which the individual state of Australia agreed to join into a federal commonwealth.

In 1943 American, Canadian and British forces invaded Sicily.

In 1960 Russian Premier Nikita Khrushchev threatened the United States with Soviet rockets if Washington attempted to oust the Castro Communist regime in Cuba.

A thought for the day: Friedrich Wilhelm Nietzsche said: "Distrust all in whom the impulse to punish is powerful."

Inspection Law Clears The Roads

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP) — The state estimates that its new compulsory vehicle inspection law has contributed to removal of more than 200,000 old cars and trucks from the road last year.

A survey indicated many car owners and dealers decided to junk their $100 automobiles rather than bear the expense of repairs to pass the annual test.

HOW TO PLAY WINNING BRIDGE

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

Hold-Up Play Sometimes Worst Possible Of Actions

Every experienced player knows the hold-up play: you refuse to win the first trick or perhaps even the second trick when the opponents lead their best suit against your no-trump contract. Only the expert knows that this useful maneuver is the worst possible move in some hands.

LOW CARD

West opened the four of spades, and South played dummy's low card, following the "rule" of holding up the ace. East won with the queen of spades and returned his other spade to dummy's ace. West got in with the king of clubs in time to defeat the contract with the rest of his spades. Down one.

South would make his contract if he played the ace of spades at the first trick. He would have to take the club finesse, of course, and West would win with the king.

If West then led a low spade, East would win with the queen but would be unable to continue the suit. Any switch would allow South to take 10 tricks in a hurry. If West led the king of spades instead of continuing with a low spade, he would overtake his partner's queen and could next take the jack, but South's ten would then provide a second stopper.

HOW TO TELL

Do not hold up the ace when you have A-x in one hand opposite four to the ten. Your best chance is to block the suit by playing the ace at once.

In today's hand, for example, South is not worried about a 4-3 break of the seven missing spades since he can afford to lose three spades and one club. He is in danger only if West has led from a five-card suit, which means that East will have only two spades.

REASON FOR KING

If West held five spades headed by K-Q-J he would lead the king. Therefore if East has a doubleton it must be headed by the king, queen or jack; and the play of the ace immediately is sure to block the suit.

DAILY QUESTION

As dealer, you hold:

♠ A 6
♥ J 9 5
♦ K J 8
♣ Q J 10 6 5.

What do you say?

ANSWER: Pass or bid one club.

This is a borderline hand, with 12 points in high cards and one point for the doubleton. Most experts would pass, but you are not likely to get into much trouble if you open one club unless you have a very ambitious partner.

New Look At Hospital Bonds, Value

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. What types of investment are school and hospital bonds? — B. J.

A. I assume that you have in mind public schools and community hospitals. The latter may be operated by the community itself or by independent medical groups, often affiliated with religious organizations. When public school districts need to finance new buildings or provide improvements for existing plant, they issue bonds for public sale which are underwritten by investment houses and distributed through the market for municipals or tax-exempts.

Interest income from these bonds is exempt from federal income tax. Cities and towns float their bonds with interest exempt from federal levy. A single bond issue may cover a group of expenditures anticipated by a community.

If a publicly supported hospital is included, or if one is the sole beneficiary of a community bond issue, the interest received from these bonds would also qualify as tax-exempt. Interest from bonds offered by hospitals independently sponsored does not qualify as tax-exempt and consequently such issues are likely to provide a better than average yield.

Some new municipal offerings are meeting noticeable sales resistance because their interest return is limited by the issuing authority. Municipals generally attract large-scale investors looking for tax relief and hence owners of these bonds in smaller quantity may find that their holdings are not readily marketed when they want to sell them.

I would also add this word of caution about hospital bonds. After the initial sale the holder may find it difficult to arrange either a resale or a redemption, should cash suddenly be needed.

Gas In Adriatic

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Weststates Petroleum Co. is now testing the first gas well drilled in its Adriatic Sea development. The well, Riccione Mare 3, was drilled to a depth of 10,893 feet and productive gas sands were encountered at depths between 4,300 and 7,300 feet.

Jet Commuter Fare Hikes Slated Aug. 1

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Jet commuter fares in California will be increased Aug. 1 under a state Public Utilities Commission order announced yesterday.

The increases, ranging from 4 to 14.3 per cent, were given to Pacific Southwest Airlines, United Air Lines and Western Air Lines.

Air California had been granted interim increases earlier this year and put some into effect at that time.

Fares between Los Angeles and the San Francisco Bay Area will increase 7.6 per cent from $13.50 to $14.52, exclusive of tax.

The San Diego - San Francisco fare will go up 5.9 per cent from $19.85 to $20.95.

The PUC said fares will still be well below those for similar services elsewhere in the country.

It described PSA as the "rate making carrier," saying no other carrier can compete effectively at higher fares.

The PUC said airlines have been faced with substantial cost increases in the past few years. It estimated PSA's rate of return will be 9.35 per cent as compared to the current 5.6 per cent.

Wall Street Depressed Again By Bad Outlook

NEW YORK (UPI)—A general uneasiness over recent domestic and foreign developments kept the New York Stock Exchange a sellers market today, driving prices down for the third session in a row in fairly light trading.

The UPI market indicator was off on 1,530 issues traded. Declines held a nearly three to one edge over advances, 952 to 323.

There was little incentive for buying and prices fell for lack of support, rather than any real selling pressure. The lethargy and caution stemmed in part from concern over the fate of the income tax surcharge. The Senate Finance Committee is balking at an extension of the surcharge until tax reforms can be considered along with it. It now appears that the bill to extend the tax will not come to the Senate floor for a vote until late summer or early fall.

The continuing crisis in the Middle East also was causing some investors to react cautiously. Many apparently have decided to remain on the sidelines until the domestic and international pictures are clarified.

Giant Pan Am Food Center Plans Backed

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Plans of Pan American World Airways to build the largest food preparation center in the west at San Francisco International Airport were approved yesterday by the San Francisco Public Utilities Commission.

The plans call for a $4 million structure in which 340 persons will be employed. The building will be one of a series Pan American is constructing in anticipation of expanded Pacific area traffic which will be generated by jumbo jets.

Texas Land Sold

DALLAS (UPI)—Texas Pacific Land Trust has sold its surface estate in a square mile section of land in Culberson County, Tex., 20 miles northwest of Duval Sulphur Co.'s sulphur plant. The sale is subject to retained mineral royalty interest and an agreement with Texaco, Inc., concerning the mineral rights.

Crocker National Reports Gains Over Year Ago

SAN FRANCISCO (BW) — Crocker National Corp. has reported that a sharp increase in second quarter net operating earnings brought earnings for the first six months of 1969 to a level 12.9 per cent above the 1968 first half.

Net operating earnings for the six months ended June 30 were $15,609,707, equal to $1.51 a share, compared to $13,823,078, or $1.34 a share, for the corresponding period of 1968.

In the second quarter of this year, net operating earnings were equal to 84 cents a share, vs. 71 cents a share in the 1968 second quarter.

Emmett G. Solomon, board chairman of both Crocker National Corp. and Crocker-Citizens Bank, said the bank's deposits and loans reached new highs on June 30, while the corporation's total resources crossed the $5 billion mark for the first time.

Deposits on June 30 were $4,254,835,305, as against $3,746,085,712 a year ago. Total loans were $2,965,762,281 vs. $2,577,282,304 on June 30, 1968.

Total resources were $5,009,490,927, compared with $4,296,053,904 a year earlier.

DOOR OPEN IN ROSS

Chance For A Creek Alternate

By DAVID DIETZ

The unanimous decision, climaxing a four-hour public hearing that began June 24, appeared for the time being to heal the split caused among Ross citizens by the flood control controversy.

It meant that skeptics of alternate plans to a concrete channel were temporarily contented because the board's vote will keep the flood control project through the Ross Valley on schedule. It gave to opponents of the Army Corps of Engineers' plan for an open concrete ditch time to plan for an alternative north of the general vicinity of Lagunitas Bridge.

What happens in the next phase also could have a bearing on construction methods used for the rest of the flood control project tentatively proposed through San Anselmo and Fairfax.

About 200 persons appeared yesterday in the supervisors' chambers in hopes of a settlement of the divisive flood control issue. The hearing had been continued from June 24 because Supervisors Michael Wornum and William A. Gnoss were absent.

At issue were five different proposals to extend the flood control project from College Avenue in Kentfield — where construction is scheduled to halt in the fall because of winter rains — through Ross to the San Anselmo city line.

The least expensive, at $3.8 million, was the corps plan to build a 33-foot-wide concrete channel the full length of the Ross phase. Other possibilities raised by a citizens group, were to construct an underground creek diversion along Sylvan Lane from the Ross Creek confluence to College Avenue at an estimated cost of $5.75 million, leaving Corte Madera Creek in its natural state; to build a diversion that would end at the Ross-Kentfield line instead of College Avenue at an estimated cost of $5.19 million; to install the diversion upstream from the Lagunitas Bridge vicinity, with the remainder a concrete channel, estimated at $4.86 million, and to place an underground culvert beneath the Corte Made-

TWO BIG THREATS TO SEGREGATION

Justice Department Planning Lawsuits Against Chicago, Georgia Public Schools

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Nixon administration today threatened two large school systems — the state of Georgia and the city of Chicago — with desegregations suits unless remedial action is taken within two weeks.

In the Georgia case, the Justice Department told the State Board of Education it has 15 days to come up with a voluntary plan to end racially separate school systems in all 194 districts.

The threat was contained in a letter sent by Asst. Atty. Gen. Jerris Leonard to Dr. Jack P. Nix, Georgia's superintendent of education.

It came on the heels of a similar warning to the Chicago Board of Education that a lawsuit may be in the works to force the nation's third largest school system to desegregate its faculty.

In his letter to Nix, Leonard said 119 Georgia districts still had not adopted plans "for the full conversion from a dual to a unitary method" of operation in compliance with federal law against racial discrimination.

Leonard told the Chicago board it must act within two weeks toward integrating its faculty. He said current faculty assignment procedures deny Negro pupils equal protection under the law.

In a letter to board President Frank M. Whiston, Leonard said the department is providing school officials "with an opportunity to take appropriate steps to eliminate voluntarily the racially discriminatory practices we found in the operation of the school system."

Leonard asked for a report within two weeks on what action the board is prepared to take. He suggested steps including "a comprehensive program to disestablish the segregated pattern of faculty assignments and to equalize the distribution of certificated and experienced personnel and substitute teachers for the opening of the next school year."

Reagan Pledges Lid On Any School Funds

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—The Assembly today pressed ahead with bills providing an extra $200 million for schools and clamping down on campus rebels despite a warning flag waved by Gov. Ronald Reagan.

The economy-minded chief executive served notice he will carve down by veto any school aid finance bill whose funds exceeded the $120 million his budget proposes for extra education aid.

Reagan also told a news conference yesterday that an important provision of an Assembly package aimed at dealing with collegiate rioters would set a "very dangerous precedent."

He objected to a feature compelling the state to subsidize local police for campus disturbance work.

Reagan rarely warns he would veto legislation, but he relaxed the self-imposed policy when asked if he would reject a bill calling for an extra $200 million in state aid for hard-pressed local school districts.

"I would be forced to," he said.

The Legislature last week sent Reagan a $6.3 billion budget which called for $198 million in new school aid. Reagan vetoed the sum down to $120 million and pledged to spend any additional surpluses for school support.

Those surpluses won't be known until November. Estimates vary, but some finance specialists maintain the sum would be anywhere from $10 million to $60 million.

Clean Water Bill Sent To Reagan

SACRAMENTO (AP) — The Assembly sent to Gov. Ronald Reagan today a major overhaul of the state's water quality laws, including a $6,000-a-day fine for polluters.

The lower house voted 67-0 to accept minor technical amendments the Senate made to the measure by Assemblyman Carley Porter, D-Compton.

Porter has described his bill as the first complete revision of the state's 20-year-old water quality act.

Besides setting stiffer fines for violation, the measure gives the state attorney general's office the power to take civil action against polluters.

Unhappy On Rules Decision

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Two members of the Senate's old guard were dumped today from the powerful Senate Rules Committee by supporters of Republican President pro tem Howard Way.

Democrats and Republicans joined to remove Republicans John F. McCarthy of San Rafael and Jack Schrade of San Diego.

REPLACEMENTS

They were replaced by two "young Turk" backers of Way—Clair Burgener of San Diego and Robert Stevens of Los Angeles. They were part of the GOP bloc that earlier had helped replace Way's predecessor, Democratic President pro tem Hugh M. Burns of Fresno.

The move solidified Way's takeover of the Senate machinery, and came in an atmosphere of bitterness.

Burns, who supported his long-time friends McCarthy and Schrade, rose before the vote and said, "Now what you are doing is harpooning the people I represent."

"In a way it's nice to be relieved of the job," McCarthy told the Independent-Journal after the vote. He quickly added, "but I still would like to have it."

NOT HAPPY

"I'm not happy about what happened — that's for damn sure," he said.

Asked what the vote would do to his influence in the Senate, where he is third in seniority, McCarthy said "not a damn thing."

That's the way it goes in politics; one day you lose, and one day you win, and tomorrow's another day."

McCarthy said his defeat did not alter his previous prediction that he may still try to unseat

Bill Asks Shoreline Powers

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — The Reagan administration, in a surprise last-minute shift, has proposed extensive amendments to toughen the bill it favors to keep controls on filling San Francisco Bay.

The administration-sponsored bill, SB 117 by Sen. Milton Marks, R-San Francisco, now would drop the late 1969 expiration date that would have killed the San Francisco Bay Conservation and Development Commission.

But the amendments, to be included by Marks in his bill today, would write into law the standards for bay fill proposed in the BCDC's master plan for the bay and shoreline to guarantee public access and use, and provide for controls over shoreline development.

Brand new would be an amendment stating that the Williamson Act — which permits property owners to put their land in agricultural preserves — should be applied to bay lands. This act, in effect for several years allows owners of open space to be assessed on the basis of the existing use of their land instead of on its value if developed. In turn the property owners must agree not to develop their property for 10 years.

Another amendment would expand the BCDC's jurisdiction to all of the salt ponds and wetlands around the bay, and to a 100-foot-wide strip of shoreline around the entire bay. The governor previously had questioned this provision in other bills.

However, in the "priority areas" designated in the BCDC plan, where use of the shoreline would be reserved for water-related purposes, the amendments provide that the BCDC could be overriden by a two-thirds vote by the local board of supervisors or city council. This veto provision was suggested by the League of California Cities.

In the rest of the shoreline band, the commission would be concerned only with ensuring

Nixon Orders Overseas Troop Cut

WASHINGTON (AP- — President Richard M. Nixon ordered today the withdrawal of nearly 15,000 U.S. military men from overseas bases in the next year —but not from Vietnam or other trouble spots.

The specific areas from which the men will be taken were not announced.

The White House said 14,900 men would be brought home during the coming 12 months

Unions Support Save-The-Bay Bill

OAKLAND (AP) — Organized labor threw its support today behind strong legislation to protect San Francisco Bay against unregulated dredging and filling.

George Johns, secretary of the San Francisco Labor Council, said some 35 unions representing about 500,000 members strongly support a bill proposed by Assemblyman John Knox, a Contra Costa County Democrat.

Johns and representatives of several of the unions told a news conference that the Knox bill is the only one pending before the Legislature which will protect the Bay while insuring sound development.

SAN RAFAEL MEN AMONG GI RETURNEES

Two San Rafael soldiers are among the first group of the 25,000 servicemen ordered home from Vietnam.

Sgt. Raymond F. Byrne and Sp/5 Edward H. Reuter arrived yesterday at McChord Air Force Base in Washington.

Byrne, 21, is expected home at midnight tomorrow—for his first visit in Marin, his mother, Mrs. Raymond F. Byrne reported.

She said the troop withdrawal made his homecoming only three weeks sooner than expected.

Mrs. Byrne said the family moved to 132 Knight Drive from New York last October and "he hasn't seen California yet."

Reuter's family could not be reached today. (See also story, page 2.)

Barb Linked To Berkeley Violence

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—Gov. Ronald Reagan was warned by his staff today another People's Park riot could flare at any time.

He was cautioned to take Berkeley revolutionaries seriously and reminded it was a little-noticed ranting in an underground newspaper that kindled the bloody violence.

"There are militants active within this state," he was told, "whose avowed aim is to destroy the institutions and the governmental structure of our society."

Although these statements officially were directed at Reagan, they also obviously were aimed at the eyes and ears of California citizens.

The governor's staff publicly released a 38-page report containing a blow-by-blow account of the melee that erupted when the University of California erected a cyclone fence around a vacant lot it owned.

"Street people," who had been occupying the land as a "park," reacted violently. Countless were injured and 768 arrested during the 10 days in May.

It quoted the National Guard as saying the helicopter unloaded its tear gas into Sproul Plaza as "a group of 600-700 dissidents were closing on the troops and three chairs were thrown from an upper story."

The report offered no new information either on the shotgun killing of non-student James Rector of San Jose or alleged brutality of arrested persons at Santa Rita Prison.

COMBINED AP & UPI

LOS ANGELES — California State College trustees discussed a controversial student body election at Sonoma State College today and planned to confer later on the presidency of San Francisco State College.

Chairman Daniel H. Ridder of the state college's governing board said trustees were waiting for Gov. Ronald Reagan's arrival to talk about the San Francisco State job.

Acting President S. I. Hayakawa of Mill Valley was expected to be named permanent San Francisco campus president. Reagan said yesterday in Sacramento he would support the permenent post for Hayakawa.

The issue at Sonoma State involves President Ambrose Nichols' decision to uphold a student body committee's ruling validating the election of James G. Gillette as student body president. He defeated Jon Owen of Novato.

Gillette, 34, of Cotati, is a Black Students Union leader who served a jail term for importing marijuana into the state.

No action in the issue was announced by trustees after an early morning closed meeting.

In trustee committee action yesterday, these recommendations were made:

MOUNT WASHINGTON

Mountain Rail 100 Years Old

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

On July 3, 1869 the world's first mountain-climbing railway engine chugged triumphantly to the summit of Mount Washington, N. H.

It was a feat regarded then as more impossible than a landing on the moon appeared to be 100 years later.

In fact, when builder Sylvester Marsh sought a charter from the New Hampshire legislature in 1858, he was told scoffingly, "Might as well try to build a railroad to the moon."

But Marsh got his charter and the highest mountain in New England — 6,293 feet above sea level — got its railroad. The Mount Washington Cog Railway is celebrating its 100th anniversary with special events throughout the summer, and every 100th passenger will ride free.

The observance started last week with fireworks and a centennial dinner at Crawford House in Crawford Notch, N.H., where President Ulysses S. Grant, his wife and son stayed when they rode the railway in August 1869.

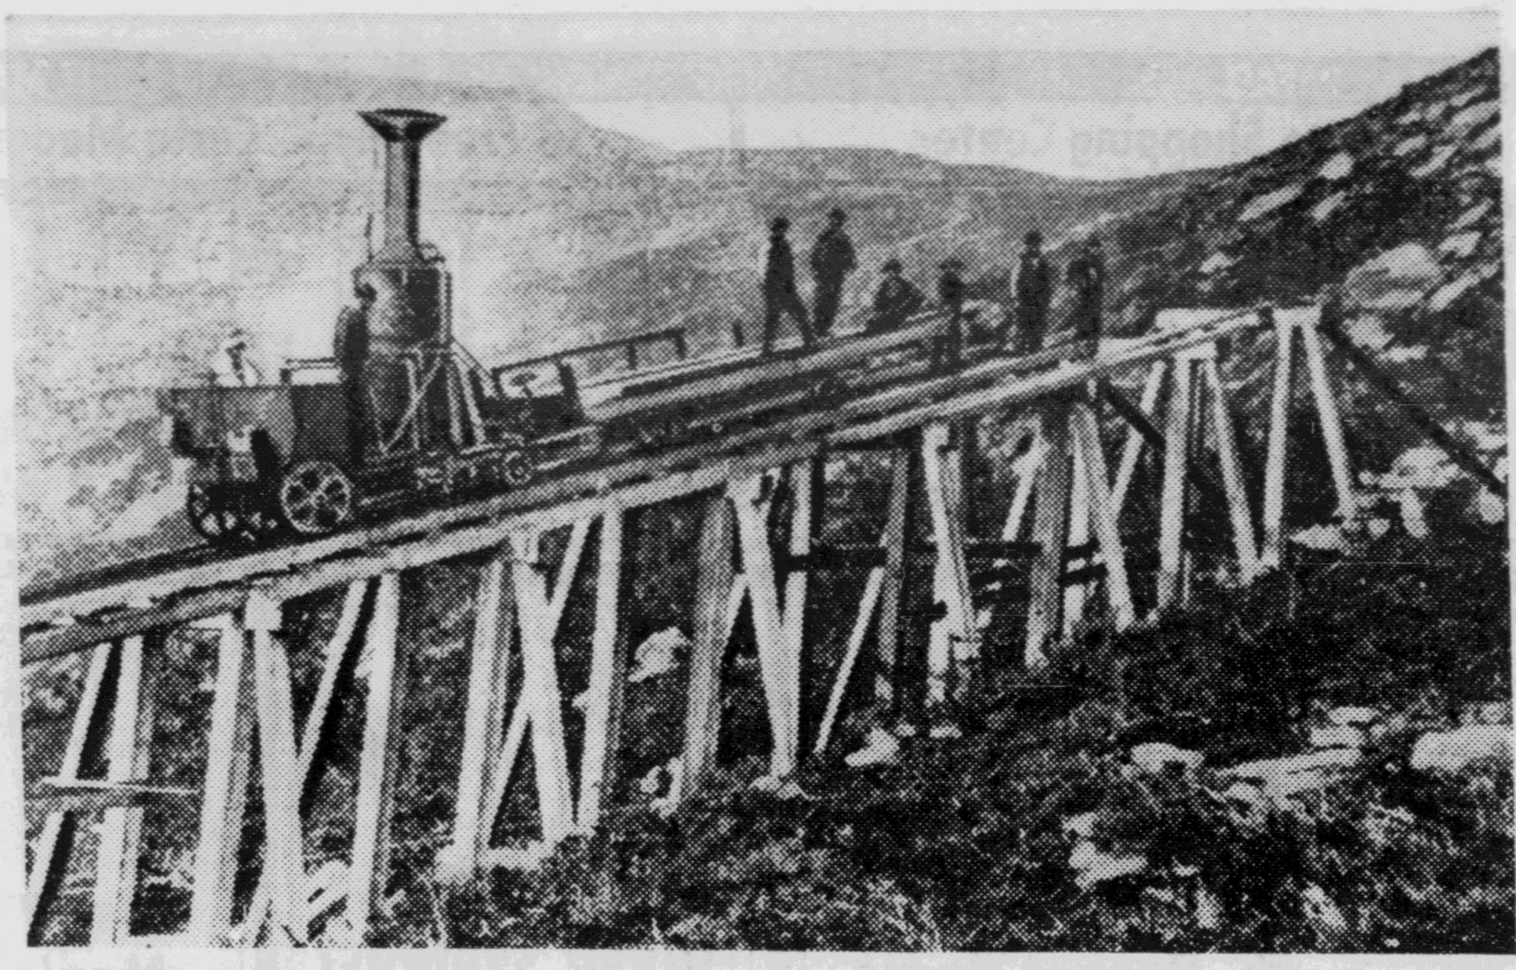
A new locomotive, the first since 1908, is being built to mark the centennial. It is called the Colonel Teague, for Col. Arthur S. Teague, president and manager from 1951 until his death in 1967, when his widow, Ellen, succeeded him.

The railway has come a long way since that first year when it carried only some 5,000 passengers. As many as 53,000 passengers now ride during a season, from the middle of June to the middle of October. But the way they are propelled up the steep mountainside remains unchanged. There's a cogged rail along the center of the track into which fit the heavy-toothed wheels under the engine.

The Mount Washington Steam Railway Co. was organized in 1865 with Marsh, a retired meat packer, as president and construction manager. Marsh had devised this easier and safer way to the mountaintop after hiking there in 1852 and losing his way in a severe storm.

But construction of the three and one-half-mile-long road, with an average grade of 25 per cent, was far from simple. Materials, equipment and supplies had to be hauled by oxen 25 miles from the nearest railroad station in Littleton, N.H. Because the road was being built on a continuous trestle, logs had to be hand-hewn into timbers, on which the rails were to be laid. It was not until 1867 that a sawmill was set up.

Once completed the railroad faced another problem that it still contends with today — wind. Sometimes the wind is so strong that firemen fight to keep gusts from blowing coal off their shovels.



CLIMBING TO THE CLOUDS—Crew building the Mount Washington Cog Railway complete the great trestle called Jacob's Ladder with steepest grade of 37.4 per cent early in 1868. The engine is Old Peppersass, first of the line's locomotives.

In 1934 — before the instrument was blown away — the world's highest wind velocity — 231 miles an hour — was recorded on the summit by the Mount Washington Observatory. To this day trains stop running when the wind reaches 70 miles an hour.

The first locomotive, with its funny little upright boiler, was officially called hero, but nicknamed Peppersass because it resembled a pepper-sauce bottle.

Peppersass served until 1878 when it was retired and exhibited in fairs around the country. But in 1929, as a publicity stunt, the old engine set out on a last — and as it turned out, tragic climb. Half a mile from the summit a tooth broke in a gear wheel and the engine fell to the rocks below. The crew jumped out but a photographer was killed.

The engine parts, salvaged from the ravine, were reassembled and Old Peppersass is now on display outside the railroad's base station.

Other accidents have followed: some minor, some expensive to repair, and one costly in human lives.

On Sept. 21, 1938, a hurricane destroyed Jacob's Ladder, the railway's steepest part where the grade is 37.4 per cent. It was rebuilt in time for the next spring's opening at a cost of $60,000. The original over-all cost of the railroad and equipment had only been $100,000.

The railway's operations are inspected for safety by the New Hampshire Public Utilities Commission and the train runs at a speed of four miles an hour for complete safety on the grade.

The unique engines are taken apart and gone over carefully every fall, the track is inspected regularly and the locomotive has four braking systems, any one of which can stop the train. The coach, which is always above the locomotive, has two sets of brakes of its own.

Despite all these precautions tragedy struck on Sept. 17, 1967. A locomotive descending the mountain and its aluminum passenger car were derailed at the Skyline Switch and both crashed into the rugged terrain, killing eight. After this — the railroad's first passenger fatalities in 98 years of operation — further safety measures were added.

Soul Singer Says He's Not Father

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Soul singer James Brown's attorney says the star had only been interviewed by Mary Florence Brown, but had not fathered the woman's child.

Miss Brown, who once headed the singer's Sacramento fan club, filed suit in Sacramento Superior Court Monday charging Brown fathered her 10-month-old child.

"She knows it's completely untrue," said attorney Donald Worden. He said yesterday the suit was prompted by people who want to destroy the singer's image.

Worden said Miss Brown had interviewed the singer but only in the company of other people. Her suit says the two met in Los Angeles, Oakland and San Francisco.

Judge Gordon D. Schaber has scheduled a hearing July 28 to determine whether Brown should pay temporary support and attorney's fees.

814 RETURN FROM VIETNAM

Veterans Land In 'Another World'

MCCHORD AIR FORCE BASE, Wash. (AP) — The last or nine planes bringing 814 American soldiers home from the Vietnam war under President Richard M. Nixon's withdrawal program landed here last night.

One of the nine planes stopped at Hickam Field in Hawaii and the pilot reported minor engine trouble on the Saigon-Hawaii hop.

They continued to McChord without incident.

The men were taken by bus to nearby Ft. Lewis to be processed today and prepare for a nearby Fort Lewis to be procparade in Seattle tomorrow.

"It's a wonderful feeling," said their commander, Lt. Col. Peter B. Petersen of Arlington, Va.

"This place is another world," said Sgt. Frank Puckett, Olympia, Wash.

"I hope they bring them all out," said Elesto Williams, 23, Houston, Tex.

Their first night at this Army post was a far cry from their last night in Saigon, where helicopter gunships hovered on the horizon to keep the Viet Cong from spoiling their exit.

When the first group of 94 veterans, most of them in their early 20s, stepped from their C141 transport plane, Gen. William C. Westmoreland, Army Chief of Staff, told them they would find themselves "more mature, more dedicated to the service of others, more compassionate, more responsible, more realistic and more practical" than their contemporaries.

Their reaction was mixed.

"I'm going to go home and cut the grass," said Sgt. Jerome DeBold, 38, of Titusville, Pa.

"I'm going out and raise hell," said Dave Schutte, 20, of Quincy, Ill.

Of the 814 troops, 776 are enlisted men and 38 are officers. Of the enlisted men, 118 are being released from active duty and 658 are being reassigned. Sixteen officers will be reassigned and 22 will be released from active duty.

The men came home under the banner of the Army's 3rd Battalion, 60th Infantry, 9th Infantry Division, but only 138 of them actually fought with the division.

HAPPY HOMECOMING—Sgt. Robert Hetherwick of Alturas, Modoc County, gets a big hug from his mother at McChord Air Force Base, Wash. The soldier was on the first planeload of troops returned from Vietnam yesterday, under President Richard M. Nixon's plan to withdraw 25,000 troops. (AP Wirephoto)

Kidnaping was coined as a word in the late 17th Century when there was a practice of stealing children and shipping them to sevitude on plantations in the American colonies.

Fighting Lull Lowers List Of Casualties

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. battle deaths in Vietnam dropped last week to the lowest level since late April, giving apparent support to President Richard M. Nixon's position that casualties rise and fall with the level of enemy attacks.

Although official figures are not yet final, sources say the toll for the week ending July 4 probably will be down generally close to the 163 Americans killed in action in the week ending April 26, the last time there was a lull in the fighting.

The cause of U.S. casualties has been a matter of growing controversy, with some critics contending U.S. battlefield initiatives bring about high losses.

Nixon told a news conference June 19, "Our casualties are in direct ratio to the level of enemy attacks."

Insisting U.S. forces have not escalated their operations, the President said "We have only responded to what the enemy has done."

The six-month toll in 1969 stands close to 6,500—about 3,000 fewer than the first six months of 1968, which included the great enemy Tet offensive.

Since then, the enemy and the United States have pursued "talk and fight" strategies.

In the 14 months since the Paris peace talks got going, about 14,000 American servicemen have died in combat.

Four U.S. Air Force bases, Brooks, Kelly, Lackland and Randolph, are located near San Antonio, Tex.

Nine Paratroopers Die In Viet Cong Ambush

SAIGON (AP) — American paratroopers walked into a Viet Cong ambush 50 miles south of Da Nang and lost nine men killed and seven wounded in a day-long battle that followed, U.S. headquarters reported today.

The ambush occurred shortly after noon yesterday. A spokesman said about 150 Viet Cong deeply entrenched in bunkers near a jungle trail waited for a detachment of the 101st Airborne Division to walk into the "kill zone," then opened fire with machine guns and rifles.

"The enemy small arms and automatic weapons fire was returned immediately by the troopers, who were supported by an Air Force gunship, artillery and tactical air strikes," said the spokesman. He added that contact continued for about seven hours until nightfall.

Only two bodies of Viet Cong soldiers were found.

Elsewhere, light rocket attacks persisted and the U.S. Command reported 77 enemy troops were slain in eight small fights from the Mekong Delta to the demilitarized zone. U.S. casualties were one killed and six wounded.

Spokesmen said the actions were not significant enough to be considered a break in the Vietnam war's current three-week lull. But they reported movement of enemy troops in small groups, similar to the pattern that ended similar lulls in February, May and June.

The U.S. Command reported the loss of two more helicopters to enemy ground fire yesterday —an Army UH-1 downed 16 miles northwest of Saigon, killing the four Americans aboard and a Marine chopper downed 25 miles southwest of Da Nang, killing one American and wounding three.

The losses raised to 2,832 the number of American helicopters lost in the war.

Headquarters said 14 rocket and mortar attacks hit allied bases and towns, including Saigon, overnight. Only four of them caused light casualties or damage at South Vietnamese installations. Casualties were reported as light.

Striking Plumbers Approve More Talks

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Striking plumbers, who seek $11.48 an hour for a four and one-half day, 36-hour work week, and management representatives, who have offered $10.92 an hour for a five-day, 35-hour week, agreed last night to resume negotiations tomorrow.

The walkout began July 2 and has threatened to curtail housing construction throughout southern California.

New York state entered the Union July 26, 1788.

WORLD NEWS IN BRIEF

Necessary Now

WASHINGTON (AP) — Whether it's shocking or not, a welfare official says, birth control information should be provided for school age unwed mothers.

"Call it birth control or whatever you want to, but how can you hope to stop this cycle of illegitimacy unless you provide some sort of information and services to these young girls" — particularly under age 16, Miss Mary E. Switzer told Congress in April testimony released today.

She is head of the Social and Rehabilitation Service of the Health, Education and Welfare Department.

Rate Hike Urged

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Nixon administration will recommend next week to Congress that the interest rate on savings bonds be raised to 5 per cent from the present 4.5 per cent, says Secretary of the Treasury David M. Kennedy.

Testifying before the Senate Finance Committee yesterday, Kennedy said the proposal will be part of a larger package asking an end to the 4.5 per cent ceiling on most government bonds.

Cultural Funds

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House has approved spending another $7.5 million in federal money for the National Cultural Center, another project hit hard by cost overruns.

The building on the Potomac is now to cost $66 million instead of the $46.4 million estimated when the project was recommended by President Dwight D. Eisenhower.

The vote yesterday was 210 to 162 to increase the federal share of the total to $23 million. The rest comes from private donations.

Denies Meat Blast

WASHINGTON (AP) — An Agriculture Department spokesman has denied consumer advocate Ralph Nader's charge that the department caters more to meat packers than consumers.

Dr. Robert K. Somers, deputy administrator for consumer protection, said yesterday, "the millions of pounds of meat we condemn . . . bears out that we're really interested in all the people."

Somers denied the Nader charge that he and two aides inspected a Vernon, Los Angeles County, packing plant, found it should be closed, but did not do so. Somers said he did not go to the plant and the defects found there were corrected.

Rickover Extension

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Vice Adm. Hyman G. Rickover, 68, has received an extension to January 1972, of his terms of office in the Navy's nuclear propulsion program.

The Navy announced yesterday that Rickover, whose terms were to have expired next January, would continue for a further two years as director of the Division of Naval Reactors of the Atomic Energy Commission and deputy commander of nuclear propulsion of the Naval Ship Systems command.

HHH Refused To Expose Nixon Backer, White Says

WASHINGTON (AP) — Could Hubert H. Humphrey have changed the course of the 1968 presidential campaign by disclosing information that a Richard M. Nixon supporter tried to sabotage preliminary Vietnam peace talks?

Author Theodore H. White speculates in his book "The Making of a President 1968" that Humphrey might have won the election if he had ballyhooed the story.

But Willaim Connell, Humphrey chief political aide, doubts it and says he recommended against making the alleged intrigue a public issue.

"I thought we were on the way, anyway, and that we might get a backlash from it," says Connell.

White reports in his recently published book the Johnson Administration intercepted messages from Anna Chan Chennault, a Nixon supporter, undertaking to sabotage the Paris agreement preceding the U.S. bombing halt in and peace negotiations.

But, White reports, Humphrey refused to air the story despite urgings from some in his campaign staff.

When Nixon aides learned of the activities of the Chinese-born Mrs. Chennault, White says, there was "fury and dismay" and the feeling that "if they lost the election, Mrs. Chennault might have lost it for them."

When asked for comment Mrs. Chennault's secretary in Washington said Mrs. Chennault was in Asia.

ANNA CHAN CHENNAULT
Intrigue for Nixon?

Mrs. Chennault, widow of the wartime hero Gen. Claire Chennault and now an American citizen, had raised funds for the Nixon campaign and was chairman or co-chairman of several Nixon citizens committees.

She learned by gossip, rumor and speculation of the October halt, White says, and "she had undertaken most energetically to sabotage them."

He adds: "In contact with the Formosan, the South Korean and the South Vietnamese governments she had begun early, by cable and telephone, to mobilize their resistence to the agreement — apparently implying, as she went, that she spoke for the Nixon campaign."

But, White continues, her communications with Asia were tapped by the U.S. government and turned over to Johnson.

White says Johnson was aware of Mrs. Chennault's Asian messages before he made his announcement Thursday, Oct. 31—just five days before the election—of the bombing halt and the anticipation of the peace talks, but had not taken them seriously.

But two days later when 11 South Vietnamese senators expressed their support of Nixon and South Vietnamese President Nguyen Van Thieu repudiated the Paris agreement "The President's wrath was lit," White says and he adds:

"By Saturday he had accused Sen. Everett Dirksen of a Republican plot to sabotage peace (which Dirksen, presumably, hastened to relay to Nixon headquarters); and by Sunday, Johnson was in direct and bitter telephone contact with Richard Nixon in Los Angeles."

White says, "What could have been made of an open charge that the Nixon leaders were saboteurs of the peace one cannot guess; how quickly it might, if aired, have brought the last 48 hours of the American campaign to squalor is a matter of speculation."

"But," he added," the good instinct of that small town boy Hubert Humphrey prevailed. Fully informed of the sabotage of the negotiations and the recalcitrance of the Saigon government, Humphrey might have won the presidency of the United States by making it the prime story of the last four days of the campaign. He was urged by several members of his staff to do so.

Connell said in an interview with The Associated Press he recommended against it because he thought Humphrey was in the winning lane and he didn't want a public opinion backlash.

Cause Of Spacemonk's Death May Take Months To Determine

HONOLULU, Hawaii (UPI)—It may take months to determine what caused the death of America's space monkey three weeks before the end of his scheduled 30-day mission, according to an official of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

Dr. W. Roth Adey, chief investigator for the $92 million Biosatellite III project, said yesterday the 14-pound monkey named Bonny died shortly after midnight—12 hours after an emergency splashdown in the Pacific.

"It was sudden," Adey said. "There was no specific evidence of the heart or brain malfunction which can point to the problem now."

He said an extensive autopsy would be performed on the monkey at Hickam AFB, but the results probably would not be known for months.

Adey noted Bonny's body temperature was lower than normal on the ninth day of the planned month-long flight, but "that was the only indication the primate was not adapting."

He said the monkey's lowered body temperature posed two possibilities: Either the capsule was cooler than it was supposed to be or the monkey's metabolism dropped. Adey said the capsule temperature was 70 degrees Fahrenheit and considered safe.

Scientists from NASA's AKS Research Laboratory in Sunnyvale, Calif., ended the flight Monday after completion of 130 orbits in nine days because the monkey became sluggish and was no longer interested in his assigned tasks.

The project was designed to determine the physical effects of a long voyage in space.

Australia has a net migrant intake of about 80,000 people a year. The organized movement of nearly 2,000,000 Europeans to Australia has been one of the major population shifts in the 20th Century.

Opera Diva Gladys Swarthout, 65, Dies

FLORENCE, Italy (AP) — Gladys Swarthout, mezzo soprano hailed by critics as the "best female singer in the opera world" during the 1930s, died here Monday of a heart attack, it was reported today. She was 65.

Miss Swarthout had suffered from heart trouble for many years and underwent heart surgery twice in Houston, Tex.

A native of Deepwater, Mo., Miss Swarthout spent a few years with the Chicago Civic Opera before making her debut at New York's Metropolitan Opera in 1929.

Her success was sudden and lasting. She was the top female star of the Metropolitan in the 1930s and was acclaimed by critics in the United States and Canada. She also sang with the San Francisco Opera Company.

She had been living for several years in Florence, the renaissance city which she fell in love with during a tour of Italy to improve her Italian.

A graduate of the Bush Conservatory of Music in Chicago, she was best known for her portrayal of Carmen although she started her operatic career with a succession of boys' roles.

She made her Metropolitan debut as La Cieca, the blind old mother of La Gioconda in the opera of that name, and went on to create the part of Cathos in the American premiere of "Le Preziose Ridicole."

She retired from the Met in 1945.

In 1950 Miss Swarthout sang Carmen in the first opera ever staged exclusively for television. Between operas she gave numerous concerts, was a regular performer on radio programs and made five Hollywood movies. None of the movies ever created much of a stir.

Miss Swarthout believed in constant training and practice she told an interviewer in 1949: "I'm still learning my trade"—and was a stickler about attending rehearsals.

Miss Swarthout, who began as a church singer, often remarked that her greatest regret was that she never performed on a European opera stage.

Miss Swarthout married Harry Richmond Kern in 1925 and became a widow in 1930. The following year she married Frank M. Chapman, who died three years ago.

REAGAN

understood that $100 million he proposes in one-time income tax rebates in the 1970 election year are not considered part of any surplus.

Asked if he would look favorably on spending the proposed rebate for school aid, he replied, "No. We couldn't do that."

Several hours earlier, the Assembly Ways and Means Committee approved for floor action an omnibus school aid bill tailored to distribute to poor school districts almost $200 million — $80 million more than Reagan said is available.

Reagan said if the measure reached his desk, he would be "forced" to scale it down to fit the $120 million in his $6.2 billion budget.

The bill writes into law fund distribution formulas for an estimated $199.9 million but is constructed so that state money would be proportionately reduced to districts in case the entire sum wasn't available.

But unlike a rival bill, it provides no extra money for big city schools such as Los Angeles, Oakland, San Diego and San Francisco. That measure would allocate $20 million to urban schools.

Reagan also was asked if he would veto campus riot control legislation requiring the state to reimburse local police for costs incurred during disturbances at half the cost after the first $100,000.

Reagan declined a specific answer, but said "I think it is a very dangerous precedent to establish that simply because there is a state institution involved in the disturbances that the state gets into paying the cost of local law enforcement."

The subsidy provision is part of a major assembly bill designed to give campus administrators more tools to deal with rioters. Another provision would suspend state aid to any scholarship or grant student convicted of disturbing the campus peace.

Kuwait, two-thirds the size of Maryland, ranks sixth among world oil producers. Its crude oil reserves are an estimated 10 billion tons or more, about 15 per cent of the world supply.

cument—titled "The 'People's Park': A Report on a Confrontation at Berkeley"—was prepared by Reagan's staff. Information was collected from eyewitnesses, law enforcement reports, newspaper accounts, university administrators and public officials.

It was released two weeks after Reagan announced he was preparing a documentation to refute "false descriptions" of what happened during the disturbance.

The report turned out basically to be an elaboration of a speech Reagan delivered June 13 to the Commonwealth Club in San Francisco.

It told of "street people" threatening to create $5 million in property damage, growing marijuana in the "park," and attacking police with jagged pipes, rocks, chunks of cement, tear gas and knives.

The report indicated innocent persons were injured and arrested because "in such a scene of chaos, it was often impossible" for officers to determine who was assaulting them and who was "merely trying to avoid being caught in the battle area."

In a conclusion titled, "What's ahead for Berkeley?" the report warned:

"While the situation on People's Park, has subsided other confrontations are possible...any incident can serve as an excuse for intimadation through mass marches and demonstrations that have a potential for violence."

Reagan's aides noted people could weigh the Barb's message based on their own views "of whether street corner 'revolutionists' should be taken seriously'." But it cautioned:

"Before dismissing this hazy mixture of Marxism and vulgarity as the prattling of a few anonymous revolutionaries,' it should be remembered that it was just this sort of anonymous declaration that launched the People's Park controversy."

The report said the first inkling that U.C-owned lot might become the center of trouble was on March 31 when the underground San Francisco Express Times suggested the land was vacant and, "Why don't we use it?"

The Berkeley Barb followed in April with an article declaring, "We want the park to be a cultural, political, freak out and rap center for the western world."

Two days later, the report said, the property became "occupied" as the people's park.

Reagan's staff said many who worked on the park project were misguided volunteers "motivated by a simple desire to improve the environment."

But what motivated the revolutionaries, the report said, was "defiance of the law of our society for political purposes."

to declare states of emergency in cases of disruption, take whatever measures necessary and suspend students for a week before holding a hearing.

Student fees be increased from $2 to $3 a quarter or a semester to make up for a legislative budget cut of $630,000 in funds for dean of student's offices.

An investigation be made into compulsory student fees and their use with an eye to making the fees voluntary. Some trustees believed student funds were misused at San Francisco State to help militants.

Way as pro tem. Asked when he might make his bid, McCarthy said "just speculate."

Burns complained that Southern Californians now hold three places on Rules — the Senate's most influential committee with power to assign bills to committees and name committee chairmen.

"We are going so far, so fast that it won't be long until Los Angeles County is running the Senate," he said. "It is all well and good for anyone living in rural districts to sell their people out, but I'm not going to do it."

McCarthy and Schrade were beaten in a closed caucus. Stevens beat McCarthy 24-12 and Burgener defeated Schrade 23-13.

Afterward, the decision was ratified on the Senate floor 29-4 by adoption of a resolution naming Stevens and Burgener to Rules.

Way's supporters were determined to dump Schrade and McCarthy from Rules because they said they were disloyal to the Republican Party and preferred to work instead with the informal coalition of lobbyists and Democratic and Republican veterans who had run the Senate for years.

SCHRADE PLAN

In addition, they privately said Schrade was trying to put together a coalition of old guard members to defeat Way next year.

Way, of Exeter, got support from 12 to 14 Republicans in his move to win control of Rules, and from some 10 Democrats who charged McCarthy and Schrade were too friendly with lobbyists.

Now Way, Burgener and Stevens form a three-man bloc on Rules, which has final say in running the house. Also on the committee are Democrats Stephen Teale of West Point and Joseph Kennick of Long Beach.

Republicans have been trying for full control since April when they took over the house 21-19 in a special election.

McCarthy and Schrade forces tried desperately to stop today's vote, citing a rule they said prevented the Senate from holding the closed caucus.

But Sen. Donald Grunsky, R-Watsonville, told them to stop "the monkeyshines," and declared "let's just play it straight."

After action was launched yesterday, Way said:

"A majority of Republican senators feel the two incumbent senators on rules have not worked as closely with me as they could have."

McCarthy, a member of the committee for more than 10 years, rejected the charge and countered that the conference committee was selected on "the basis of experience and not on a party line basis."

He accused Way of using the issue as "a wedge of war propaganda" to win support from other Republicans to unseat him and Schrade.

maximum public pedestrian access.

The amendments also spell out the BCDC's jurisdiction in tributaries. In Marin and Sonoma counties, its jurisdicition would extend up the Petaluma River to Adobe Creek, and up San Antonio Creek to the railroad right-of-way.

An aide to Marks told the Independent-Journal that the amendments would be inserted in the bill late today — just in time for the crucial Senate Finance Committee hearing at 9 a.m. tomorrow in the Capitol on all four surviving bills to save the BCDC.

The aide said "all the final points of the amendments have not been decided yet," so there may be some changes in the administration's proposals.

The other three bills have drawn most of the attention to date because they already included the controversial proposals for shoreline control, but the amendments to the Marks bill could make it the most likely to get out of the finance committee tomorrow.

Petitions supporting strong controls over bay fill, signed by 200,000 persons, were presented yesterday to Gov. Ronald Reagan by the Save Our Bay Action Committee.

ra Creek bed from the San Anselmo line to the Lagunitas Bridge area, with the rest a concrete channel, costing about $5.3 million.

The board, on a motion by Peter R. Arrigoni Jr., accepted the corps plan to a point 700 feet below the Lagunitas Bridge, but directed staff to study alternate plans for the upstream portion and to try to find additional state or federal funds that will be needed.

Construction on the Ross phase of the project is to start next spring. Before that's finished, however, the board will have to hold another hearing on plans for the upstream section, County Counsel Douglas J. Maloney said.

Opponents to the corps plan, led by William Bricca, who represented the Ross Citizens Committee and Ross Property Owners Association, said preservation of the beauty of Corte Madera Creek and Marin environment took precedence over financial consideration.

"Better plans cost more money," said Philip B. Lygren, engineer for the Town of Ross and adviser to the Ross Citizens Committee. "If we accept a better plan now we will have served our purpose. Why not begin now?"

"We have to begin to think big," said Marty Kent Jones of Kent Woodlands, who lost a fight to save Tamalpais Creek downstream from a concrete corset. "If Marin can't, no county can."

"An inexpensive plan is too expensive for Marin," said Mrs. Lester Bricca of Ross.

Bricca said the citizens committee was divided among members who wanted a year's delay to restudy the entire Ross phase and those who were willing, in the interest of keeping the project on schedule, to compromise in order to save the upstream portion from destruction.

An opposing group, Residents for Flood Control, said it favored project aesthetics, but would not tolerate delay.

Explained Robert L. Shearn of 153 Sir Francis Drake Boulevard, "As a resident of Ross who has been flooded eight times in the past 12 years, I tell you that the creek no longer is a thing of beauty . . ."

Clarence O. Amonette of Shady Lane said he represented concerned residents along Ross Creek, a tribuary which runs westward to the Shady Lane Bridge. Neither the corps plan nor the alternates contained any provision to eliminate a concrete channel in that stream, he said.

The county department of public works, with support from County Administrator Alan Bruce, backed the corps plan, but County Planning Director Paul C. Zucker opposed it, presenting figures of his own.

Zucker said the plan preferred by the corps, concreting the whole creek, would cost $4,030,000, not the $3.8 million estimated by the corps, and that for the larger amount Ross could have both the corps plan as far as Lagunitas Road Bridge and undergrounding the rest of the way.

TROOPS

"in the interests of lessening budget and balance of payments costs and of reducing the American presence overseas."

The cutbacks, to be supplemented by a reduction of approximately 5,100 civilian employees abroad, could lead to an eventual balance of payments savings of $75 million a year, it was said.

Civilian cutbacks will be carried out throughout the world, including a reduction of more than 10 per cent in federal civilian employees in South Vietnam.

The military reductions, however, will not apply to forces in Vietnam, South Korea, Berlin, those sections of Southeast Asia where they operate in support of military operations, or to forces committed to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

Press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said that about 850,000 of the approximately one million U.S. military men now serving abroad would be covered by the exemptions.

tion suit filed thus far is aimed at alleged desegregation in the Houston, Tex., school system. The Chicago system, third in size behind New York City and Los Angeles, has 580,000 students, 53 per cent of whom are Negroes. It has 22,000 teachers.

The department investigation, Leonard said, "compels the conclusion that the school system's practices with respect to the assignment and transfer of faculty and staff members has had the effect of denying to Negro students in the Chicago public schools the equal protection of the laws."

The letter said 215 of Chicago's 578 elementary, junior and senior high schools have all-white or all-Negro faculties.

In addition, the letter said, 93 per cent of the Negro elementary and junior high teachers were assigned to schools where Negro youngsters comprised 90 to 100 per cent of the enrollments.

Only three per cent of the Negro elementary and junior high teachers were assigned to schools that had more than a 50 per cent white enrollment, Leonard said.

The department contended that residential patterns alone cannot account for similarity between racial compositions of student bodies and faculties.

This pattern, Leonard said, "persists in many cases where white and Negro schools are less than a mile apart."

Moreover, the department contended its examination shows "all-Negro and predominantly Negro schools generally are assigned a disproportionate number of new, inexperienced, less educated and noncertificated teachers.

The Nixon administration indicated yesterday it will challenge some arrangements allowing Catholic and public school systems in several northern cities to share facilities.

Fashion Lens Hit In Report

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The big lens fashion sunglasses may look great, but they aren't what the eye doctor ordered.

According to evidence presented yesterday to a resolutions committee of the American Optometric Association, holding its 72nd annual meeting here, the small amount of tinting in the glass doesn't protect eyes from the sun, and pieces of glass as large as the three-inch diameter lenses almost always have optical defects.

PENTAGON'S NEW CONTROL ROOM

The Pentagon has unveiled its new $2.7 million underground operation center designed to handle crises abroad and riots and civil disasters at home. Elaborate equipment includes a computer system which can remember 130 million facts to keep track of Army forces around the world. One section keeps files on 150 U.S. cities where riots might possibly break out. It is set up to handle as many as 25 civil disturbances at one time. (UPI Telephoto)

San Anselmo Hill Dwellers Say 'Undesirables' Ruin Neighborhood

A disturbed group of hill dwellers demanded last night that the San Anselmo City Council restrict nonconforming residential uses in their predominantly single-family residential area.

Mostly from the Humboldt and Foothill avenues area, the citizens cited "undesirable transient tenants" for parking problems, rats in the neighborhood and garbage-strewn lots.

Mayor Woodrow V. Capurro set up a committee to correct deficiencies developing in neighboring areas, which will report back to council in 60 days.

Based on a recommendation by Councilman James F. Reed, the committee will study an ordinance requiring off-street parking for existing dwellings by some future date, in-lieu parking, the night parking ordinance and street assessment residential uses.

Reed and Councilman Kenneth L. Anderson were appointed to the committee. Other members will include representatives from the city planning commission, Streets and Traffic Committee, and members of the city staff. Capurro said he thought it possible to appoint Ragnvald Bernt Jr., one of the spokesmen for the group of about 15 complaining residents.

The council also voted unanimously to execute recommendations of the Streets and Traffic Committee which include placing a white line on the street in the area of 106-112 Humboldt.

Councilmen heard from Jean L. Atnip of 112 Humboldt and Mrs. Donald Asker of 106 Humboldt who urged alleviation of parking problems and removal of "no parking between these signs" signs near Bernt's home. The signs will be removed, the council agreed.

City Atty. John G. Buresh explained that it is difficult to get evidence to prove in court that someone is using a single family residence as a multiple dwelling and that the proof is on the city — not the home owner. If a person has the legal right to maintain two apartments in an R-1 zone, he said, the right cannot be taken away without giving the owner ample time to get his investment out of the property.

Charles Turner told the council that several residents will testify that a man converted the house at 16 Foothill Avenue to a multiple dwelling, then sold it to two women. "Now we have a situation which is intolerable," said Turner. Turner said he would turn his information over to the city. (The home is now occupied by two school teachers, Geil Davis and Daisy E. H. Atten.)

Resident Gene Lynch asked if homes could be investigated on the basis of health problems. Buresh said there must be reasonable grounds that there is something wrong before a writ may be obtained for search. "Would you say excessive rats in the neighborhood or lots with garbage tossed into them would be evidence?" asked Helen Amick of 139 Humboldt.

Councilman Reed stressed that the city is trying to abate irregular uses and to write ordinances that will protect the health, safety and welfare of the citizens. "It is not attempting to discriminate against anybody in any way . . . if they wear long hair and want to live within our ordinances, that's fine," he said.

San Anselmo Hits Marin Dog Policy

Dogs were drawn into the city-county double taxation issue last night when San Anselmo city councilmen agreed that cities are paying the county of Marin money for animal control but getting nothing in return.

Though San Anselmo is not one of eight cities contributing extra funds, the council agreed to write the county board of supervisors saying the county's new animal ordinance is "unfair and illegal" and if the county doesn't take remedial action, some action will be started by a San Anselmo citizen.

Calling the double taxation "a swindle," Councilman James F. Reed said he would be the plaintiff in a suit. City Atty. John G. Buresh said he wants stricter provisions in the ordinance and administrator-controller Alfred C. Kaeppel said he is continuing to charge $4 for licenses — not $5 as the county ordinance requests.

San Anselmo Names Bernt To Panel

Ragnvald Bernt Jr. of 26 Humboldt Avenue, was appointed to the San Anselmo Planning Commission last night by Mayor Woodrow V. Capurro to fill the unexpired term of Joseph Gue.

Bernt whose term will run to April 18, 1971, is a systems analyst for Western State Bank Card in San Francisco.

The mayor, with council approval, also re-appointed incumbents Dorothy Linderman and Jacquelan Perazzo to the library board but disagreed on two appointments to the parks and recreation commission and putting off their decision to July 22. The council will meet at 7:30 p.m., one-half hour early, to discuss the appointments.

An argument developed over whether to appoint Elberta Crebassa or Mrs. David Leach. Councilmen Robert M. Scott, Duane C. Ragan and Capurro favored Mrs. Crebassa while Councilman James F. Reed favored Mrs. Leach. Larry Husband was the sole other applicant and Capurro asked that his name be reconsidered at the next meeting. Prior to the argument over Mrs. Crebassa and Mrs. Leach.

The sites are: The city-owned parking lot A at the Hub, the Tanner Building on Sir Francis Drake Boulevard, a triangle of land on Center Boulevard bounded by San Anselmo and Hazel avenues and a proposed second story for the present firehouse.

Family Education Plan Is Adopted

A family health education program from kindergarten through high school, including sex education, was adopted last night by the San Rafael Board of Education.

Supt. John F. Plank reported that the curriculum wasn't set in detail, but approval would permit the districts to acquire materials and set up workshops for teachers.

As planned, students will be excused from any portion of the sex education program to which their parents object.

The program, recommended by a committee composed of parents, teachers and social service workers, was reviewed by the board June 17, and there was little comment last night.

Board members also heard reports from three teachers, who worked in the remedial program for disadvantaged pupils during the past year, Ruth Owens, Ann Winsor and Harriet Sherwin.

They authorized application for federal funds to continue the program, $49,023 in the elementary district and $17,912 in the high school district.

Plank reported that the elementary allocation "was about 70 per cent" of what it was for the past year, and the teachers asked that the district make up for the cut.

Board President Herman L. Childress said funds weren't available, but if funds became available, the board would consider restoring the full program.

The board also received notice that a group of residents protesting the appearance of two Chinese Red Guards at San Rafael High School will request a closed hearing on their demands to fire teacher involved, Angelo Douvos.

Two Red Guards from San Francisco passed out Maoist propaganda to Duvos's two world history classes in May, and used four-letter words.

The San Rafael Board Of Education Also:

FIRE PROTECTION — Received a recommendation from the Marin County Grand Jury that the elementary district contract with the San Rafael Fire Department for protection of Santa Venetia, MacPhail and Gallinas schools, now covered by the Marin County Fire Department which doesn't provide structural protection. Plank reported that Business Mgr. Charles L. Condrotte has conferred with city officials on the matter.

PATRIOTIC OBSERVANCES — Had a first reading on a policy which would permit various patriotic observances at San Rafael High School and Terra Linda High School in addition to the Pledge of Allegiance.

GRADUATE STUDY — Heard a report on student evaluation of counseling services, part of a follow-up of high school graduates of 1967 and 1968, presented by Audrey Kidd, study coordinator.

LEAVE — Granted Ann Carr, kindergarten teacher, Short School, leave of absence for the 1969-70 school year due to unavailability of kindergarten assignment.

GYMNASIUM JOB — Approved working drawings and specifications for rehabilitation of San Rafael High School gymnasium to bring it up to the state's earthquake resistant standards, a job which has been estimated to cost $222,000.

MEETING SCHEDULE — Agreed to cancel the second regularly scheduled meeting in August, which would have been held Aug. 26.

CAFETERIA REPORTS — Received a report that the elementary district cafeterias had a profit of $1,806 during the year ending June 30, and the high school cafeterias had a loss of $1,896.

CLOSED SESSION — Adjourned to a closed session to discuss negotiations on salaries of administrators, who haven't been granted any cost-of-living increase this year, since they were covered in a two-year pay program last year. The next regular session is at 7:30 p.m. July 22.

Board member Lawrence I. Kramer, on a business trip to Japan, was absent.

53 Syphillis Cases Reported

Fifty-three cases of syphillis in Marin County during the first week in July were reported by County Health Officer Carolyn B. Albrecht today.

Health authorities said 12 of the cases originated in San Rafael, along with one case of salmonella and another of infectious hepatitis.

Largest number of syphillis cases, 29, were reported in Novato.

Borman Receives Warm Welcome

MOSCOW (AP) — Astronaut Frank Borman was warmly received today by Mstislav Keldysh, president of the Soviet Academy of Sciences, and informed sources said Borman may be granted a meeting with President Nikolai Podgorny before he leaves.

The Soviet government has gone out of its way to give red carpet treatment to Borman, the first American spaceman to visit this country, and his family. They are to fly home Thursday.

A smiling, expansive Keldysh shook Borman's hand and said: "So now you have changed your profession," apparently referring to Borman's capacity here as a goodwill ambassador.

Board Studies Classrooms Shortages

San Rafael Board of Education took a cautious approach last night toward deciding the way to provide housing for elementary pupils in the wake of two defeated bond proposals.

Twice this year the elementary district's $2.1 million bond proposal to construct a middle school, sixth, seventh and eighth grades, at Glenwood was rejected by voters.

Plank suggested one choice would be to construct the core of a Glenwood Middle School with about $400,000 in existing bond funds, and place portable classrooms around it to house from 300 to 400 pupils.

Another choice would be to use the $400,000 to improve existing schools, he said.

Board Member Carl J. Brown said: "I'd rather not build half a school," and Board Member Paul L. Jones said there might be yet other ways to meet the housing problem.

Board members agreed that this fall's enrollment will have a bearing on the problem, and there should be fullmstudy the there should be a full study before any decisions are made.

They decided to devote a Saturday workshop to study the housing problem, but no date was set.

New Skipper Reports Aboard Enterprise

He is Capt. Forrest S. Petersen, a former World War II pilot. He relieved Capt. Kent L. Lee, who commanded the ship and her 5,800-man crew for two years through two tours off Vietnam.

San Rafael School Budgets Adopted; Tax Hikes Likely

San Rafael Board of Education last night adopted 1969-70 publication budgets of $4,671,998 in the elementary district and $4,865,636 in the high school district.

The elementary budget is $92,201 lower than the past year and the high school budget is $179,877 higher, with both expected to carry hikes in the tax rates.

The total tax rates for the past year, including overrides and bond redemption, were $3.06 per $100 assessed valuation in the elementary district and $2.265 in the high school district.

Supt. John F. Plank said there would be a seventh-eighth grade override tax rate, possibly up to 22 cents, in the elementary district, which was levied in the past year.

There will be override tax increase in both districts to cover increased health insurance, he reported.

Plank, who has declined to estimate tax rates for 1969-70, said there was nothing definite yet on the state's contributions to the districts, a factor that will have a bearing on tax rates.

College Program Seeks Helpers

Volunteers to attack community problems are being sought by members of the community involvement project at Sonoma State College.

Jo Ann Pozzi of Petaluma, community coordinator for the program, said volunteers are needed by area recreation departments, as tutors and as teacher's aides. She said that hours are flexible and work available in most parts of Marin and Southern Sonoma. College credit may be arranged for students.

Persons need not be students or of college age to participate in the program. Information can be received by calling the community involvement office at the college.

Log Ban Is Extended; Legality Questioned

A year's extension of the interim ordinance banning logging operations in parts of West Marin was voted yesterday by the board of supervisors, despite a warning that the measure may be illegal.

Joseph P. DeLu, administrative adviser to the state Division of Forestry, told the board that the county had no power to regulate logging. He said the answer to the county's concern over siltation in waterways and destruction of the landscape lay in improved logging methods.

Supervisor Michael Wornum felt local jurisdictions had a right to regulate logging operations and said the state was lax in not extending such power to counties.

The interim ordinance, covering the Bolinas and Inverness ridges and parts of San Geronimo and Nicasio, would have expired Monday. In extending the measure a year, the board gave a special committee more time to draft a plan to control timber cutting in Marin that would be acceptable to property owners.

Several West Marin property owners complained to the board that they had not been informed of committee progress. The supervisors asked for a report every 90 days.

The Marin Board Of Supervisors Also:

OFFICE — Upheld planning commission denial of an appeal by William J. Dickerson of a use permit granted by Zoning Administrator Thomas E. Cordill for construction of psychiatrists' offices on Sir Francis Drake Boulevard near Ross General Hospital.

WATERWAYS — In a letter prepared by Pierre W. Joske, county parks and recreation director, expressed interest in including Marin in a statewide Protected Waterways Program that would preserve as natural resources various streams and bays.

TIRES — Awarded contracts of $30,493 and $9,533 to Golden State Tire Service for new tires and recaps for county vehicles.

BOARD — Named appraiser Edward P. Morphy as a regular member of the assessment appeals board, with realty man David G. Cohn as alternate, switching their previous positions. Cohn's term had expired.

HIRE — Approved appointment of Jan Medbo as a current planner in the county planning department at $914 a month. Supervisor Louis H. Baar said he thought the wage was too high, but County Planning Director Paul C. Zucker pointed out that he had been unable to fill the position for three months at a lower salary.

PLANNING — Approved a $63,618 budget for the county's 701 studies, to include balanced transportation, housing and environmental quality. Approval of a tourism study under the program was postponed to insure cooperation from agencies such as the Marin County Chamber of Commerce and Visitors Bureau.

HEARINGS — Set Aug. 12 as the date for public hearings on two road widening projects — Sir Francis Drake Boulevard in the vicinity of San Quentin, and Novato Boulevard between San Miguel Way and San Marin Drive.

EMPLOYEES — Amended the county code pertaining to salaries and working conditions of county employees to conform with recent agreements with the employees.

Reception Slated For Poverty War Chief

Ehrlich Tells Silverthorne Gift Ways

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Former banker Don Silverthorne was "rather liberal" with gifts to clients of the San Francisco National Bank, says a well known attorney and cofounder of the bank.

Attorney Jake Ehrlich was a defense witness yesterday in Silverthorne's retrial on charges of misapplying $200,000 from the bank, which was closed in 1965.

Silverthorne gave clients such personal gifts as paintings, said Ehrlich, but the attorney said he was not aware of any practice of giving away bank property.

In mid-July of 1964, Ehrlich said, a regional controller ordered that loan collections be stepped up and loans above $2,000 be halted.

Before that time, Ehrlich said, he did not know that fees were paid to money brokers for obtaining time deposits, and did not know that bank money was being deposited to Silverthorne's account in another bank.

Silverthorne, 69, was convicted in 1968 and sentenced to 60 years in prison, but was granted a new trial on grounds that publicity prejudiced the verdict.

Billy Graham Movie At Mill Valley Church

"The Restless Ones," a film by evangelist Billy Graham, will be shown at 7:30 p.m. July 23 at the First Baptist Church in Mill Valley.

$30,000 Cultural Fund Pie Sliced

Shuffling allocations to theater groups proved a struggle yesterday for the Marin County Board of Supervisors as it parceled out $30,000 from the 1969-70 economic development budget.

Festival Theater asked $10,000, was recommended by the county administrator for $7,000, the same as last year, and received $5,000.

The Shakespeare Festival requested $7,500, was recommended for $1,000, also the same as last year, and received $3,000.

Both groups pressed for their requested allotments from the $30,000, roughly the proceeds of the motel tax, set aside to attract people to Marin.

Festival Theater business manager Jack M. Atkin told supervisors it is the only residential, professional theater which operates year-round in the Bay Area, except for the American Conservatory Theater in San Francisco.

Atkin reported federal funds received earlier were not being sought this year because most of the money had to be directed toward secondary school education. "We weren't able to do the thing we do best," he explained.

Robert A. Roumiguiere, president of the Marin Shakespeare Festival, reported about half its attendance is from outside Marin and estimated a minimum of $100,000 in tourist dollars would be generated this summer.

Both groups commented on attendance and on activities other than major productions and Atkin commented that an aim of Festival Theater is "to help this community come into the leisure revolution with style and grace."

Supervisor Peter R. Arrigoni Jr. suggested viewing all of the proposed allocations together and perhaps making up differences from other allocations which might not do as much for Marin. Later, his was the only no vote on the changes for the two theaters.

Moving on to other requests, Supervisor Michael Wornum looked at a $1,900 allocation for the Marin County Historical Society and commented, "The trouble with this is that we're dealing with a bunch of sacred cows" and wondered how many people the historical society brings in.

Frank Galli, president of the society, reported the museum is kept busy constantly answering queries about Marin and also noted the society is publishing a history of the county.

The $1,900 was approved with Wornum voting no.

Dudley Dickson, president of the Inverness Music Festival, appeared to support his group's request for $1,250, considerably more than the recommended $500. He reported 25 per cent of the festival's audience was from outside Marin.

Supervisor Louis H. Baar, whose district includes Inverness, successfully moved to add $200 to the recommended $500 appropriation for the festival and Wornum wondered how the addition would affect the unallocated reserve of $1,095.

Administrator Alan Bruce said part of the reserve would probably go for an open house at the Hall of Justice "which I hope will occur during the next fiscal year."

McInnis commented, "I had in mind inviting the architect to finance" the open house, pointing out his fees are now in the neighborhood of $2 million.

The board approved $250 each for the Fairfax Festival and the Candlelight Concert and Mozart Festival in Mill Valley, two new groups on the list. Fairfax had asked $500 and the Mozart group $2,000. Neither was included in the list of recommendations.

The board also approved $150 for the Dipsea Race; $220 for the Marin Memorial Day Committee; $2,000 for Marin Music Chest; $2,000 for the Marin Museum Association; $750 for the Novato Western Weekend.

Also, $8,500 for the Redwood Empire Association; $600 for the Sonoma-Marin Fair; $2,000 for the Marin Symphony Guild; $500 for the West Marin Junior Livestock Show; $1,500 for the Marin Ballet Association; $250 to the Corte Madera Chamber of Commerce for fireworks, and $75 to the San Rafael Junior Chamber of Commerce for placing flags on appropriate holidays.

Greyhound's Daily Runs Cut By 17

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Seventeen Bay Area commuter runs have been dropped by Greyhound Bus Lines since a strike by 350 machinists began June 10.

A Greyhound spokesman said yesterday a summer drop in the number of riders prompted the cut. An official of the International Association of Machinists Lodge 1305 blamed "extensive breakdowns" in equipment.

At least two buses were seen standing at roadside yesterday morning in Marin County where seven runs were eliminated Monday. Another eight runs were cut on the Peninsula and two in Contra Costa County.

The State Public Utilities Commission began an investigation of service yesterday at the insistence of the striking machinists, who claim the company has been using unsafe equipment.

Marinwood Budget Tentatively Up $5,628

A fiscal 1969-70 budget of $173,460, up $5,628 from last year, was tentatively approved last night by directors of the Marinwood Community Services District.

Genevieve Bolding, district business manager-secretary, estimated the district tax rate would drop about 4 cents to $1.25 per $100 of assessed valuation because of an increase in service and recreation revenue and a rise in assessed valuation.

The budget, scheduled to be adopted July 16, includes $101,715 for salaries and $14,230 for capital outlay.

In other business last night, directors named Kenneth Sharshaf of 2356 Las Gallinas Avenue and Keith Lanning of 223 Blackstone Drive to the park and recreation commission to replace Charles Mason, who moved to Los Angeles, and Ralph Tischbern, who did not seek reappointment.

George Whitaker of 18 Mount Ranier Drive was chosen as Upper Lucas Valley's representative on the fire commission. Mrs. Bolding said Whitaker was recommended by area homeowners as a replacement for Ronald Marino, whose term had expired.

Pennsylvania Avenue in Washington perhaps was a special honor to that state among the original 13 and perhaps to soften its disappointment when the nation's founding fathers decided not to make Philadelphia the permanent capital.

Abandoning Penngrove School Eyed

The Petaluma Board of Education last night considered abandoning the unsafe Penngrove School rather than rehabilitating it and began making arrangments to transfer students.

Consulting engineers and architects told the board that it would cost $185,184 to bring the building up to minimum state standards for earthquake and fire safety. The project could go as high as $269,154 if the building were also to be improved educationally and full use made of all space.

If a new building is constructed, the board indicated it would be in the present parking lot area with the 44-year-old building being demolished for a new lot.

Faced with the problem of relocating the students Supt. Lesly H. Meyer said all steps would be taken to avoid double sessions at a neighboring school, a complaint voiced by some 30 parents.

Solutions include bussing the students in equal numbers to several other schools or purchase of portable classrooms for Penngrove or another school.

By resolution of trustee Sol Fishman, the board said students would definitely not occupy the building until safer arrangements have been made.

Engineer David L. Messinger said the major weakness at the building is in the roof and floor.

Architect Malcolm Reynolds said that a great deal of remodeling within the building would be necessary indluding new lighting, heating, plumbing and restroom fixtures.

The men estimated that nine months would be needed for either the rehabilitative process or for the construction of a new building

A progress report on the continuing study as well as recommendations for future use of the building will be made at the Aug. 5 board meeting.

The Joyce Kilmer National Forest, North Carolina, was named in honor of the poet who wrote the famous poem, "Trees."

$12.7 Million School Bond Issue Is Asked

Predicting an enrollment increase of 8 per cent in Petaluma Junior and Senior high schools over the next 10 years, the Petaluma Board of Education last night called for a $12.7 million bond election for Oct. 14.

On the ballot, voters will be asked to approve the sale of $3.6 million in bonds and $9.1 million in state apportionment. The board said the funds would finance a five-to-10 year building program.

In the last bond ellction, 1959, it was also estimated to provide funds for five to 10 years. First fund projects would go for a new senior high school and a junior high school in East Petaluma.

The board questioned whether the present 5 per cent interest rate limit would still be in effect by the time of the bond election. Should the rate limit be raised to 6 per cent, a second election would be needed. Supt. Lesly H. Meyer said he had information that the interest rate would not rise, thus not endangering voting.

A recommendation for the bond election came from the board's educational advisor committee which will be forming working committees to promote passage.

The Petaluma Board Of Education Also:

The project costs total $48,850, substantially under the $53,000 estimate.

FIELD LIGHTS — Reviewed the problem of unsafe light standards at Durst Field at Petaluma Senior High and authorized the architectural firm of Lieb and Quaresma of Petaluma to proceed with the plans to change two wooden poles to one steel pole in the center of the west side stands and to repair two wooden poles on the same side to meet state safety standards. Cost was estimated at $20,270.

Berkeley Barb Hit By Pickets

The underground weekly was picketed and occupied yesterday by a dozen hippie-type persons claiming to represent the paper's 35-man staff.

They called the Barb's balding and bearded editor and publisher, Max Scherr, 53, "a capitalistic bloodsucker" and demanded better pay and working conditions.

Scherr said the disruption would cause the paper to miss its publishing deadline for the first time since he gave up a bar to start it four years ago. There was no damage to the Barb's offices.

SACRAMENTO ROUNDUP

Bill Advances For English Drinking Driver Test

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — A drunken driving bill its author says is "the toughest in the nation" today reached the Assembly floor.

The Assembly Ways and Means committee last night approved by a bare 10-vote majority a bill by Assemblyman John Vasconcellos, D-San Jose, adopting the English three-test program.

Under the bill a motorist with a blood alcohol count of .08 per cent runs a risk of being prosecuted for impaired or drunken driving.

Vasconcellos conceded a social drinker who downed four whiskies in an hour would, on the average, be in jeopardy.

Presently most judges and juries in California informally adopt a count of .15 or above to establish a drunken driver. A new law signed by Gov. Ronald Reagan and effective sometimes this fall sets a blood-alcohol count of .10 per cent as presumptive proof a motorist is drunk.

Here's how it works:

If less than .08, he is let go but if above he must take a third test. He has his choice of a more sophisticated breath test or a blood or urine test.

This third test is the only one admitted as evidence in court. If the level is .08 to .15 he is subject to prosecution for impaired driving with lesser penalties than for drunken driving.

If the test showed above .15 the driver is subject to penalties now imposed for drunken driving.

All three tests are subject to the state's implied consent law. Refusal to submit to any one could result in loss of a motorists's driving privileges.

Vasconcellos said there was no conflict between his bill and the .10 presumptive limit bill signed by the governor. He said a prosecutor could choose to try his case either under the presumptive limit yaw or the triple test method.

BILL DIES

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—A bill to legalize betting on jal alai is dead for the 1969 session of the Legislature.

The Assembly Ways and Means Committee yesterday killed the measure at the request of its author, Assemblyman John Quimby, R-Rialto.

Quimby said Gov. Ronald Reagan opposed the bill because it would legalize another form of gambling.

"The state is spending millions of dollars annually to build and maintain roads between California and Nevada," the lawmaker said. "I'm certain that the upkeep and the snow removal funds we're spending on these roads is not so Californians can travel to listen to the Mormon Tabernacle Choir.

"They're going to Las Vegas and Reno to gamble," he said.

"If California's taxpayers are going to be taken by the state, let them enjoy parting with their money on a voluntary basis."

Quimby said pari-mutuel betting on the handball-like sport eventually would bring the state $40 million annually.

The committee killed the bill by officially taking it under submission.

HIRING CHAT

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—Gov. Ronald Reagan told a Japanese columnist yesterday that his administration has hired more minority group members for management positions than any other administration in California history.

Reagan made the statement in reply to a question at his weekly news conference from Kaoru Nakamaru, a syndicated political columnist for Mainichi newspapers.

The newspaper woman from Tokyo, who is touring America for three weeks interviewing political and business leaders, asked the governor about his policy toward helping Negroes have a better life.

"My administration has appointed in state government more minority community members to policy making position, management positions, than any other administration in the history of this state," Reagan said.

LACKS HELP

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Assembly Democratic leader Jesse M. Unruh's effort to funnel $16.3 million into college educations for minority youths died late yesterday without Republican support.

Unruh got solid Democratic support in the Assembly Ways and Means committee. But he needed the votes of two Republicans to add to the eight Democrats to clear the bill through the 19-member committee.

GOP members included to favor Unruh's Educational Opportunities Program (EOP) refused to go against the adamant opposition of chairman Frank Lanterman R-La Canada.

DEAD ISSUE

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—State regulation of credit reporting agencies today was a dead issue in the Legislature for this session.

The Assembly Ways and Means Committee last night killed a bill by Assemblyman James A. Hayes, R-Long Beach, requiring licensing of credit reporting agencies.

The same measure by Sen. Alfred E. Alquist, D-San Jose, was killed by the Senate earlier in the session.

The bill by Hayes also would have opened credit files to persons who complained false, misleading or inaccurate information jeopardized their credit ratings and employment.

BOND HIKE

SACRAMENTO (AP)—A Senate-passed bill to raise from 5 to 7 per cent the maximum interest rate on general obligation bonds moved today to the full Assembly.

The measure, by Sen. Gordon Cologne, R-Indio, one of several designed to make California bonds more competitive in the current high-interest market, was approved unanimously last night by the Assembly Ways and Means Committee.

The bill is aimed primarily at helping the financially troubled State Water Project, one of several state projects suffering from a lack of bond revenue.

Larkspur Planners Favor Sign Redesign

The Larkspur Planning Commission last night agreed that the fascia board of Disco at 1 Larkspur Plaza — now painted red, white and blue stripes — should be repainted all one color in either earth or wood tones.

Store manager Adrian Hamilton told the commission he will consult with his Los Angeles office and if it approves the change, he will submit a paint color to the Larkspur Planning staff for its approval.

Pacific Fishery Conclave Slated

LIMA, Peru (AP) — The United States will meet with Peru, Ecuador and Chile July 30 in an effort to solve a Pacific fishing dispute that has created serious diplomatic rifts.

Secretary-General Alejandro Deustua of the Peruvian Foreign Ministry announced last night the three South American nations had agreed to a U.S. invitation for the talks in Buenos Aires.

The announcement confirmed earlier unofficial reports that discussions would begin soon after Washington agreed to lift its ban on arms sales to Peru and Ecuador.

Olema Water Rate Arguments Are Due

Arguments will be filed by the Olema Water System and the California Public Utilities Commission staff with regard to the corporation's request for a 200 per cent increase in water rates.

A commission opionion is expected in two months, commission examiner John C. Gilman said today. Rates for the 28 water users, now $2.74 a month average, would be $7.41 if the request is approved.

The subject was taken under submission by the commission following a hearing July 1-2 at Point Reyes Station.

Attorney J. Thomas Hannan, representing the PUC, said at the hearing that the corporation has operated at a substantial loss for many years, has had no rate increase in over 20 years and cannot finance the $7,000 in suggested improvements.

Richard C. St. John, commission engineer, testifed that the $7,000 is sought to improve the water pressue and that there have been unsatisfactory reports on Olema water from the Marin County Health Department. The commission staff recommended an approximate 100 per cent increase, Gilman reported.

Teen Driver's Car Bumps Child

A 4-year-old Novato boy received a bump on his head when he ran in front of a car at 8:05 p.m., yesterday in front of 822 McClay Road, Novato, according to police.

Treated at Kaiser Foundation Hospital in San Rafael was Louis R. Carrara of 10 Nogales Court, Novato.

The driver of the car, Mary Jo White, 18, of 1661 Novato Boulevord, Novato, was southbound in McClay Road, told police she slammed on her brakes but could not avoid the child.

Safeguard Secret Talks Postponed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate postponed today a secret session on the Safeguard program and potential Soviet threats, but agreed to hold a closed meeting later limited to senators only.

Sen. John G. Tower, R-Tex., led the demand that all staff members be excluded from any secret session. He was joined by Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield who said, "We have a hard enough time keeping our own mouths closed."

Chairman John Stennis, D-Miss., of the Armed Services Committee wants a closed-door session to outline the potential Soviet threat.

Although there was general agreement to hold a secret session at a later date, Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen made clear any GOP member objecting to closed doors would be recognized to make a motion to go into open session. Such a move would require a majority vote.

Meanwhile, leaders of a bipartisan effort to limit the program to research while prohibiting any antimissile deployment or site acquisition say they expect a lengthy debate but are confident of victory.

Sen. John Sherman Cooper, R-Ky., and Philip A. Hart, D-Mich., prepared an amendment to block the Safeguard proposal for introduction today, as debate on the entire antiballistic tered its second day.

"It is unlikely that there would be any precipitate action," Hart told reporters.

Cooper said "I have always thought that we would have a majority. I still do."

Their amendment would not cut any of the $759.1 million in funds earmarked for Safeguard but would limit the use of research, development, testing and evaluation, plus "normal procurement incident thereto," mainly at the Kwajelein Islands test facility.

In addition, it would bar use of any funds—including that carried over from previous years—for deployment of an ABM system or for purchase of any sites for such a system.

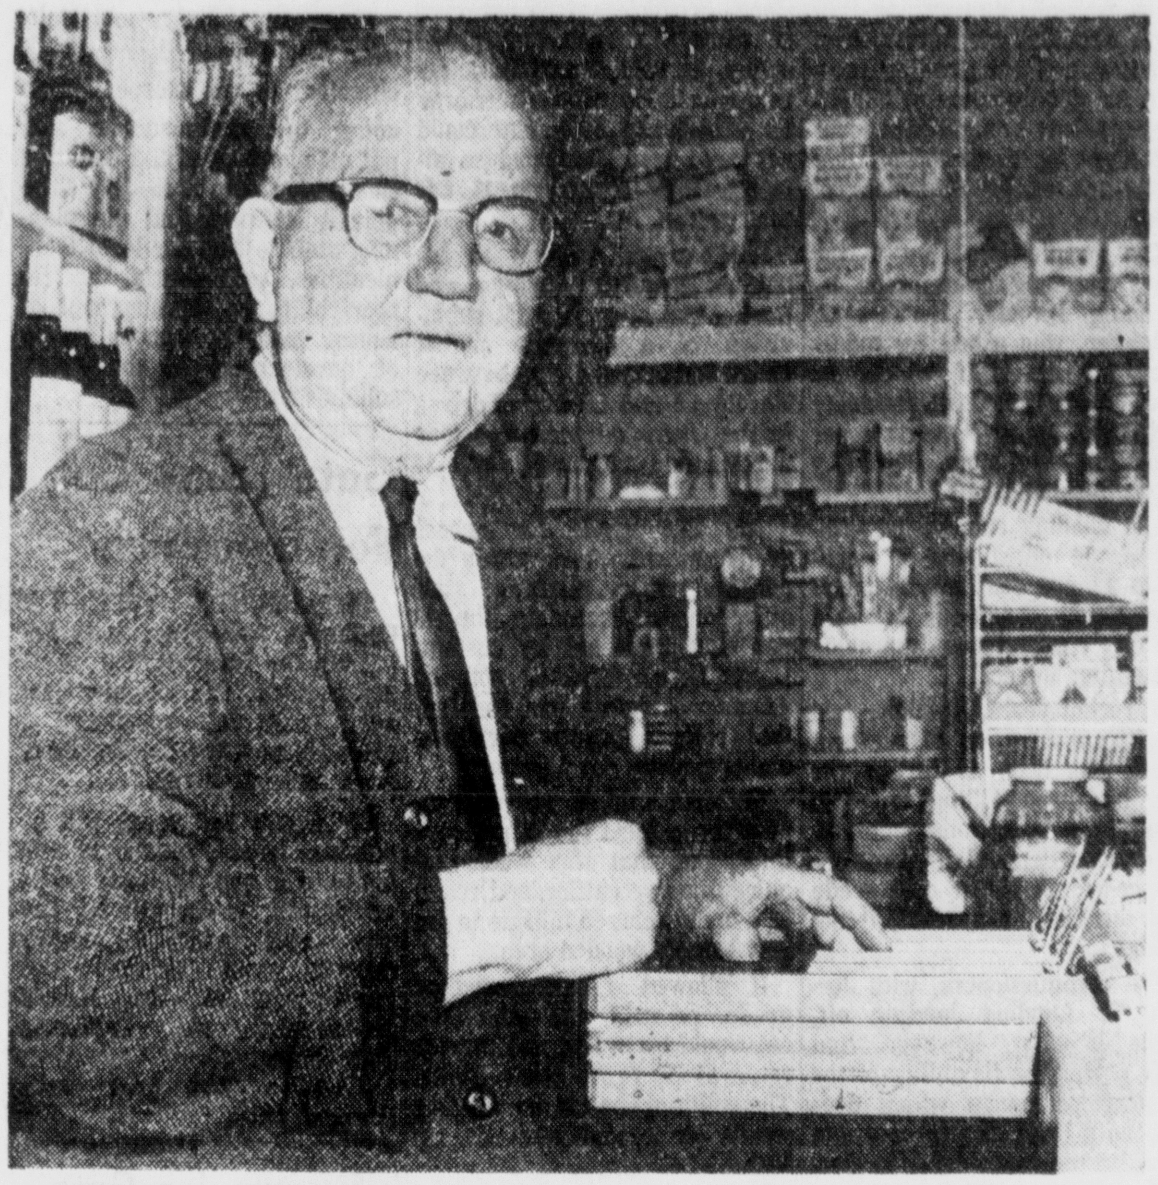
50 YEARS A GROCER

He Likes Folks, Not Hippies, Taxes

By LARRY D. HATFIELD



STAYING AT THE SAME STAND —Jimmy Mayers, recently honored by the board of supervisors, says he doesn't intend to retire from his grocery store where he has been for 50 years. "That's what kills you off," he says. Besides, he says, if he sold out, the government would get most of the money (Independent-Journal photo)

James B. (Jimmy) Mayers is a pink-cheeked, friendly man who has a staccato laugh that sounds a little like hailstones rolling off a tine roof.

He still works seven days a week, although his hours aren't as long as they used to be, and drinks ("about four highballs") only on special days like his birthday, Thanksgiving and Christmas.

He doesn't like taxes or beatniks and wishes both would go away.

He likes people ("except for the beatniks") and has a "Be a Good Guy" sticker pasted on his refrigerator.

Mayers recently passed two important milestones: completing 50 years of selling groceries from the same store and celebrating his 80th birthday on April 15. Of that latter date, Mayers sayd, "That's a bad day, a terrible day. It's when the government takes all your money."

Standing in his Shoreline Highway grocery the other day, he interspersed some friendly homilizing and philosophizing on a variety of subjects with waiting on a steady stream of customers, most of them calling him Jim.

Taxes and beatniks (he never once used the more current word, hippie, for Marin's less orthodox visitors) bother him most.

On taxes, he said that when he came to Stinson Beach in 1919 from Maine ("I'm a Maine-ac," he says as his laugh crackles the air), the levy on his grocery store was only $130. Now it's up to $900.

"I don't call it taxes anymore," he says, his eyes sparking. "I call it rent. The county's renting to me but they don't pay for the upkeep. I have to do that."

On beatniks, he said, "They chased them out of Muir Beach. I think they're all coming up here." To a customer who asked for a jug of low-priced red wine, he said, "Only the beatniks drink that. We carry good wines."

"I don't particularly like the beatniks," he said. "They're hard to wait on. Not only that, they steal too much." Then, combining his concern about both taxes and beatniks, Mayers lamented about "welfare — that's where our taxes go."

He stopped to joke with a middle-aged customer, asking him to produce his I-D before buying some beer. He then introduced his cat ("he has to meet everybody") and showed a copy of the resolution passed recently by the Board of Supervisors saluting him on his birthday.

Accompanying the resolution was a congratulatory letter from Supervisor Louis H. Baar, whom he calls Buddy.

When he and his wife first came to Stinson Beach 50 years ago, one had to take the railroad from Mill Valley to West Point, then take a two-horse stage with leather springs on over the mountain.

"This right here (his store) was a wheat field," Mayers said. "The man who used to drive the stage had his horses here." There was only one building at that time on the other side of the road which is now lined with buildings of various shapes and purposes.

He chose Stinson because he liked the outdoors, he said, and "used to hike over here 50 Sundays out of the year" after coming from San Francisco by ferry.

He remembers when the townspeople got together and paved what is now busy Highway 1 with crushed red rock and still later when it was paved with concrete.

Stinson really started to grow, he recalled, during the heydey of Marinship in Sausalito during World War II. Greyhound, in contrast to its present one-a-day schedule, ran regular shuttle service to Stinson Beach for the shipworkers.

It was also during World War II, he said, that there was great fear in Stinson Beach that it would be the focal point for an invasion from Japan. "They figured on landing here and at Tomales Bay," Mayers, who was an air warden, said. "It was very serious."

Even though he has slowed down some, he doesn't plan to retire. "That's what kills you off. I just don't work too hard anymore." Working seven days a week is good, he says, "because it keeps you healthy."

One other grocery in Stinson has been there almost as long as Mayers' store, although it has changed ownership several times. There's also a new chain food store.

Mayers wife, Belle, helped him at his store until her death four years ago. Indeed, most of his contemporaries are also gone from Stinson now. "They've all passed on, all my friends," he said, his eyes clouding slightly.

Still, he knows everyone in Stinson Beach, he says, "except for the beatniks," and "I like my neighbors."

Farmer's Trick Sort Of Backfires

He returned to his field to find another sign: "Now there are two."

Planners Move Picnic Valley Apartment Row On To Council

The 40-unit apartment house in Picnic Valley, which has for weeks placed San Rafael planning commissioners in the middle of a neighborhood controversy, was given architectural approval by the commissioners last night.

The action — which the obviously relieved commission chairman, Joseph J. Garbarino, said, "completes our part in this" — was not taken without a final sally by Picnic Valley residents objecting to the project.

Trevor Whitsen, a leader of the residents' group, had asked that the developer, Picnic Hill Properties, chop one apartment off the building fronting on 237 Picnic Avenue and in the space created plant some screening trees. The apartment could be added to another building in the rear, he said. He also asked that one building be lowered by six feet, cutting the hillside to achieve this, so as not spoil neighborhood views.

This, a spokesman for the firm said, wasn't possible. There was no room for addition of the apartment to the other building and lowering the building would leave its occupants staring out at a huge retaining wall necessitated by any cutting.

The commission ruled that the developers had met architectural requirements stated at the previous commission meeting and granted architectural approval subject to various conditions as to drainage, street widening in front and adequacy of driveway.

The end of the matter did not appear in sight, however, as Planning Director Herbert G. Hotchner reminded the residents they have on file an appeal to the city council both from the use permit and the architectural approval granted by the commission.

The San Rafael Planning Commission Also:

SUBDIVISION — Approved a tentative map for Henry Ghilotti for subdivision of 86,624 square feet into nine lots, averaging 9,624 square feet, on Irwin Street opposite City of San Rafael Park.

CHILD CARE — Denied a variance to Kathryn Cardoza to permit operation of a child care center for 10 children, where she has cared for six for the past eight years at 260 Clorinda Avenue.

CONSTRUCTION YARD — Continued a use permit for Holiday Magic to operate a construction yard at 2155 Francisco Boulevard until January 1970, with automatic extension to Jan. 28, 1972 if by the earlier date the property is included in a drainage assessment district.

DUMP — Granted Maggiora and Ghilotti continuance of a use permit to operate a dump in the 1500 block of Jacoby Street, with a limit of six months and notice that there is no assurance of a further continuance.

PET HOSPITAL — Denied a use permit for a veterinary hospital in Northgate Shopping Center, requested by Northgate Properties, on the ground that it was incompatible with shopping center services.

PARKING — Granted a use permit to Marin County Savings and Loan Association for expansion of its existing parking facilities from 15 to 40 spaces on Court Street between Fifth and Mission avenues, a project requiring demolition of two houses.

SWIMMING — Granted Patricia Del Prete a use permit to conduct swimming lessons and a water safety program at the Villa Rafael Motel pool on Mondays, Tuesdays, Thursdays and Fridays, or on Wednesdays instead of Fridays, the classes limited to four students at a time.

APARTMENTS — Granted Rhird Investment Co. a use permit and architectural approval for a 24-unit apartment development at 216 Marin Street, to consist of 12 one-bedroom and 12 two-bedroom units in three buildings.

YACHT CLUB — Granted architectural approval to Marin Yacht Club for building and land improvements at its new location at 24 Summit Avenue.

W. J. SLOANE — Gave architectural approval to expansion of the second floor of existing W. J. Sloane Building in Northgate Shopping Center to add about 10,000 square feet.

BANK — Gave architectural approval to Bank of Marin at 1108 Fifth Avenue for addition of about 4,200 square feet to its third floor penthouse.

FILM SALES — Granted a use permit, with Jorgen V. Lunding dissenting, to Marin Municipal Water District to enable it to rent space to Fotomat Corp. for a 36-foot-square building at 501 Second Street to conduct drive-in film sales. Lunding held this not the best use of the property from the city's standpoint, but he afterwards joined in unanimous approval of the architectural plans as modified by the planning staff.

METAL BUILDINGS — Adopted a policy opposing erection of buildings of metal that had an unfinished appearance, such as aluminum or galvanized iron, and asked the staff to come up with detailed policy as to colors and finishes desired in metal buildigs.

OFFICERS — Agreed to continue present commission officers in office and in the future to select officers at the second meeting each January.

Guilty Plea To Credit Card Count

Kristina May Woodall of San Francisco pleaded guilty yesterday in Marin Municipal Court to a felony charge of signing another person's name to a credit card to buy merchandise to Macy's in San Francisco.

Judge Peter Allen Smith told her to appear in Superior Court Monday for setting of a sentencing date.

Viet Veteran Gets Second 'Discharge'

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— Vietnam veteran Richard Lee Gentile, of Hampton, Va., has been given two dishonorable discharges from the Army in as many months.

A court-martial board decided yesterday the 21-year-old private, who was convicted of mutiny last month and sentenced to six months in jail and a dishonorable discharge, would not receive additional confinement after pleading guilty to two counts of desertion.

The soldier has five months remaining of the six month sentence handed down at Fort Ord following a nine-week trial for Gentile and 13 other Presidio prisoners who took part in singing sit-down strike at the Presidio last Oct. 14.

The defendants were among 27 stockade prisoners who said they were protesting the shooting death of Pvt. Richard Bunch, 19, when he allegedly tried to escape and poor conditions in the stockade.

The board yesterday gave Gentile his second discharge, to become effective when his jail sentence is served.

Gentile, who was first placed in the stockade for taking part in a peace march, escaped twice while awaiting his trial for mutiny for taking part in the sit-down.

San Rafael Retains Policy On Hillside Road Grades

San Rafael's diminishing flatlands available for development and the resultant growing pressure for development of hillside property was brought into focus last night by discussion of what limits to set for steepness of roads.

The question was put to the city's planning commission by Planning Director Herbert G. Hotchner, who asked for guidelines for his staff which, he said, finds itself increasingly pressed to approve ever steeper roads to ever more loftily perched subdivisions.

The existing subdivision ordinance, he noted sets a maximum 12 per cent grade unless exceptional conditions warrant the city engineer approving something steeper.

In recent years, Hotchner told the commission, an 18 per cent grade has been as far as the city has been willing to go in making exceptions, but now there was demand in some instances for a 25 per cent grade and the end, he warned, is not in sight.

The commissioners, with Jorgen V. Lunding leading off, made it clear, however, that they prefer the flexibility of the existing ordinance which does impose a limit, 12 per cent, but also leaves them free to deal with individual cases.

Roy Hoffman, a San Rafael consulting engineer, who was shorty to present plans for a subdivision requiring 21.6 per cent grades, told the commission, "There are 24,000 acres in San Rafael, over one-third in slope categories of 26 per cent or more." A restricted grade policy, he said, would limit development. He cited Greenbrae as a beautiful area that could not have been developed so attractively if limited to 18 per cent grades.

Hoffman was present on behalf of Security Savings and Loan Association to seek subdivision of a 19.4-acre parcel above Robinhood Drive between Hazelwood and Lockwood drives in the Glenwood area into four parcels and ultimately into 24 lots.

The 21.6 grade for access roads and driveways within the acreage drew planning staff objection to exceeding the 18 per cent limit set by custom. Hotchner objected both on grounds of safety and the fact that steeper grades permitted higher density development.

Hoffman said it was entirely possible to meet the 18 per cent limit, but that this would require massive cutting and result in a badly scarred hillside in the now heavily wooded area.

If allowed a 21.6 per cent grade, he said, the maximum cut would be 15 feet and require removal of 14,500 cubic yards. The width of the cut for grading would be a maximum of 125 feet.

If forced to accept an 18 per cent maximum grade, Hoffman said, cuts would have to be 30 feet with a width of 175 feet and require the removal of 45,000 yards of earth.

Robert Coman, a real estate broker also representing the owner, said the purpose of the steeper grade was solely "to retain the beauty of Glenwood and avoid tearing the hillsides apart."

The commissioners told Hoffman and Coman they had no objection to the steeper grade under the circumstances and put off approval of the tentative subdivision map until July 22 to permit Hoffman and the planning staff to iron our legal technicalities, particularly the responsibility for development of access roads at various stages of development of the entire subdivision.

Gate Prices Cut For Exposition

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—The California Exposition, hurt financially by disappointing attendance during its premier last year, yesterday announced a price rollback for the upcoming Aug. 22-Sept. 9 run.

Children 6 and under will be admitted free. Youths 16 and under will pay 50 cents while adults will be charged $1. The new price schedule roughly reflects rates charged two years ago at the Expo's predecessor, the California State Fair.

Adults last year were charged $1.50.

Fireman Job Open

Applications for the position of fireman are now being accepted by the Mill Valley Fire Department. The position, open to men ages 21 to 35, has a salary range of $700 to $849 a month.

GI Is Given Reprieve On Tour Of Duty

FORT DIX, N.J. (UPI) — A soldier who was drafted despite his parents' claim that he is mentally retarded and unfit to serve in the Army, won a permanent reprieve yesterday from pending orders of overseas duty in Germany.

The reprieve for Pvt. Robert J. Hinkle, 21, of Scappose, Ore., was announced by Sen. Mark Hatfield, R-Ore., whose office in May launched an investigation and obtained a postponement of the shipping orders.

The decision to keep Hinkle at Fort Dix until the end of his tour of duty, June 5, 1970, was made by the Coordinating Action Staff of the Department of the Army.

A staff spokesman said, "Private Hinkle has adjusted well to the Fort Dix environment and is performing his duties there in an excellent manner. We believe it would be in the best interest of all concerned to continue his assignment at that military base instead of sending him to Germany."

When Hinkle was drafted late last year, he was destined for Vietnam. His father, Robert R. Hinkle, lost a federal court battle in February to have his son discharged on contention that the soldier had the mind of a 10-year-old child.

The Army suspended plans to send him to Vietnam.

Elegant Desserts For Summer Dinner

ORANGE CHOCOLATE nut bombe and cassata are two "do-ahead" desserts lovely enough to serve at any summer dinner party. The secret of their ease of preparation is in the skillful use of prepared pudding mixes, which enable the cook to "bake" them in the refrigerator.

Every hostess knows that a light, lovely dessert is the proper ending for any warm weather dinner party, but often she prefers not to heat the oven preparing such a confection. Modern cooks depend on pudding-based desserts that "bake" to perfection in the freezer or refrigerator.

These desserts can be company-bright and party-special. Home economists have adapted several complicated European recipes for American convenience-minded housewives. Capturing the elegance of true continental dining, the desserts are easily made. The secret of their simple preparation is in the skillful use of prepared pudding mixes. They add creamy richness and just the right amount of subtle flavoring and the resulting dessert closely echoes their European counterparts.

Orange Chocolate Nut Bombe, adapted from a French recipe, is a truly fascinating no-bake dessert. It features an elegant orange sherbet mold with a surprise rich chocolate nut filling. Ideal party fare, it can be made the day before so that you don't have to fuss with the dessert on the day of the dinner. Line your prettiest mold with tangy orange sherbet. Then fill with the luscious chocolate nut pudding and cream combination, sparked with orange flavoring. No need to bother melting chocolate or chopping nuts for this. The pudding mix contains exactly the right amount of each.

Place the filled mold in the freezer and your dessert worries are over. Just before serving, unmold on a pretty plate. Surround with rosettes of whipped cream, each centered with a colorful wedge of orange. The orange and chocolate combination of the bombe is truly pleasing to the eye as well as to the taste.

CASSATA, inspired by the Italian dessert, is a lovely creamy cake, made with frozen pound cake. When defrosted, the pound cake is sliced and spread with a special filling. This filling is whipped up with vanilla pudding mix, rich cream cheese and exotic orange liqueur. It is chilled and then mixed with heavy cream, dark chocolate and pretty candied fruits. The flavors mingle into a delectable combination while the cake "bakes" in the refrigerator. Ice with a bittersweet mocha frosting and you'll have a large party cake, sure to please the most exacting guest . . . and hostess.

There are many other desserts you can prepare that require no baking. Use packaged pudding and pie-filling mixes, creating your own elegant offerings of souffles, creamy pies and cakes. You and your guests will love "cooling it" with no-bake desserts!

CASSATA

2 packages (12 ounces each) frozen pound cake
1 package (3⅝ ounces) vanilla pudding
½ cup milk
1 cup (½ pint) heavy cream
1 package (8 ounces) cream cheese, softened
2 tablespoons Grand Marnier or other orange liqueur
1 ounce semi-sweet chocolate, shaved
2 tablespoons chopped mixed candied fruit
½ cup heavy cream, whipped
12 ounces semi-sweet chocolate
¾ cup strong black coffee
½ pound sweet butter
Nut slivers for garnish

Slice each cake into 5 slices lengthwise. (These cakes are used end to end to form one long narrow cake.) Set aside on serving paltter end to end. Combine pudding mix, milk and cream in saucepan. Cook over medium heat until quite thick. Beat in cream cheese and liqueur until smooth. Place covered wiht plastic wrap, in the refrigerator until well chilled. (1 to 2 hours, depending on temperature. Be sure the mixture is well chilled, so that the chocolate to be added will not melt). Fold in chocolate shavings, fruit and whipped cream. Spread between all the cake slices, ending with cake on top. Press cake together, gently. Chill 1 hour. Combine chocolate and coffee in a saucepan. Melt slowly over low heat, stirring constantly. Beat in butter. Chill until thick enough to spread on cake, an hour or so. (This can be chilling while first part of filling is chilling.) Spread cake with chocolate frosting, in decorative swirls. Garnish with nut slivers. When serving, cut with a sharp serrated-edge knife, using a sawing motion. Makes one large loaf cake or about 10 servings.

ORANGE CHOCOLATE CHOCOLATE NUT BOMBE

1 quart orange sherbet
1 package (3⅝ ounces) chocolate nut pudding
2 cups milk
½ pint heavy cream
1 tablespoon orange extract

Partially thaw sherbet and whip until it is a spreadable consistency. Press it quickly and firmly into the bottom and sides of a 1½ quart (6-cup) mold (Melon mold or any shape). This should line the setire mold. Place in freezer until hard (about 2 hours). Meanwhile, combine chocolate nut pudding and milk, prepareing pudding and milk, preparing directions. Chill thoroughly, about 2 hours, whip chilled pudding. Whip heavy cream until stiff and fold in orange extract. Fold together whipped cream and chilled pudding. Pour into sherbet lined mold and freeze until solid, overnight. Cover with paper, cut to fit mold. Once bombe is frozen, strip off paper. Chill serving plate. Just before serving, unmold bombe. To unmold, dip mold into hot water for about 5 seconds. Dry mold and turn upside down on the cold plate. Garnish with rosettes of whipped cream. Cut thin orange slices into small wedges and place in the center of each rosette. Makes 8-10 servings.

Try Your Hand At Making Favorite Sour Dough Bread

In bread-making, as in most things, America has borrowed profusely from other lands. Over the years Old World favorites have become translated through innovation into something uniquely our own.

Sour dough bread became identified with America because of the Alaskan "sour doughs" — prospectors who carried pots of sour dough starter so they could make bread out in the gold fields. However, this type of bread actually dates back several millenniums before the discovery of America. In fact, it is believed to be the oldest of all breads.

Sour dough starter is simply a self-perpetuating yeast mixture. With modern active dry yeast so readily available, there is no longer any need to keep starter doughs. However, this type of bread has a unique flavor which makes it in great demand — particularly on the West Coast. Sour dough bread can be prepared at home using a modern version of the old starter dough prepared with active dry yeast.

SOUR DOUGH BREAD STARTER

1¾ cups unsifted flour
1 tablespoon sugar
1 tablespoon salt
1 package active dry yeast
2½ cups warm water

DOUGH

5 to 6 cups unsifted flour
3 tablespoons sugar
1 teaspoon salt
1 package active dry yeast
1 cup milk
2 tablespoons margarine
1½ cups starter

To make starter, combine flour, sugar, salt and undissolved active dry yeast in a large bowl. Gradually add warm water to dry ingredients and beat 2 minutes at medium speed of electric mixer, scraping bowl occasionally. Cover; let stand at room temperature (78-80°F.) 4 days. Stir down daily.

To make dough, combine 1 cup flour, sugar, salt and undissolved active dry yeast in a large bowl.

Combine milk and margarine in a saucepan. Heat over low heat until liquid is warm. (Margarine does not need to melt.) Gradually add to dry ingredients and beat 2 minutes at medium speed of electric mixer, scraping bowl occasionally. Add 1½ cups starter and 1 cup flour, or enough flour to make a thick batter. Beat at high speed 2 minutes, scraping bowl occasionally. Stir in enough additional flour to make a soft dough. Turn out onto lightly floured board; knead until smooth and elastic, about 8 to 10 minutes. Place in greased bowl, turning to grease top. Cover; let rise in warm place, free from draft, until doubled in bulk, about 1 hour.

Punch dough down; turn out onto lightly floured board. Let rest 15 minutes. Divide dough in half. Shape each half into loaf and place in greased 9x5x3-inch loaf pan. Cover; let rise in warm place, free from draft, until doubled in bulk, about 1 hour.

Bake in hot oven (400°F.) about 30 minutes, or until done. Remove from pans and cool on wire racks.

TO REUSE STARTER: Add 1½ cups lukewarm water, ¾ cup unsifted flour and 1½ teaspoons sugar to unused starter. Beat for 1 minute at medium speed of electric mixer. Cover and let stand until ready to make bread again. Stir down daily.

Parker House Rolls have their roots deep in our American heritage. They originated in the early days of Boston's Parker House hotel. It is said that a temperamental pastry cook, flying into a rage, snatched up pieces of dough, squeezed them in his fist, and flung them into the oven. The rolls emerged in the shape we know so well, creased through the center. The new shape was greatly admired and the rolls became an American classic.

This recipe for Parker House Rolls is prepared by the method which eliminates the step of dissolving yeast in warm water before blending in other ingredients. The method treats the yeast as a dry ingredient, adding it with the flour, sugar and salt. In addition, initial beating is done with an electric mixer which not only facilitates mixing but makes doughs that are lighter and easier to handle.

PARKER HOUSE ROLLS

2¾ to 3¼ cups unsifted flour
¼ cup sugar
½ teaspoon salt
1 package active dry yeast
5 tablespoons softened margarine
⅔ cup very hot tap water
1 egg (at room temperature)
Melted margarine

In a large bowl thoroughly mix ¾ cup flour, sugar, salt and undissolved active dry yeast. Add softened margarine. Gradually add very hot tap water to dry ingredients and beat 2 minutes at medium speed of electric mixer, scraping bowl occasionally. Add egg and ½ cup flour, or enough flour to make a thick batter. Beat at high speed 2 minutes, scraping bowl occasionally. Stir in enough additional flour to make a soft dough. Turn out onto lightly floured board; knead until smooth and elastic, about 8 to 10 minutes. Place in greased bowl, turning to grease top. Cover; let rise in a warm place, free from draft, until doubled in bulk, about 1 hour.

Punch dough down; turn out onto lightly floured board. Divide dough in half. Roll each half into a ¼ inch thick circle. Cut into rounds with a 2½ inch biscuit cutter. Crease each round with dull edge of knife to one side of center. Brush each round with melted margarine to within ¼-inch of the edges. Fold larger side over smaller so edges just meet. Pinch well with fingers to seal. Place on greased baking sheets so rolls are almost touching. Cover; let rise in a warm place, free from draft, until doubled in bulk, about 1 hour.

Carefully brush rolls with melted margarine. Bake in a hot oven (400°F.) about 10 to 15 minutes, or until done. Remove from baking sheets and cool on wire racks. Makes 2 to 3 dozen rolls.

Tiny Cheese Biscuits

Tiny cheese biscuits can be made from pancake mix.

Cut 1 tablespoon of shortening and ¼ cup of grated cheese into 1 cup of pancake mix until the mixture resembles coarse crumbs. Add 1-3 cup of milk and stir until mixture is dampened. Turn out on lightly floured board or canvas; knead gently. Roll dough to ½ inch thickness. Cut into small rounds. Bake on ungreased cookie sheet in preheated 425-degree oven 12 to 15 minutes. Makes 24 tiny biscuits.

Cake 'N Cups Deceiving, Delicious

What looks like a crunchy ice cream cup filled with ice cream and topped with marshmallow, turns out to be a chocolate cake piled high with icing and made festive with chocolate shot and cake decorations.

These party-going Cake 'n Cups are simplicity itself to make. Begin with a mix-made batter, pour into the ice cream cups, bake, pile high with frosting and decorate.

This no-work baking will rate your cheers, too, because everything comes from a package. Cake, ice cream cups, and frosting. And when these cakes are baked you have nothing to clean up, ice cream cups are eaten with the cake.

CAKE 'N CUPS

1 9 oz. package cake mix
12 chocolate ice cream cups
Canned or packaged frosting mix
Cake decorations

Heat oven to 350°F. Prepare cake batter as directed on the package. Pour approximately 3 tablespoons batter into ice cream cups, filling about ½ full. Set on baking pan or in muffin tins and bake 25 to 30 minutes.

When completely baked, these miniature cakes will rise to about the top of the ice cream cups. Allow cakes to cool. Then to complete the "ice cream cone" picture, mound fluffy white icing over top of the cake, rounding it to resemble a scoop of ice cream. Top with cake decorations and serve. Serves 12.

They're great fun at parties too. To turn them into birthday party treats, top with a miniature candle.

THEY LOOK LIKE ice cream cones. You can eat them like ice cream cones, but under that crown of fluffy white frosting and colorful decorations is tender chocolate cake baked right in ice cream cups. A different cake dessert for parties.

COLLEGE OF MARIN retailing graduate Donna Hamilton finds work in a department store exciting and fulfilling, and wants to ultimately be a buyer for a large store. She works part-time at the Emporium in Northgate Fashion Mall.

Novato Girl Looks To Her Future

The transition from an undecided college student to one who knows exactly which career she wants to pursue isn't always an easy one.

For Donna Hamilton of Novato it was the visit to foreign ports on the world campus afloat program that triggered her decision to study toward a career in retailing and the fashion world.

Graduated last month from the College of Marin's retailing program, Donna is now quite sure where she is going both in terms of completing her education and becoming a buying executive for a retail department store. And she is combining studies with practical work experience while still a college student.

Donna was graduated with an Associate in Arts degree this June with never an anxious moment about admission to the university of her choice for completion of upper division work. Acceptance at the University of California Berkeley campus was virtually assured by her grade point average. She was on the dean's list with two semesters at 3.75, and two semesters with the rare and coveted 4.00 grade point average.

Winning scholarships came easy, too. While a student at Novato High School, she won the chamber of commerce scholarship for a student planning to enter College of Marin. This was the first of several more scholarships she won while a student at Marin. Her career goals were undecided then, and she began her studies by concentrating in the subject she enjoyed most, music. "I joined the piano ensemble class because I played the piano pretty well," she said, "and later joined the community chorus."

ONE AFTERNOON out of curiosity Donna decided to drop by the College Center and pick up some literature from the man on campus from Chapman College in Orange, representing the World Campus Afloat. 'I thought of it as something I might like to try some day," Donna said. After chatting with the representative and learning a $1,200 scholarship was available and she might be eligible, she applied, won, and much to her own amazement, was in New York in early October, aboard the S. S. Ryndam and ready for her first semester of college work.

"What a dream it was," she recalls.

"THIS WAS REALLY the beginning of my avid interest in retailing and the fashion market," Donna says. She visited such ports as Lisbon, Barcelona, Marseilles, Athens, Rome, Istanbul, Alexandria, Bombay, Ceylon, Bangkok, Kobe and Tokyo, all the while picking up a new interest in international merchandise — envisioning herself someday traveling to these cities as a buyer of fashion and merchandise for a retail store.

Donna returned via Los Angeles just in time to enter the 1967 spring semester at College of Marin. Her expenses have been minor while attending Marin, and she continues to live at home with her parents in Novato, the Rev. and Mrs. L. W. Hamilton, and younger sister, Nancy, 19, who is a College of Marin freshman. Money earned from a part-time job at the Emporium in Northgate as on-the-job training, a requirement toward completing her retailing course at College of Marin, has gone into a savings account to help defray cost of upper division study.

Scholarship money she earned this semester includes $500 from the Fashion Group in San Francisco, where she competed with some 600 Bay Area students and retail store employees, and two other scholarships. She has applied for campus housing at Berkeley, but may find it necessary to commute from Novato, riding with other students.

Donna designs and sews much of her own wardrobe, and completely avoids faddish, far-out clothes and mini skirts. She is 5 feet, 10 inches tall and has a slender, model-like form. Her hobbies all relate to her future career, but she sometimes finds time to usher at the San Francisco Symphony or the ballet, "where we get no pay, but are able to watch the performances," she said.

PART OF THE EXCITEMENT in retailing, she anticipates, will be to watch the sales of items you have personally selected for your store, bearing in mind the practical aspects of your purchases. She has heard much from her instructors, Mrs. Mary Sullivan Roy, and Mrs. Marilyn Schwartz, as to the hazards of overbuying an item that might not sell, and under-buying items that you never dreamed would sell out so fast."

Donna is perfectly at ease with people and feels she has had many advantages as the daughter of a minister. Her father has been pastor of the United Methodist Church in Novato for four years, and has also had parishes in Fallon, Nev.; Grass Valley, Marysville and Fresno. Donna and Nancy have developed poise and confidence in meeting people.

"In no other way could you meet so many new people in such a short time in your neighborhood, than through the church," Donna maintains. Both girls attend meetings with their father, assist in planning church related functions and with the Sunday School. Donna has enjoyed her duties selecting literature and materials for the church.

She has found her two years at College of Marin "all that I could expect from college and more." The retailing class is small, with an average of 20 students graduating each year, yet each student is a part of the campus since they study

DONNA HAMILTON of Novato is spending the summer between her sophomore and junior years of college getting practical experience in retailing. Visiting foreign cities gave her the impetus to work toward a career as a fashion buyer. She will enter the University of California in the fall to pursue studies toward her goal. A top student, Donna also sews most of her own clothes.

Africa And Spain Visited By Mill Valley Couple

By MOLLY MARIN

Many interesting experiences are being reported by Dr. and Mrs. Rodney B. Hartman, who have just returned to Mill Valley from a trip to Africa and Spain that they began on April 7.

The tour party of 19 included friends they have traveled with before, among them Dr. and Mrs. Willard Frier and the John Ongaros of Greenbrae.

Mrs. Hartman described some of the highlights. An unusual one for her at the famed Treetop Inn was getting bitten on the arm by a baby baboon when she had nothing to offer it as it sat on her shoulder. A real shock was learning that the accountant at Paraa Lodge had been killed by a leopard the night before they arrived.

Starting at New York the party flew first to Dakar and then to Johannesburg and while in the area two Kimberley diamond mines were visited. After noting the racial discrimination in South Africa and Salisbury, Rhodesia, the Hartmans found the contrasting situation in the emerging nations very exciting.

Other places they visited were Victoria Falls, Lusaka, and Dar es Salaam, the old sea coast town in Tanzania and the island of Zanzibar, where they stayed at a hotel that was formerly a sultan's palace.

Everywhere the Hartmans were impressed with the beautiful game lodges located right in the bush, and the one at Mt. Kenya partly owned by film star William Holden. They saw many wild animals of all kinds at the Ngorongoro crater and on the Serengeti plains.

They returned several times to Nairobi, and on one trip saw the pygmies living on the border between Uganda and the Congo.

Other fascinating places on their tour of Africa were Addis Ababa, Cairo, Tunis and Algiers, where they stayed at the St. George Hotel, once a palace and the headquarters of Eisenhower during World War II.

Also on their itinerary were Casa Blanca, Marakech, an exciting trip through the Atlas mountains on the edge of the Sahara Desert, Fez and Tangiers.

While in Africa Dr. Hartman had some opportunity to investigate voodoo medicine.

Taking a hydrofoil boat across the Mediterranean, the Hartmans landed in Algeciras in Spain. At Malaga they visited the Harold Schuttes, formerly of Marin, who bought a condominium and have lived there for three years.

After stopping at Madrid the Hartmans flew to London and then home.

NUPTIALS AT Chapel of Grace at Grace Cathedral in San Francisco Thursday united in marriage Miss Jean Bolton, who for the past 10 years has been executive director of the Florence Crittenton Home in San Francisco, and John R. May of Tiburon. Mr. May is executive director of the San Francisco Foundation. Miss Bolton, a Sausalito resident, was given in marriage by her father, Wilbur Bolton of Palo Alto. After the ceremony a reception for family members and close friends was held at the home of Dr. and Mrs. Samuel Scarlett of San Francisco.

The couple are on a wedding trip to Jackson Hole, Wyo., and will live in the bridegroom's home in Tiburon upon their return.

Wedding guests included Miss Bolton's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Bolton of Palo Alto, her sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. H. Reid Whiting of Palo Alto, her brother Wilbur Bolton Jr. of Washington, D.C., and another sister and her husband, Mr.

Being 'Just Interested' Is Key To Mental Finesse Says Woman

MIAMI, Fla., (UPI) — Lita Quejado says she is "just interested" in other things she does and the people she meets.

If you have trouble remembering names and such, perhaps you ought to try the "just interested" approach — which Miss Quejado credits for her fantastic memory.

SHE REMEMBERS names, dates, sports scores, can recite the first paragraph of every book she's read, and assorted oddments — like the name of the music critic who didn't like Margaret Truman's singing.

Miss Quejado won $32,000 on the old television show, $64,000 Question, for that bit of knowledge.

Born in the Philippines, she was adopted by a naval officer who married her mother during World War II. She said she is of Spanish, Chinese, Philippine and other extractions.

"I'm a walking United Nations," she said.

DURING THE WAR, cut off from many material goods and conveniences, she amused herself by inventing educational games that challenged her power to recall. The training helped her zoom through schools of all sorts.

Miss Quejado's degrees include a doctorate in law. The ex-quiz queen, now vice president of a bank, spends spare time talking on the phone to bachelors or whizzing about in her Mercedes—the latter being a universal sign that one has arrived financially.

THE LADY BANKER says men usually are overawed by her mental finesse and tend to treat her as a novelty rather than as a person.

"Men don't like women to be too competent," she said.

Also: imagine the trembling knees of a guy who considers dating a gal who has a memory like a computer.

TAKE THE CASE of the poor chap who suggested a moonlight stroll down the beach.

"But you told me you didn't like to walk," Miss Quejado reminded him.

Such contradictions in conversation register "tilt" in her memory bank. The "tilts" have deflated many a smooth-talker's tried and tested battle plan to romance.

HELEN HELP US!

By HELEN BOTTEL

Can Two Separate Generations Be Described By One Word?

DEAR HELEN:

If you had just one word to describe the present "now" generation: — those under 25 — what would it be? And what's your one-wonder for us oldsters over the hill at 30-plus? — ASKER

DEAR ASKER:

I'll take a crack at it:

One-word description of the Under-5 Generation? I'd call them "Questioners." They're taking long hard looks at every area of our lives and asking, "Why must things be this way?," "How can we change them for the better?" Let's hope they follow through on that last question (and I think they will) before they hunker down in stolid, uncaring middle age!

The word for "over-30 oldsters?" How about "Paranoid?" This doesn't apply to all of us, thank goodness, but a sizeable number are downright hand-wringers. They're fearful of the temptations their children face — they're even afraid of their children! They're scared to go out on the streets at night; they don't trust their neighbors or the repairman, or the government, or even their psychiatrists. They resist change, and are affronted by the questioners who demand it. They're often afraid to say what they think because they might tread on the toes of someone who can hurt them!

Now, all of us aren't paranoid about all these things, but few of us can truthfully say we aren't slowed down by certain fear hang-ups. And many just plain aren't necessary, if we'd dissect and examine them — and thus pare them down to size. — H.

DEAR HELEN:

It's a free country, true, but don't you think we can overdo the bickering over little things? I mean the moon-flyers' earthy comments. They said what they felt like saying, and I thoght it was very human. Yet some people were so shocked they are still writing letters to the editor about how our astronauts should "think of their position and their influence on the young." Now what young person old enough to watch a space flight hasn't heard "son of a bitch," and that other descriptive phrase?

Another thing: I understand certain anti-religious people stirred up such a snit that the astronauts are no longer allowed to quote scriptures to describe the grandeur of outer space. (Note from H: Check again. I doubt this.)

Must we be so little when we're accomplishing something so big? — DISGUSTED

DEAR DIS:

As I've said many, many times before, only a few are this "picky." Because their comments cause controversy, they make the headlines. — H.

DEAR HELEN:

My father was an alcoholic. Now I am married to a man who thinks there's nothing wrong in drinking and swears he'll always remain a "social drinker."

After a big argument, he called me from a bar and said he'd be home in a couple of hours. I know he is trying to punish me, but how could he be so cruel? — FRIGHTENED

DEAR FRIGHTENED:

How can you be so "paranoid?" All social drinkers don't become alcoholics any more than all cake-eaters become obese. Expect moderation, not abstinence from your husband, and I think he'll enjoy his before-dinner cocktail at home. — H.

Maybe Johnny Didn't Crawl

By ARLEEN ABRAHAMS
By ASSOCIATED PRESS

If Johnny can't read properly — and if as a result he is an academic failure or an underachiever — chances are he never learned to creep, crawl or cross-pattern walk properly either. Johnny may be neurologically underdeveloped.

"Although Johnny's meurological underdevelopment may be caused by a birth defect or by his being a premature baby, in the majority of cases it is likely that Johnny is a normal child who is a victim of overprotectiveness on the part of parents who didn't permit him to move about freely on the floor, as nature intended," warns Robert Morris, whose belief in the "fourth dimension" in educational development — neurological organization — led to his founding the University of Plano (Tex.) in 1965.

"You see," explains the Fordham Law School graduate and past president of the University of Dallas, "each experience a child undergoes — crawling, creeping, cross-pattern walking — helps develop a diferent layer of the brain. If brain development proceeds in an orderly path the result is a dominantly controlled hemisphere of the brain — a definite one-sidedness."

However, if a child misses one stage of development, incomplete dominance is a likely result and vision, speech, motor and verbal performances will be visibly affected," sayd Dr. Morris.

"Because one eye may move forward while the other takes him backward, the child may reverse words in reading — saw for was.

(If speech is affected — although vision is usually the prime casualty — hesitation between the two halves of the brain in determining dominance results in stammering or stuttering.)

Since reading is the gateway to learning, says Dr. Morris, a child may miss a great deal and will tend to be a poor student. A child with a good IQ, he contends, may learn to compensate and get by on his wits.

"But in higher grades — particularly high school or college — when heavy reading and cramming are necessary, the original weakness will show up.

"An estimated 40 per cent of all high school and college dropouts are neurologically underdeveloped," he says.

Now, at the University of Plano's College of Developmental Education, such youngsters are getting a second chance. For at least one hour every day, approximately 200 boys and girls (although the trait predominates in boys 5-1) go through the stages of creeping, crawling and cross-pattern walking—the developmental patterns of infancy.

After training, says Dr. Morris, many students originally not considered college material successfully bridge the gap and go on to the Plano Liberal Arts College or to other accredited colleges and universities.

"It isn't unusual for a youngster after training to increase his IQ by as much as 10 points. The actual IQ doesn't shoot up, but now the youngster is able to express his full potential."

The concept came to Dr. Morris when he was faced with obtaining an education for his son William (the fifth of seven children) who had sustained brain injury at birth. Searching for relief, Dr. Morris took Willie to the Institute for Achievement of Human Potential in Philadelphia.

"There a whole new vista opened up. We came to realize that Willie hadn't crept or crawled as an infant. After he was introduced to these steps he improved greatly. He wasn't able to talk until he was three. Then in six weeks he was talking words; six months later he was speaking complete sentences. Now he is achieving slightly under grade."

Dr. Morris looks forward to the day when every university and college will have a program of developmental education. Currently, it is believed that his University of Plano is the only university offering a degree in developmental education enabling graduates to teach it. "Only if every school offers neurological organization to its students, can every student be certain that he is achieving the highest possible performance level of which he is capable," he says.

subjects related to and outside their major. Donna found both anthropology and calculus "the hardest courses for me," and this, she maintains, kept her from her 4 point grade average those two semesters.

DONNA IS LOOKING forward to the big school feel of the Berkeley campus, and would ultimately like to receive her master's degree there, although the executive training programs offered by most department stores accept applicants with a bachelor's degree if they have the recommendations.

Recommendations are assured for Donna. She was one of three students, state-wide, to win the Sears Foundation retailing student of the year award, taking first place for Northern California. Donna stresses, however, she will stick to her studies and to her part-time work until at least a bachelor's degree in business administration has been earned.

The Emporium Housewares: All eight Big E's

U.S. Pop Art Display Astonishes English

LONDON (AP) — Londoners gaped at the city's first major exhibition of United States pop art today, mesmerized by a loudspeaker endlessly belting out Kate Smith's "God Bless America" at the Hayward Gallery on the south bank of the Thames.

The paintings and sculptures were described as a "recurrent iconography"—meaning bottles of Coke, slices of bread, Marlon Brando's cowboy boots, cans of soup, candies, and a host of comic book characters including Alley Oop, Lil Abner, Dick Tracy and Batman.

Crowds were fascinated by Edward Kienholz's "The Portable War Memorial," described in the catalogue as "an environmental construction with operating Coke machine."

The memorial consisted of a blackboard with the names of states no longer in existence, cafe tables, a Coke machine, a two-dimensional man and woman sitting on bar stools, the man holding a three-dimensional dog, capped by a plaster reconstruction of the flag raising on Mount Suribachi by headless U.S. Marines.

"I'm not at all sure this can be called art but I'm having fun," said one elderly spectator.

Novato Aide Goes To Mill Valley

Howard R. McGill of Larkspur, planning-zoning technician for the City of Novato, has been named assistant zoning administrator in Mill Valley, Planning Director Harvey E. Bragdon announced yesterday.

Bragdon said McGill, who will earn $850 a month, will begin his new duties July 21.

McGill will replace Jeanne McLean Rohde who resigned to move to South Lake Tahoe. He lives at 236 Monte Vista Avenue with his wife and children.

McGill has been on the Novato planning staff for the past five years. Before that he was planning draftsman for the County of Marin.

Film Festival Dates Are Set

Film makers from Marin and Sonoma counties may participate in a group showing at the Atrium Festival of the Arts, July 31 to Aug. 3, at Santa Rosa Junior College.

Walter McCallum, lecturer in film at St. Mary's College, will direct the event. Noncompetitive, the screening will also be open to residents from Napa, Mendocino and Solano counties.

Both 8 and 16 mm film will be accepted as well as sound and silent productions. Persons interested should contact McCallum at Box 911, Santa Rosa.

Restaurant's Founder Buried

VACAVILLE (AP) — Edwin I. Power, who founded the popular Nut Tree Restaurant in 1921, was buried yesterday at the Vacaville-Elmira Cemetery. He was 76.

His restaurant, one of the most widely known in Northern California, was named for a giant walnut tree beside Highway 40 — now Interstate 80 — where he and his wife, Helen, started their business.

The tree, long gone, offered shade for motirists on the way between San Francisco and Sacrament.

Power was born in San Jose and attended Santa Clara University and the University of California at Davis.

He died at Sutter General Hospital in Sacramento after a long illness.

Symposium Set At University

Dr. Surjit Singh, Baird professor of Christian Philosophy at San Francisco Theological Seminary in San Anselmo will lecture on Karma yoga at the 1969 University of San Francisco Symposium Aug. 7, 8 and 9.

Main symposium topic this year is "Asia: Man the Contemplative."

Several speakers are scheduled for the three-day event that will include oriental dinners, interpretive dance and music. A registration fee will be charged and registration is limited to 100 persons. Information may be obtained by calling or writing the university.

Sounding Board Topic: Fair-Marin

The future with Fair-Marin will be discussed at 9 a.m. tomorrow on the KTIM Sounding Board by a panel including the new Fair-Marin general manager, Leon Kalimos; Harold Stockstad, president of the Fair-Marin board; Mrs. Harold Summers, member of Fair-Marin master plan committee and Pierre W. Joske, Marin County director of parks and recreation.

Questions may be phoned in during the live broadcast. The program, moderated by Kitty Oppenheimer, will be repeated by tape-recording Sunday at 10:05 a.m.

Three-School Cast In 'Oliver!' Tomorrow

Sixty-five students from Redwood, Sir Francis Drake and Tamalpais High Schools will perform in the musical, "Oliver!" to open tomorrow at 8:30 p.m. in Ruby Scott Auditorium, Tamalpais High.

Kathi Wood, a 1969 Redwood High graduate and Corte Madera resident, will act the lead role in the play based on Charles Dickens' "Oliver Twist."

The choice of a girl in the role of one of Fagin's workhouse boys was a "theatricalism," according to Louis R. Casazza, technical director of Drake High. He added that the main thing is the allusion they are trying to create.

"Oliver!" will be given again on Friday and Saturday, July 17 through 19, all at 8:30 p.m. curtain times. There will be a special matinee at 2:30 p.m. next Wednesday.

The students are part of a 5-week course, summer drama-music workshop, at Tamalpais High.

Jamie Norton plays Fagin; Robert He rrmann, the artful dodger; Lynn Phillips, Nancy; Brent Huber, Mr. Bumble. Double cast are Chris McRee and Joel Blum as Bill Sikes; Ann Long and Kathy Quinlan as Bet and Pat Petzar and Cricket Waldech as Widow Corney.

Settings, designed by Casazza, are on wheels to allow fast changes visible to the audience. An admission will be charged.

Inverness District Postpones Session

The Inverness Public Utility District board did not meet last night because its secretary, Alice Cherrigan, wanted to go bowling.

The board will meet at 7:30 p.m. today in the Inverness firehouse at which time it plans to discuss the 1969-70 budget and perhaps set a different meeting date which doesn't interfere with Mrs. Cherrigan's bowling night, director William H. Thompson reported.

Mill Valley Benefit For Firefighters

The 24th annual Mill Valley Firemen's Ball, sponsored by the Mill Valley Volunteer Firemen's Association, will be at 9 p.m. Saturday at the Mill Valley Outdoor Art Club. Music will be provided by Bill Sachs and his band.

Tickets for the party may be obtained from the fire department or at the door. Proceeds will benefit the Volunteer Firemen's Sick and Relief Fund.

Tryouts Are Slated For Musical 'Gypsy'

Tryouts for adults and children for the 51 cast spots in Terra Linda's Way Off Broadway Troupe's production of "Gypsy" will be held at 8 p.m. tomorrow at the Terra Linda Recreation Center.

The amateur theater group is sponsored by the center.

Cal Admissions Officer Quits

BERKELEY (AP) — David B. Stewart said last night he is resigning as chief admission officer at the University of California because his department is not given enough money.

"I can no longer tolerate the pressures of undergraduate admission at Berkeley with the staff I have and the lack of budgetary support I get," he said.

"The Berkeley campus budget has been continually cut by the legislature and the governor and I get less and less money each year to operate on," he added.

Stewart's resignation is effective Sept. 1. He said he would take a job in the field of educational services with a private firm in San Francisco.

U.S. PROFESSIONS FOUND WANTING

(Special to the I-J)

LOS ANGELES — America's professions, from engineering and medicine to law and business administration, are not meeting their responsibilities to the public, a UCLA professor charged today on the basis of a 12-year study.

Their failures, he said, are reflected in the deteriorating quality of American life, the level of professional education in colleges and universities, and in increasing student unrest.

To counteract the trends, Dr. Allen B. Rosenstein urged a basic change in the outlook of the professions, a fundamental restructuring of American universities, and creation of a federal National Professions Foundation.

In a book entitled "A Study of a Profession and Professional Education," the UCLA engineering professor scored the professions for not involving themselves in the most pressing social problems of our time and the universities for not preparing future professionals to anticipate the long-range consequences of their activities.

The root causes of what Dr. Rosenstein terms "the crisis in the professions" are two-fold:

The working professional is almost completely oriented toward the needs of the individual client rather than the needs of the public in general.

The future professional as an university student is steeped in research but badly prepared for "a life of action and responsible decision-making."

"As a result," said Dr. Rosenstein, "we perform marvels in space but our air and water are polluted. We win Nobel prizes in medical research, but our infant mortality is such that European obstetricians consider the United States 'an underdeveloped nation.'

"In international trade, we lead in a few research-minded fields, such as computers, aircraft and electronics, but at least 122 of our bread-and-butter manufacturing industries suffer chronic trade deficits. And the law and legal professions, according to a leading law professor, 'have not kept up with the massive alterations in society and government.' "

As a first step in reforming the professions, Dr. Rosenstein recommended that "individually and collectively, the professions must accept public responsibility for their sectors of society. The medical profession must assume responsibility for the health environment, the legal profession for the civil environment, the engineering profession for the physical environment, and the business administrators for the business environment."

Secondly, he urged creation of a National Professions Foundation, along the lines of the existing National Science Foundation, "to provide direction for the discharge of the social responsibilities of the professions" and to support professional schools in seeking solutions to major social problems.

For the universities, Dr. Rosenstein suggested a basic change in the academic structure by dividing undergraduate education among three main colleges — for the humanities, the sciences, and the professions.

"The main function of a common professional undergraduate college would be to educate society's future doers and decision-makers," said Dr. Rosenstein.

The binding tie in the education of future engineers, doctors, lawyers and businessmen is the preparation for decision-making, or, as the UCLA professor termed it, the discipline of design.

To Dr. Rosenstein, design is the distinctive and crucial skill of the professional, which distinguishes him from the humanist's cultural and artistic functions and the scientist's exploration of nature.

Dr. Rosenstein's findings and recommendations grew out of a 12-year study by the UCLA engineering faculty which started as a detailed analysis of every course taught to UCLA engineering undergraduates and expanded into a broad study of the functions and goals of the professions and the effectiveness of their education.

The study, ultimately known as the Educational Development Program, was primarily supported by a $1,200,000 grant from the Ford Foundation. It resulted in the publication of 13 major reports, of which Dr. Rosenstein's current book is the final one.

Dr. Rosenstein found the painstaking investigation of a university curriculum "the most valuable education I have ever received — for the first time I saw the whole educational process in perspective."

He recommended the same sort of self-education to restless students, who feel frustrated when their deeply-felt demands for "more relevance" in their studies are stymied by a lack of facts on which to base change.

"The present generation of students can become a constructive and creative force for educational change," said Dr. Rosenstein. "But at the present time, these students cannot really make any knowledgeable recommendations because they don't know how the pieces of the curriculum fit together, what are the possible alternatives for change, or how applicable their courses are to their future roles in society."

Old Mint Talks In Washington

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Hearings by the National Advisory Council on Historic Preservation concerning San Francisco's abandoned Old Mint will be held in Washington, D.C., Rep. Phillip Burton, D-Calif., said Monday.

Burton had urged that the hearings be held here.

Council hearings are necessary before the building at Fifth and Mission streets could be given by the Federal government to San Francisco State College which wants to raze it and construct a downtown educational center.

San Francisco's supervisors want the structure preserved.

Burgler Claims Gun, Recorder

John M. Hamren of 13 Zephyr Court, Lucas Valley, reported to the sheriff's department that when he arrived home Sunday from a vacation he discovered his house had been burglarized, deputies said yesterday.

Missing were a tape recorder, microphone, a revolver with holster and belt, an ammunition pouch containing 15 rounds of ammunition, 30 records, an amethyst ring, a diamond ring and costume jewelry as well as $60 in cash.

Bus Transit Freeze Urged To Allow Ferryboat Tests

By PAUL E. PETERZELL

A halt to virtually all plans to improve bus transit between Marin and San Francisco for at least two years was proposed yesterday by the consultant who headed a study of reviving ferryboats on the bay.

Dr. Claude Gruen, of the Arthur D. Little Inc. consulting firm, said the time was needed to test new kinds of vessels, and conceded that improvement of bus service could attract the same patrons the ferry system would need to be financially feasible.

The only bus routes that should be improved now, he said, were those such as the one between North Marin and the San Francisco Civic Center, a route that would not be replaced by ferry service.

Gruen proposed the halt to bus improvement as he presented the results of his firm's $45,000 study for the San Francisco-Marin Water Transportation Study Committee.

The committee unanimously adopted a resolution by former Marin supervisor Thomas T. Storer urging officials of the two counties and of the Golden Gate Bridge and Highway District to implement a ferry boat system "at the earliest practicable time."

Gruen's proposed halt to bus improvements was contrary to the Marin County Transit District's position favoring plans by the bridge district to go into the bus business. The transit district paid one-third of the cost of the ferry study, and the San Francisco Board of Supervisors paid two-thirds.

Ferry advocates have opposed the bridge district's bus plans, however, on the ground that action on it should await the findings of the ferry study. The bridge district's bus plans, as a result, have been held up since last December.

Gruen's report envisioned a $51 million ferry system that would carry more than 11,000 commuters a day, or more than one-third of the commute load expected on the bridge by 1971.

Michael R. Peevey, of San Rafael, co-chairman of the bus-oriented Marin Transportation Action Committee, asked from the audience how Gruen could expect such heavy ferry use. The Marin County Transit District figured that about 8,000 persons would use a modern bus system a day, Peevey noted.

Gruen, saying bus and ferry systems "are two entirely different things," responded he could not answer "without getting into a quibble."

The exchange brought a San Francisco woman to her feet with a declaration that Marin commuters would get a new bus transit system "only over our dead bodies. Ferries are the only way we'll allow the Marin commuters to come to San Francisco," she said.

Gruen estimated that $1 million would be needed to test vessels and design the details of a ferry system over the next two years. The federal government may be the source of the money, he suggested.

According to his report, the ferry system should be run by the bridge district, which has enough money to finance it.

At the end of the two-year test and design period, Gruen said, contracts could be let and the system built.

Orris W. Willard of San Francisco, a member of the ferry committee, praised Gruen's proposed system as "a very inexpensive way to solve a very bad problem." He added that "we could still back out" if it did not pan out after the $1 million test period.

San Francisco Supervisor Jack Morrison, co-chairman of the committee with Storer, termed the proposed ferry system "an alternative to the freeway treadmill." He said he would see that his board of supervisors promptly began hearings on Gruen's report.

Novato's Youth Again Running A Jobs Agency

For the second year, Novato young people are running an employment agency to find part-time jobs for Novato and San Marin High School students.

The youth employment agency, which is sponsored by the Novato Rotary Club and the Novato Teen Club operates offices from 1 to 5 p.m. daily in the Novato parks and recreation department at 917 Sherman Avenue.

There are now 103 students seeking all types of work, according to Ronald Pugh, one of the directors of the agency. The students will do any type of work by the hour or the job, he said.

Novato young people had a similar agency two years ago, but did not operate it last summer. This year there are more students than ever looking for work, Pugh said.

Sanitary Board Adopts Budget

A final 1969-70 budget of $3,500, just half the previous budget, was approved Monday by the Alto Sanitary District board, Director Carl O. Heynen Jr. reported.

The board allocated no funds for capital outlay, a $3,500 item in last year's budget.

The board also announced it will accept applications for a board member to replace Secretary Robert Black, who has moved to Novato.

Manslaughter In Car Crash

Frank Edward Jordan, 20, of Novato was arraigned Monday in Marin Municipal Court on felony manslaughter charges arising from a June 22 car crash in which Michael W. Gramlich died.

Jordan's case was continued until July 21 for entry of plea.

The youth was released from Marin General Hospital June 26 after being treated for multiple cuts and bruises.

Fringe Area Zoning Topic For Sonomans

A program on fringe area zoning will be presented at the Sonoma County Mayors' and Councilmen's Association meeting tomorrow at 6:30 p.m. at the Grapevine restaurant, Cloverdale.

Participation in the panel discussion will be George Kovatch, Sonoma County planning director; Kenneth Blackman, Santa Rosa planning director, and Robert Byrd, director of the California office of Harstad Associates, Inc., planning consultants. Byrd was formerly a member of the Petaluma planning staff.

Sitka was Alaska's capital until 1906 when it was moved to Juneau.

HITCHHIKERS EVERYWHERE

Popular—But Dangerous

By PATRICK SULLIVAN
(First of two articles)

The time is late afternoon on a typical warm Marin summer day. Two comely teen-age girls walk out of a store in a central county shopping center, turn west and amble off at a slow pace toward home.

Traffic is brisk along the tree-lined avenue with commuters returning from San Francisco. The girls decide it would be easy to thumb a ride.

They stop, swivel their feet in the gravel and wait. Within minutes a small, dusty car pulls over. The girls glance momentarily at the face of the young man driving as they run up, pull open the door and hop in. No words are exchanged — and another hitchhiking episode begins in Marin.

Once the practice almost solely of servicemen, college boys and youngsters going trout fishing, hitchhiking has become, for many young Marin residents, practically the only way to travel. For some, too young to obtain a driver's license or not allowed to use the family car and not enthusiastic about scheduling trips around nearly nonexistent bus service, it becomes the only way.

The trend is drawing mounting concern from law enforcement officials.

They cite incidents of teen-age girls or young women being raped or narrowly escaping from attackers who gave them a ride as well as of motorists being robbed and assaulted by hitchhikers.

The most recent serious incident occurred less than two weeks ago. An 18-year-old Mill Valley girl, hitchhiking on East Blithedale Avenue, had to fight to escape from a man who picked her up in his truck.

The case is only one in a file maintained by deputy Jeanette Prandi of the sheriff's juvenile division which cites no less than 30 incidents dating back to early 1967, when most officials say the craze began to spread.

At least 16 of the cases in the file involved sexual assaults against young women. Seven were actual rape cases. The others included accounts of strong-arm robberies against motorists and one case in which a 14-year-old Larkspur boy, hitchhiking in Greenbrae, was shot at.

Despite published reports of such cases — and a public warning of the dangers of hitchhiking issued last year by the sheriff's office — the phenomenon has continued to grow. It is perhaps at its height now, with the county's thousands of students free for the summer with places to go.

Prime hitchhiking locations dot the county from Sausalito to the Sonoma County line and west to the beaches.

Young hitchhikers are roadside fixtures at Dolan's Corners in Tamalpais Valley, along East Blithedale and Miller avenues in Mill Valley, at the Hub in San Anselmo, all along Sir Francis Drake Boulevard from Highway 101 out through the San Geronimo Valley and in lesser degrees in San Rafael and at myriad other locations.

Young persons interviewed expressed without exception a conviction they could take care of themselves and minimized dangers they might face.

"I don't take every ride — it depends on who is driving," said Linda, a minidressed, blonde 18-year-old student at Sir Francis Drake High School.

Linda, who said she had been hitchhiking around the county for about two years, asked that her real name not be used for fear her parents would become furious if they knew her habit.

"Uusally you can tell not to take a ride when the driver says something like, 'I'm going anywhere you're going, baby,'" she said.

"Or if they say where they are going and you still don't want to get in, you can always say no . . . or that you are going somewhere else," she added.

Cindy, a tanned Sir Francis Drake High School junior, and her friend, Debbie, carrying her two-year-old sister, say they only hitchhike when they are with someone, never alone.

"Sometimes we even hitchhike back from the Fillmore at 3 a.m.," said Debbie. "We got a ride once all the way to Fairfax."

The girls, both 16, do not have driver's licenses. Even if they did they seemed to think their parents would not let them use the car for trips such as one they made last week from their homes to a bakery.

The trustful philosophy of hitchhiking youths is considered naive by Sgt. James G. Dukes of the California Highway Patrol, who regularly sees young persons thumbing rides at the Corte Madera on-ramp to Highway 101.

"I think it is stupid and unethical," he said. "These girls are playing Russian roulette with their lives."

Dukes says he would not hitchhike "even with my gun in my pocket."

The concern of Dukes and others is not unfounded. One 21-year-old Berkeley woman was raped in Marin by a man who picked her up while she was hitchhiking with a San Francisco man. Her companion was forced from the car at gunpoint before the rapist drove off with the woman.

Police and sheriff's worries are not limited to sex crimes generated by the hitchhiking traffic.

"This (hitchhiking) is the way a lot of the kids we arrest for drugs say they were first turned on," said Sgt. Al Howenstein of the San Anselmo police.

Recently, he said, there has also been a rash of complaints from drivers saying they found radios, wallets and purses missing after dropping off hitchhiking youths.

Mrs. Prandi and her husband, Inspector Charles Prandi, estimate they have apprehended at least 50 juvenile runaways during the past year by picking up hitchhikers, even during off-duty hours.

Some came from as far away as Connecticut, New York, South Dakota and Alaska, they said.

The only law in California regarding hitchhiking gives authorities little to work with. Primarily a safety measure, the ordinance prohibits hitchhiking from a roadway. That is all. The law says persons who do so are to be cited.

In Sausalito, police organized a crackdown on illegal hitchhiking in an effort to curb it. The result: scores of fines, but yet another hitchhiker attacked.

(Tomorrow: Why hitchhiking seems here to stay.)

Pier Might Solve Waldo Point Woes

A Waldo Point property owner has asked the county planning commission for a use permit to construct a 610-foot pier to which houseboats could moor at Gate 5.

The action was seen as a step toward possible end to the impasse between the County of Marin and the Waldo Point community over houseboat standards.

T. J. Nelsen, owner of a Sausalito marine salvage company, submitted the plans in behalf of property owner Donlon J. Arques. The planning department said nothing more than a sketch was submitted, but Nelsen reported that more detailed plans would be submitted.

The county has been trying for two years to compel Waldo Point residents to bring their houseboats up to health and building code standards. The issue is now in the courts, with the houseboaters fighting attempts to turn off their electricity and to demolish houseboats which remain on county rights-of-way.

Supervisor Michael Wornum, who represents southern Marin, said he had conferred with Arques about building a pier to which houseboats could moor and connect with legal sewer and electrical outlets. "I think he's genuinely interested," Wornum said.

"I think he's doing it to prevent trouble in case the houseboat owners lose their case, but I think he's also coming around to the point where he'd like to see it developed," said an associate of Arques who did not wish to be identified.

Besides county approval, Arques proposal would require acceptance by the Bay Conservation and Development Commission.

Arques has submitted various development plans for his property during the past decade, according to the planning department, but these have been stymied by BCDC restrictions and work on a Richardson Bay master plan.

Bolinas-Stinson Board Interviews

Bolinas-Stinson School District trustees last night interviewed six applicants for teaching posts but took no action following the closed session meeting, Trustee Jessie Reasoner reported.

Mrs. Reasoner said the board will interview more applicants at 7:30 p.m. tomorrow in closed session and will make final hiring decisions at that time.

Trustees also reviewed a letter of resignation from Erika Zettl, Bolinas School teacher, but delayed accepting the resignation until tomorrow night, Mrs. Reasoner said.

Long Ordeal; Woman Kept From Leap

A woman who said she was afraid of losing her boy friend and job spent more than 17 hours on a foot-wide beam under the Golden Gate Bridge before she was grabbed by bridge workers yesterday morning.

The near-frozen woman, Annette McDonald, 31, of San Francisco, a speech therapist, told the California Highway Patrol she had been under psychiatric care in the past for emotional problems.

Bridge maintenance superintendent Bud Mullins of Corte Madera, one of her rescuers, said she was so stiff with cold after her ordeal that "we had to hold a coffee cup up to her lips so she could drink."

SEEN BY PEDESTRIAN

She was spotted at 7:45 a.m. by a pedestrian, Patrick J. Lacey of Santa Rosa, who told officers he saw her sitting on an outside railing under the bridge deck. When he went to look closer, she crawled back into the network of beams under the deck near the north tower — 210 feet above the water.

Mullins reported he and Buck Haymond of San Francisco, foreman of the ironworkers, "tried to reason with her for a half-hour. Then I ordered the nets moved under her so she would have fallen only 35 feet.

"But she panicked when she saw the net moving in, and tried to jump to another beam, catching it with her hands," Mullins said.

WOMAN GRABBED

Mullins and Haymond grabbed her legs while she was swinging from the beam, and iron workers Robert Lawson of Napa and John Camilleri of San Francisco grabbed her wrists from above.

Painting superintendent Hale Sharrett of Rohnert Park also made a grab for her after a rope was tied around her, and was bitten on the hand. They finally got her back up on the deck at 8:44 a.m. — along with the white straw purse she had clutched during the entire ordeal.

Bridge officers said they saw her walking alone on the bridge at about 3:30 p.m. Monday, and believed her story that she climbed over the east rail at about that hour.

She was taken to San Francisco General Hospital for observation.

Tools Stolen

Sausalito Trustees Question Grand Jury

The Sausalito School District, questioning rumors that it is being investigated by the Marin County Grand Jury, has asked that any such investigation be conducted in "an open and responsible manner."

In a letter to Alfred W. Bowman, foreman of the grand jury, Supt. Phillip W. Schneider noted that rumors of the investigation have persisted for several weeks, and that he was writing at the unanimous request of the school board "in order to put such rumors to rest."

He wrote that if the jury's education committee is investigating the district, the board requests "that such an investigation be done in an open and responsible manner. The board and the administration believe that all of the district's operations are legal and we would welcome the opportunity to cooperate with the grand jury in every way possible."

Verna Vargas, chairman of the education committee, would not confirm or deny the rumor and refused comment on the request, saying any information must come from Bowman. Bowman was unavailable for comment today.

Schneider said yesterday that the rumored investigation centers about the district's hiring of William Bradley (Chaka), who has no California teaching credential. Bradley took over a class in Martin Luther King School after one teacher resigned and another was transferred at his own request after seven weeks on the job.

A Sausalito mother charged that antiwhite teaching by Bradley led to a school ground attack on her daughter by 11 black students in May.

Schneider said County Schools Supt. Virgil A. Hollis had written the grand jury June 2 inviting a meeting with Hollis and Schneider but there has been no reply.

Commission Readies Fairfax Pavilion Rules

A preliminary draft of rules governing use of the Fairfax Pavilion — including limiting attendance to 500 — was approved last night by the city's parks and recreation commission.

The rules will go to City Atty. Wallace S. Myers for review before going to the city council, secretary Eleanora Edgar reported.

The draft had recommended 700 as the maximum attendance figure but the recreation director, the teen club and the commission all agreed on 500, Mrs. Edgar said.

It was attendance — an overflow crowd — which sparked a shouting match and blows at a Memorial Day dance.

The rules also included requiring one police officer per 100 persons, plus a police matron during all dances with costs to be paid by the dance's sponsors.

The commission recommended to the council that the department's teen club be permitted to hold a dance Aug. 15. The proposal has the approval of Police Chief James R. Orr, Mrs. Edgar said.

The commission also discussed forming a youth commission but instead decided to investigate appointing a young person to the parks and recreation commission. Commissioner Conway E. Enscoe was appointed to study the plan.

Kilimanjaro Guides Union

DAR ES SALAAM (AP) — The mountain guides of Tanzania's Kilimanjaro, who make their living assisting tourists climb the 19,340-foot peak of Kibo, have become union-minded.

At present the guides are registered with two hotels which normally cater to climbers. The hotel pays the porters and guides for each five-day trip up and down the mountain.

The guides believe they could improve their conditions — including such fringe benefits as uniforms — if they formed a union. With the aid of Tanzania's National Tourist Board, they intend to start one.

Vacationer Returns To Find Burglary

Ray W. Roland of 50 Meadow Drive, Santa Venetia, reported to the sheriff's department Monday that when he returned from a vacation he discovered that burglars had kicken in the rear door of his house, officers said today.

Missing were $12 in change, a watch and locket, trading stamp books and a shotgun, which he later found outside.

$500,000 Car Death Suit Filed

A suit asking more than $500,000 has been filed in Marin Superior Court by the parents of a 19-year-old Novato girl who died last fall as the result of an accident on Highway 101.

The death of Gail M. Sturgeon, according to the suit filed by Clifford and Doris M. Sturgeon, was due to negligence on the part of other drivers involved in the accident, the state of California, County of Marin, City of San Rafael and Volkswagen dealers.

Miss Sturgeon was injured Oct. 12 in an accident on Puerto Suello Hill near the Marin Civic Center in which nine cars crashed on the rainslick highway.

She was a passenger in a car driven by Susan Rippon, 18, of Novato, which collided with another car which had stopped because of bogged down traffic slowed from a previous wreck.

Two other cars then piled into the crash.

Named in the suit as being negligent are Antonio Cardoza Jr. of Nicasio, and Thomas Hernberger, of Novato, who drove the cars which hit the rear of Miss Rippon's vehicle. Their parents, Antonio R. Cardosa Sr. and Barbara Hernberger, who own the cars are also named.

The driver of the stopped car, Jimmie Blackwood, of Novato is another defendant.

The Sturgeons also claim that the state failed to post signs or markers warning of hazardous road conditions and that the county and city did not clear debris from the earlier wreck.

Volkswagen Werk A. G. and Volkswagen of America Inc. are blamed for providing a defective car to the parents of Miss Rippon.

The Sturgeons ask $500,000 damages in addition to $14,541 for medical and funeral expenses.

Houseboat Resident Sickened By Injection

Ellen Brandstadter, 22, who lives on a houseboat at Waldo Point, was treated Monday at Marin General Hospital for an overdose of drugs, according to hospital officials.

Sheriff's deputies said that she had injected a mixture of paregoric, opium ashes and water into her veins.

Loot Is Scanty

Burglars who entered the Terra Linda Cleaners at 669 Del Ganado Road last weekend only got $1.25 in pennies and some coins from a gum machine, sheriff's officers said today.

TODAY'S EDITORIAL

Good Reason To Insist On Minimum Standards

The importance of complying with county building and safety regulations has been hammered home once again by the series of tragic events which plagued Rancho Olompali north of Novato.

Ever since Donald C. McCoy Jr. and his Chosen Family moved into the historic Burdell Mansion almost two years ago, the ranch has been beset with problems.

Police made several raids on the ranch to confiscate marijuana and round up some users and possessors.

Last Feb. 3, a fire destroyed the 26-room mansion and damaged the old adobe walls dating back to the 1840's.

Then last month came the swimming pool tragedy, resulting in the death of girls aged 2 and 4, who were pulled unconscious from the murky pool on June 23.

IT IS TRUE that similar tragedies might have occurred under the occupancy of a family other than the chosen few. Yet there is little doubt that the relatively unrestricted use of the buildings and dormitory by a transient group of free thinkers contributed to the tragedies.

Statements by the present landlord and his attorney attest to the fact that there was little control over the comings and goings of ranch residents. They blamed the troubles, not on the Chosen Family, but on "undesirables coming on the property and living there." They said tenants were continually bothered by trespassers; yet their compassion would not allow them to kick the transients from "this beautiful piece of land."

AT LEAST one of the little pool victims happened to be on the premises because of this well-intentioned benevolence.

A protective fence around the pool or the stationing of a lifeguard could have prevented the double deaths.

There are other communities in the county where equally well-intentioned people are resisting county regulations as too harsh and repressive.

The same authorities who listed building and safety hazards at Olompali have been warning of electrical and health hazards in the congested houseboat colony at Waldo Point.

Boats served by improper wiring are literally lashed to each other, with narrow planks over water as the only means of access from one boat to the next. Fire on one can trap the exitway for all other boats attached to it.

THE OLOMPALI experience is proof that the county must insist on minimum standards for safety and health, however unpopular such insistence may be. Structures that do not comply must be removed.

Fortunately thus far, no major fires or disasters have occurred in this area. But if a tragedy should strike and lives are lost, the sincerest expressions of benevolence and the purest of motives would be of little comfort to the families of the victims.

Are These Your Kids?

Those who despair of today's young people and the tremendous difference between the generation, might be interested in the following quote:

"Our youth now loves luxury. They have bad manners and contempt for authority. They show disrespect for their elders. Children are now tyrants, not the servants of the household. They contradict their parents, chatter before company, gobble up their food and tyrannize their teachers."

Biddle Comes Up With Proposal To Circumvent Budget Fiasco

By HENRY C. MacARTHUR

SACRAMENTO (CNS) — Now that the legislative hassle over the 1969-70 state budget is settled, and all of the dire consequences predicted as the result of the state having to operate with no money have not come to pass, the question now is how to prevent similar events of like nature from occurring in the future.

It is feared in some quarters, particularly in the fiscal departments of state government, that the Legislature's failure to pass the budget on time, that is before the beginning of the new fiscal year, may result in the setting of a precedent for the future.

In other words, if the Legislature can get away with it once, the solons might be tempted in forthcoming years to use the document for political aggrandizement in the future. Of course, they have done this in the past, almost without cessation, but up until this year, have always come up with some kind of a budget before the deadline.

IN THE newspaper world, he who fails to meet the deadline usually gets fired, unless there is some valid excuse, and it had better be good, to placate the boss. But things are different with the Legislature, and it is likely no one will lose a seat because of the budget fiasco, for which literally, there was no excuse. And besides, the whole thing probably will be forgotten by next election time.

But a few will not forget in the effort to circumvent a future fiasco. One of these is Assemblyman W. Craig Biddle, R-Riverside, who is proposing a constitutional amendment radically changing the basic law of the state with regard to passage of the budget.

Biddle will ask that a proposition be put on the next general election ballot which will require budget passage for the ensuing fiscal year by May 30, each year.

AND SHOULD the Legislature become so wrapped up in partisan politics as to fail to perform its constitutional duty, the current fiscal year budget would become the budget for the ensuing year, less ten per cent. The proposed ten per cent reduction would be an over-all cut, to affect each state agency, department and function of state government.

The proposal has some holes in it that have to be worked out before it can appear on the ballot. Conceivably, the Legislature could refuse to pass a budget for ten consecutive years, and the state would wind up with no money at all when the decade came to an end. But this objection can be corrected by changing language.

ALSO ECONOMY minded legislators could consider the ensuing year budget too big, and refuse to vote for it, thereby working on behalf of economy in state government, rather than using the document for partisan politics. This might be good for the taxpayers, but nevertheless, it could create more troubles by creating a situation in which certain functions of government could not operate on a reduced amount.

But in any event, the Biddle proposal marks the beginning of attempts to halt another such fiasco as the one which held the 1969-70 budget up for three days, uselessly, as nothing was gained by either party through the delay.

Fortunately, the state did not encounter any irreparable damage because of the delay, as there were no major disasters requiring the addition of temporary help, and the delays in Medi-Cal payments were no more than normal. But it could happen again.

Summer Drive To Lower Voting Age

The denial of the right to vote to the 18 to 20-year-old group has persisted as a serious injustice in California. This segment of society is clearly as qualified to vote as middle aged and elderly persons.

Assemblyman John Vasconcellos of Santa Clara County has recognized the imperative need to extend the franchise to this group. He stated last year, "American politics need the transfusion that younger voters would give it. In a time of complexity, uncertainty, and cynicism, we badly need their educated minds, motivations, ingenuity, and idealism. They have much to offer; are we going to deny them the right to contribute?"

A major campaign in California to lower the voting age to 18 is being undertaken this summer by Citizens for Lowering the Voting Age, an organization first established in Los Altos Hills. The statewide campaign must obtain 525,000 valid voters' signatures by September 15, 1969, in order to place a state constitutional amendment lowering the voting age on the November, 1970, election ballot. A strong and sustained effort from progressive and enlightened citizens will be needed if this significant goal is to be attained.

Petitions for voters' signatures and further information can be obtained from the voting age campaign in your county or by writing me at 1611 Spruce Street, Berkeley, 94709.

We Lost War When First Man Died

In rebuttal of Sue Middleton (I-J June 30) and Mr. Burton (I-J July 1).

She speaks of unrest on campus due to the war in Vietnam. Where in hell was she when as many men got killed in Korea in three years that was killed in eight years in Vietnam.

I never mentioned the war but now on the subject. In 1954, President Eisenhower and Vice President Nixon offered to help South Vietnam. In 1959 the first U.S. troops were killed. When the first man was killed, we lost the war. Something was destroyed that could not be brought back. Buildings, ships, cities can all be rebuilt but they can't bring back the first man killed.

My reference to the Catholic schools as an example was not to glorify them but to point out the difference in educational standards that some discipline can instill into young minds to a better understanding of the 3-R's than the public schools.

My letter to the I-J was not printed in its entirety. So you would not grasp my solution and also that I am not a Catholic.

I did not intend that the state support the Catholic schools. I used them as an example of better education in the tender years.

Mr. Burton. It was only juvenile nit picking to single out 17 Catholic students who disagreed to quote the unrest in papal states. It was not religion but political differences in countries that were scourged in war trying to get on their feet. We did not have that here.

Mr. B. T. Rocca Sr. (I-J July 3). I did not write that the Catholic Church rules by fear. You did. My primary motive was to get more discipline in the public schools. You are also nit picking to remark about nine Catholic priests coming to you for help. What if all the demonstrators came to you for help and you helped less than half. Not a very good average, and you would be lost in the mass.

License Houseboats Under State Code

I advocate the licensing of houseboats under the Harbors and Navigation Code, Section 680 and 685 of the Harbors and Watercraft Department, Resources Agency, State of California, for the reason that such houseboats are capable of being used for transportation, usually, in dangerous flotation condition, to and from repair marinas.

They are a hazard to sail and power boats, berthed or nonberthed.

I further suggest that the Supervisors of Marin County appeal for this corrective registration to the Harbors and Watercraft Department. I also suggest that the county set up a moving permit system and collect in the same manner as a business license.

TRY AND STOP ME

By BENNETT CERF

WHEN HEYWOOD BROUN set out to do an interview he didn't let his quarry get off too lightly. One testy, antagonistic senator tried to fob him off with "I have absolutely nothing to say." "Everybody knows that," agreed Broun. "Shall we get started with the interview?"

One of the most unfortunate typographical errors on record was perpetrated by none other than the famous author, Bret Harte. While editing a small Western newspaper in his salad days, his obit for one of the town's most respected ladies concluded, "She was distinguished for her charity." The proofs came back as "distinguished for her chastity." Harte, anxious to go fishing, didn't bother correcting the proof, but put a big question mark in the margin.

The final version of the obit — as printed in the entire edition — read, "Mrs. Gilligan, above all the ladies in this area, was distinguished for her chastity (?)."

Nixon Plants Himself Solidly With Hard-Liners Of The South

WASHINGTON — The famous high-wire balancing act of the great prestidigitator, Richard M. Nixon, is ended. It was an impressive act while it lasted, confusing both friends on the right and doubters on the left.

The Nixon administration on a whole series of moves has come down on the conservative side. The President won the nomination and the election with a Southern strategy. He is following a Southern strategy today, the appeal being to the entrenched hard liners of the South.

These are the men who control the powerful committees in Congress. They can smooth the way for Nixon programs pared to their prejudices. That, and a gain in Republican seats in the House from the South next year, may be the goal of the President as pragmatist.

THE ON-AGAIN, off-again hassle over the appointment of Dr. John M. Knowles to a key position in the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, with the climactic reversal at the end, was not nearly as important as other decisions. This was a technical blunder that made no sense at all.

Extending the school desegregation deadlines in the South and trimming the Voting Rights Act to the pattern of the Southern establishment were clear signals of direction and clearly understood by the defenders of things as they are. HEW Secretary Robert Finch insists he has won and the South, after all, may not get another year of grace. Attorney General John N. Mitchell discovered that Republicans were more indignant over his voting rights "compromise" than were Democrats. But equivocation will not blunt the thrust of these moves.

IN FOREIGN policy the Romanian visit, to say the least, has a curious look.

Given the hard-nosed opposition to any reduction in the barriers around east-west trade, the stop in Bucharest has little substantive meaning. It is as though Premier Alexei Kosygin or President Nikolai Podgorny should make a state visit to Peru, with the Peruvians defying big brother to the north. The whole journey — six countries in 12 days — is the script for a television spectacular that will fade in significance as the image fades from the screen.

Having delayed completion of a negotiating position on the nuclear arms talks with the Soviet Union for six months, the White House has appointed an advisory commission likely to be dominated by hard liners. William J. Chase, chairman of a committee propagandizing for the antiballistic missile, and Paul Nitze, former deputy secretary of defense and a highly articulate advocate of ABM, are conspicuous. They are offset to some degree by Cyrus Vance, James R. Killian and other moderates opposed to ABM. Yet, the net effect of the commission, if it has any effect at all, could be to fence in Director Gerard C. Smith of the Arms Control and Disarmament Agency.

NOW ALL of this may add up to the pragmatist's prescription for winning in the congressional elections next year and consolidating a victory stance for 1972. The country is moving to the right, alienated by both black and white extremists, and nothing can check the trend that Mr. Nixon, as an astute opportunist, knows so well how to exploit.

A comic aspect of this solemn assumption is supplied by certain figures normally identified with the liberal establishment. They have set up their own wailing wall and their loud wails of "all is lost" echo and re-echo. They advise Sen. Edward M. Kennedy to take the vow of silence and keep his head down until after 1972.

INSIDE WASHINGTON

Major Changes Sought In Poverty Program

By ROBERT S. ALLEN and JOHN A. GOLDSMITH

WASHINGTON — It is possible that Congress may continue the scandal-scarred multibillion-dollar anti-poverty program for another year—but definitely not in the form being urged by the administration.

There isn't a chance that will be approved by the House Education and Labor Committee — which has been considering the widely controversial legislation for months.

A strong bloc of Republican and Democratic committeemen are flatly against the administration's proposal to extend the anti-poverty program for two more years — with no changes of any kind in the first year, while a study is being made to decide what should be done the next year.

The bipartisan opponents are insisting that if the program is renewed, it be limited to one year with major changes.

The inner committee outlook is that this is what will be voted.

Significantly indicative of that is the attitude of two influential members of the committee — Rep. Edith Green, Ore., second-ranking Democrat, and William Scherle, Iowa, leading Republican.

Both not only vigorously favor drastic revision of the Economic Opportunity Act, but are forcefully saying so.

WHAT'S WRONG with it? At the root of the committee's pronounced bipartisan aversion to OEO is a five-year accumulation of innumerable scandals, waste, gross mismanagement, excessive costs, interminable bungling and very meager results for the billions expended so far.

Citing this long and dismal record, Rep. Scherle characterized OEO as a "catastrophic flop unequaled by any other government agency in many years."

Two underlying changes advocated by Scherle are:

"Less emphasis on OEO as a social revolutionary agency and more concentration on providing income-producing jobs."

"A more meaningful role for the states in planning and coordinating poverty programs within the states. An overwhelming majority of governors favor that."

It is Scherle's contention that making the states the central agencies responsible for poverty programs would "Noticeably upgrade them."

STRANGE "OUTSIDERS" — Donald Rumsfeld, who gave up a safe House seat recently to become head of OEO, has started off by launching what is described as a "complete review of the war on poverty."

This latest in a long and expensive list of studies would be made, it was announced, by a "Director's Task Force . . . staffed entirely by experts from outside OEO."

But a check of these authorities discloses that while they may be outside now, not long ago they were very much inside. A number of them are former OEO officials, as follows:

Head of the Task Force is Morris Liebman, Chicago attorney who has been chairman of the National Advisory Council on the Economic Opportunity Act the past several years. He was named to that job by former President Lyndon Johnson.

Another top official of the Task Force is James Gibson, former director of the Neighborhood Development Program, an agency of the Washington, D.C., Community Action program financed by OEO. Still another is Robert Levine, until recently assistant OEO director for research, plans and evaluation. Others are David Gottlieb, former associate director of OEO's hotly embattled Job Corps, and Father Geno Baroni, leading militant Catholic priest and anti-poverty crusader.

Living Cost Up 17 Per Cent? Yes, We Include Food Prices

By and large budget sessions by taxing agencies are dreary affairs but they liven up a bit when the hired hands clash with their bosses on salaries and assorted fringe benefits.

Each side starts well armed with statistics to prove its point and then sets out into a series of maneuvers, strategies and concessions something like this:

EMPLOYEE: We also would like an additional paid holiday. Checking other cities we find that we're lower than average.

MAYOR: Well, what cities did you compare with?

EMPLOYEE: Let's see, there's Washington, D. C., where they have 147 paid holidays; Sacramento, where they have 96, and . . .

MAYOR: Wait a minute. We compared with other places. . . . Bodega Bay with 3, Valley Ford with 2 and Olema with none.

EMPLOYEE: But they're not cities.

MAYOR: Okay, let's not quibble. What day do you want off?

EMPLOYEE: How about Saint Christopher's Day?

MAYOR: Now, you know we can't do that. He's not a recognized saint.

EMPLOYEE: All right, we can come back to that. Now how about increasing health benefits to cover the common cold?

MAYOR: I don't think we can do that. Too many people get colds. How about if we gave you coverage for scarlet fever?

EMPLOYEE: I'll have to take that back to the association. I don't have the figures here on how many had scarlet fever last year, and some employees might rather have coverage for scurvy.

MAYOR: Now, let's get down to this cost of living business. You're asking for 17.5 per cent and our figures show the cost of living has gone up 1.7 per cent.

EMPLOYEE: Well, you see, we've included food in ours.

MAYOR: Oh well, if you're going to nitpick about this, we can prove that the cost of 78 rpm records has gone down 20 per cent.

EMPLOYEE: Okay fellows, it looks like time for our song.

ALL EMPLOYEES (SINGING, ROUGHLY, TO THE TUNE OF "BY THE TIME I GET TO PHOENIX"):

BY THE TIME I get to payday — It's all gone.
And the bills I left unpaid
Are on the floor
We laughed when we placed the ad that says we're bankrupt,
Because we've placed that ad, so many times before.

MAYOR: Very good. I see you all have enough spare time to practice singing. Now hear this.

ENTIRE COUNCIL (SINGING ROUGHLY TO THE TUNE OF "LITTLE GREEN APPLES"):

We can't collect any more in taxes
And it don't help to have empty pockets every budget time.
There's no such thing as overtime.
Health and welfare can't be paid,
Until next year.

THE PEOPLE'S SCHOOLS

Minimum Standards For High School Diploma

By BRYCE W. ANDERSON

The California State Board of Education did a remarkable thing last month: It established standards for graduation from high school, to apply throughout the state.

This was remarkable in that it was the first time it had been done, at least within living memory. For many years, the state required that certain subjects be taught at certain grade levels, and beyond that left to each high school district the determination of graduation requirements. The George Miller Jr. Act of 1968 removed most of the state course requirements, but also provided that the state should set minimum standards for award of a high school diploma.

The board, meeting in Sacramento, solemnly resolved that hereafter no one can be graduated from high school in California unless he can demonstrate eighth grade competency in reading and mathematics.

That is not a misprint. It's what the board did. It decreed that hereafter a student must be up to eighth grade levels in these two basic subjects before he can be graduated from the 12th grade.

STATE SUPT. Max Rafferty, who has written several books and dozens of newspaper columns berating the lack of standards in American public education, spelled out what this requirement means. "Students who reach this level of proficiency should be able to read newspapers and keep records for home finances," he said.

He did not particularize. He left it open whether the newspapers he had in mind would be of the class of the New York Times or the Bull River Bugle. The household finances quite obviously would not include working out one's income tax return.

Mitchell L. Voydat, chief of the state education department's bureau of elementary and secondary education, explained why the eighth grade level was chosen as appropriate for 12th grade graduation. "We felt that when children leave high school, the least we can expect is elementary school competency," he said.

LEST THE tough new rule prove too much of a hardship on California high schools, the state-adopted regulations provide an "out."

If it appears the would-be graduate is not going to be able to master the eighth grade mathematics, the state board ruled, he can fulfill the requirement by "satisfactory completion during grades 9-12 of a one-semester course in the subject focusing upon diagnostic and remedial instruction."

(It is too late this year for the Legislature to pass a bill appropriating a special fund for hiring remedial reading and mathematics teachers for high schools, to match the state-supported programs which are designed to correct deficiencies in these subjects in the elementary schools. Such a bill may be expected next session, however.)

ADOPTION OF eighth grade standards for high school graduation naturally raises some questions. The most obvious one is: If eighth grade level is required for graduation from 12th grade, what is required for graduation from eighth grade? There is no answer to this one, since the Miller Act did not provide for setting state standards at that level.

Also unanswered, apparently, must be another obvious question: If the state superintendent and state board feel that eighth grade competence is the most that can be required for a high school diploma, does this mean that less than eighth grade competence has been accepted for graduation from California high school heretofore?

Flood Discussion By Ross Council

Informal discussion of the controversial Corte Madera Creek flood control project will be taken up Thursday by the Ross Town Council.

Discussion is slated for 7:30 p.m., prior to the regular council meeting at eight.

In other matters, councilmen will discuss a hitchhiking ordinance and reintroduce an ordinance amending code provisions governing animal control.

Tiburon Sign Controls Sent To City Council

Tiburon's proposed sign ordinance, three years in the making, has been approved by the Tiburon Planning Commission, according to Planning Director Wayne E. Moody.

The strict ordinance calls for design review of all signs in the city with special attention given to internally illuminated and projecting signs. Rooftop signs are prohibited.

However, variances may be granted for unusual signs which don't meet the regulations, Moody said.

The sign ordinance also prohibits temporary signs pasted inside windows but does allow taped temporary signs, such as for markets, with a general permit.

Political signs no large than 24 by 30 inches may be posted 30 days before an election but must be removed within seven days after the election.

Only one real estate sign, not to exceed three square feet, will be allowed on each parcel of land within the city.

Che commission, meeting Monday night, modified the ordinance to allow only one square foot of sign for each four lineal feet of property frontage, rather than for each two lineal feet of frontage as previously allowed.

The ordinance will be forwarded to the city council for adoption.

The Tiburon Planning Commission also:

REZONING — Approved adjustments in the boundary between the parks and duplex zones between 2236 and 2344 Mar East Street.

MASTER PLAN — Continued discussion of a master plan for property between Main Street and Juanita Lane, proposed by Fred G. Zelinsky, until 8 p.m. tomorrow in city hall.

CONTINUANCES — Continued discussion of an ordinance to allow horses in the city by permit, and amendments to the planned development, design review and planned residential zone ordinances to 8 p.m. Aug. 4.

OFFICERS — Named Alan N. Littman Chairman and Peter MacGowan vice chairman.

Korean Sailors Keep Lost American Plane

OSAKA, Japan (UPI)—The U.S. Navy is trying to buy back a drone reconnaissance plane it lost off Okinawa but so far the South Korean sailing crew that recovered the craft isn't selling.

The Navy first offered $250, then $500 for the plane, but the Korean skipper of the freighter Edelweiss demanded $11,220, which he said was 10 per cent of the aircraft's worth.

O'GAD Festival Boosts Coffers

Operation Give A Damn raised more than $1,000 at its Fourth of July festival in Sausalito, Rev. James Symons said yesterday.

The money will go to O'GAD's companion program, in which older Marin City youths and young men help younger ones on the verge of trouble.

Symons says the program has 10 teams in operation at a cost of $700 a month.

He estimated a thousand people attended the celebration, and said the total income may rise because not all the money from some 20 booths has been turned in yet.

The parade to the festival site, Symons said, included the Redwood High School Band, the mayors of Mill Valley and Sausalito, Chairman Samuel L. Banks Jr. of the Marin City Council, and ex-supervisor Peter Behr, who gave the festival address.

Fighting Pulls Arabs Closer To Red Camp

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Heavy fighting in the Middle East during the past two weeks appeared today to be driving the Arab nations closer to the Soviet bloc. Egypt prepared to establish diplomatic relations with East Germany and Syria renewed its appeal to the Kremlin for more military aid.

Four Arab nations already have recognized the Communist East German regime — Iraq, Syria, the Sudan and southern Yemen. An Arab diplomat in Cairo said the breakdown of Big Four talks on the Middle East spurred Egypt's decision to recognize East Germany.

The diplomat said Egyptian President Gamal Abdel Nasser was particularly angry about what he considered unreasoning and blind support by the United States for Israel and a total lack of sympathy with the Arab cause.

In Bonn, Chancellor Kurt Georg Kiesinger and Foreign Minister Willy Brandt said Soviet influence and pressure was behind Egypt's decision to recognize East Germany. Brandt said the Russians apparently tied an arms deal to the diplomatic decision.

Israel claimed its biggest Middle East victory since the June, 1967 Six-Day War in an aerial battle with Syrian jets Tuesday — seven shot down against no losses. But in Beirut diplomatic sources said the victory would persuade the Soviet Union to provide more planes for Syria.

No major border fighting was reported today, but in Cairo a military spokesman said Egyptian gunners downed an Israeli rescue helicopter, sank one Israeli patrol boat and drove off another boat in the Gulf of Suez yesterday.

Ship Companies Sign Union Pact

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A new three-year contract between eight American flag steamship lines and three ships unions was announced yesterday by the Pacific Maritime Association.

James R. Hammer of the PMA said the contract was reached after two months of negotiations and is retroactive to June 16. The eight companies operate 130 vessels.

The agreement provides increased wages, improved welfare benefits and better vacation allowances to employes in the Sailors' Union of the Pacific, Marine Firemen and Marine Cooks and Stewards.

It provides that on June 16 of each year, the unions will receive approximately 7 per cent of total employment costs to be allocated for wages and overtime.

In addition, a 50 cent per day increase in welfare contributions is to purchase new benefits.

Deputies Blast Sheriff Carberry

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—"Hue and Cry," the magazine of the San Francisco Deputy Sheriffs' Association, contains an open letter accusing Sheriff Mathew Carberry of a "do nothing" administration.

The letter signed by association president John J. Courtney, calls attention to an escape by four men from the county prison near San Bruno after which two of them were charged with murdering an elderly man in Pacifica.

Carberry, denying the assertions, said that Courtney "has a long list of personal grievances and his letter is filled with inaccuracies."

Newton Lawyers Rap Trial Jury's Makeup

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— The manslaughter conviction of Black Panther leader Huey P. Newton for shooting a white policeman should be overturned because only one Negro was on his jury, according to his attorneys.

In a 208-page brief filed yesterday with the U.S. court of appeal, attorneys Charles R. Garry and Fay Stender claimed the list of prospective jurors taken from voting lists "under-represents black people by at least 20 per cent."

Newton, minister of defense and co-founder of the Panthers, was convicted last Sept. 8 of voluntary manslaughter in the street-corner shooting of Oakland policeman John Frey.

The shooting took place Oct. 28, 1967, when Frey stopped the car Newton was driving for a routine check and attempted to arrest him for outstanding parking warrants.

The Black Panther leader was arrested about an hour after the early morning shoot-out when he entered a hospital emergency room for treatment of a bullet wound in the stomach.

Garry and Stender argued the manslaughter conviction should be set aside because the trial jurors were chosen from voter registration lists which "systematically excluded black persons and other minority races."

The attorneys also complained about the "prevalence of white racism in the general community" and "prejudicial publicity disseminated by the City of Oakland and County of Alameda poisoning the atmosphere and prejudicing potential jurors against the defendant."

Mrs. Abigail Adams, wife of the second president, hung clothes out to dry in what is now the East Room of the White House.

U.S. Accuses Drug Makers Of Restraint

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government charged two large drug manufacturers today with conspiring to restrain trade in prescription drug products.

Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell said the civil antitrust suits accused the Ciba Corp. and CPC International Inc. of using restrictive licensing agreements to prevent other companies from obtaining the drugs for marketing purposes.

The complaints, filed in U.S. district court in Newark, N.J., charged Ciba with entering into various patent license agreements involving drugs known as benzothiadiazines, which are used as diuretics and antihypertensives.

Under the arrangements, the suit charged, license holders agreed to sell hydrochlorathiazide of cyclothiazide, principal benzothiadiazines sold in the United States, in dosage form only.

The government complained that this prevented other companies from obtaining the drugs in bulk form for preparation in dosage form and resale under their own labels.

Prison Officer Denies Brutality

OAKLAND (UPI) — The executive officer of the Santa Rita Rehabilitation Center filed a notice of appeal yesterday concerning misconduct charges made against him and nine other officers during the "People's Park" dispute in Berkeley.

The officer, Lt. Howard R. Davis, was the first of the 10 to file an appeal with the Civil Service Commission. Friday is the deadline.

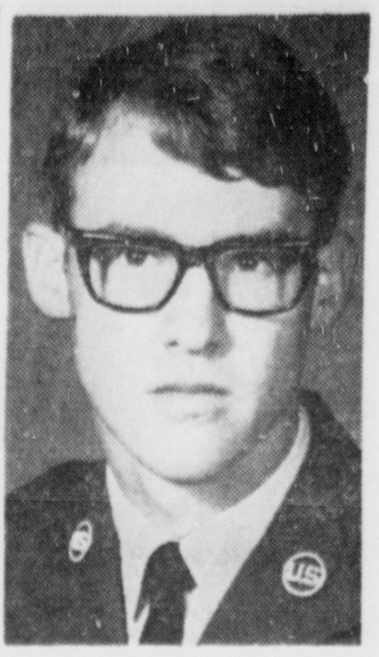
Almeda County Sheriff Frank Madigan cited Davis and the others for allegedly violating department rules in the booking and processing of more than 400 persons arrested May 22.

Madigan recommended that Davis, who was in charge of the booking desk the night of May 22, be demoted to sergeant and suspended for 15 working days when his case is reviewed by the commission.

Innocent Plea To Motorcycle Theft

Rodney J. Arnold, 18, of Novato pleaded innocent in Marin Municipal Court yesterday to a charge of stealing a motorcycle June 30. A preliminary hearing was set for July 17.

Anold was arrested at a construction site in Novato, where officers said they found him with a motorcycle belonging to another person.



AIRMAN OF QUARTER—Airman 1/c Edward R. Clements of the 1902 Communications Squadron at Hamilton Air Force Base, recently was selected as Airman of the Quarter for April through June, for his performance as an air traffic controller in radar approach control at the base. He received a certificate and $50 from the San Rafael Chamber of Commerce.

Bond Foulup Could Delay New School

The Cotati School District board last night learned that illegalities that canceled out an attempt to sell $50,000 in local bonds may add to the delay in construction of the Thomas Page School.

The bond sale was invalidated by the Sonoma County Counsel's office after an error in publication dates was discovered. The bonds had been purchased by the Bank of America at an interest rate of 5 per cent. The bonds will be sold again on July 22 by the board of supervisors.

Supt. Duncan A. Coleman said the lack of funds would hold up the installation of a major water line by the Argonaut Construction Co. He said actual work cannot begin until after the bonds are sold and funds received.

Trustees said the target date for completion of the buildings remains Sept. 15. Originally, it was hoped to have the building finished by late spring.

The Cotati School District board also:

NURSE — Hired Winefred Hogue as the district nurse at a salary of $7,830.

PORTABLE — Approved plans of the Sonoma County Board of Education to locate a portable classroom for trainable mentally retarded students at a district school, possibly Waldo Rohnert School.

MEETING — Decided to move the July 22 meeting up to next Tuesday at 8 p.m. when the preliminary budget will be reviewed.

READING — Approved application for state funds to provide six reading specialist teachers under the Miller-Unruh Act.

Woman Treated For Overdose

A 22-year-old Mill Valley woman was reported in fair condition today at Marin General Hospital where she was taken Sunday unconscious from an overdose of drugs.

Sheriff's deputies said that Cindy Dawn of 339 Northern Avenue was found asleep Sunday afternoon by her roommate, Vicki Leeds. Miss Leeds, according to deputies, said that when she could not awaken her friend she gave her a "shot of cocaine to help her out"

Later, however, Miss Dawn was taken to the hospital.

SEN. JAVITS' SON

New Yorker Learns About Farming Life

BRULE, Neb. (AP) — Far from the hustle of Manhattan, the son of Sen. Jacob K. Javits is spending part of his summer vacation as a Nebraska farmhand and finding it "very rewarding doing an honest day's work."

"You know, all we New Yorkers know about Midwesterners is their politics. And that is usually conservative. But we don't know why," said Joshua Javits, 19, a Yale University junior whose father is New York's senior Republican senator.

"So I'm finding out," young Javits continued, "not as a privileged spectator, but by working and fitting in where I'm needed here on the farms."

The youth's comments came as he perched atop a tractor, straw hat pushed back on his head, in a dusty field on a western Nebraska farm, working as a hired hand of Ed Prochaska and Roger Rankin of Ogallala.

"Believe me, nothing could be more different than what I've been doing," Javits said, squinting into the sun. "Here I'm working 12 hours a day, six days a week, and last summer I worked from 11 to 6 in an air-conditioned museum."

The work ranges from ranching and sheep raising to overseeing irrigated and dry land corn, beets, wheat and alfalfa.

"I wanted to get away from the hustle and bustle of the big city," he said. "I wanted somewhere quiet where I could do some thinking. I also wanted to see Nebraska.

"Everybody talks about the land," he said. "But to me the sky here is just incredible. Back in New York we don't get to see much of it for the buildings.

"I can really appreciate the farmer's problems. It sure takes a lot more brains and perseverance than I thought."

No Relief Seen In Cost Of Food

WASHINGTON (AP) — The rising cost of food, already having a painful impact on the nation's consumer, is still going up and the government says there is no sign of any leveling off.

Agriculture Department economist Stephen J. Hiemstra made the grim assessment after it was disclosed yesterday that wholesale food prices jumped another 1.2 per cent during June.

"There's not anything that we can see to indicate a drop or a leveling off" he said.

Due entirely to the jump in food costs, the government's Wholesale Price Index climbed four-tenths of one per cent in June to 113.2.

Continuing to lead the way in the rising food prices is the cost of meat, particularly beef.

Hiemstra said currently high farm prices for beef, the most popular meat, are expected to continue their momentum for most of the summer at least.

The Labor Department said yesterday wholesale prices for processed meat, poultry and fish jumped 4.5 per cent in June, leading all other food items.

Calling meat a significant factor in consumer food spending, Hiemstra said that it accounts for 25 to 30 per cent of the average grocery bill.

Consumers as an average spend about 17.2 cents of their take-home dollar on food.

Retail meat prices have been rising steadily while livestock prices paid to farmers have gone up over the months. The wholesale price of livestock went up 6 per cent in June, said the Bureau of Labor Statistics.

Despite efforts of the Nixon administration to discourage inflation, the impact of the food price spiral is more than obvious to the consumer.

As an example, the January index for beef and pork was 118.6 which means consumers paid $11.86 for meat which cost $10 in the 1957-59 period upon which the index is based. In May the same meat cost $12.34.

But nearly all food items have risen, Hiemstra said. Dairy products went from $12.27 in January to $12.36 in May; fruits and vegetables from $12.70 to $13; and cereal and bakery products from $12.05 to $12.16.

Eggs, which declined from the consumer price index rate of $11.98 in January to $9.74 in May, went up 6.6 per cent in the latest wholesale price report.

Course Confusion Shows In Probe Of Ship Collision

SUBIC BAY, Philippines (AP) — Statements by a young deck officer of the U.S. destroyer Frank E. Evans indicated today misunderstanding of a crucial message led to the collision with the Australian aircraft carrier Melbourne. Seventy-five American seamen perished.

The unsworn statements, made by Lt. (j.g.) Ronald C. Ramsey just hours after the June 3 collision, were read today before a U.S.-Australian inquiry board studying the cause of the crash. Ramsey, 24, of Long Beach, Calif., was officer of the deck in charge of the Evans at the time of the accident.

Ramsey's statement said he thought the Melbourne messaged a few minutes before the crash that she was taking a course of 160 degrees, which would have been a left turn, and he maneuvered the Evans accordingly.

But the Melbourne's commander, who sent the message, and officers aboard nearby ships who heard it said the message simply stated the carrier's course as 260 degrees.

Ramsey said there was panic and confusion on the bridge of the Evans in the final moments before impact. He said his junior deck officer, Lt. (j.g.) James A. Hopson, who was giving the steering orders, appeared quite panicked. Ramsey added he did not know if the ship's helmsman stayed at the wheel.

His statements indicated the destroyer was not on a wrong basic course before the collision as Hopson had testified.

Hopson, 28, of Kansas City, Kan., told the board the six-ship formation was maneuvering from a basic course of 185 degrees. Other witnesses have said the basic course was 205. Ramsey's account generally agreed with that or varied so slightly that Navy officials said it would not have been crucial.

Governor Says Some Hospital Attacks 'Valid'

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — A Sonoma State Hospital trustee who resigned in protest of Department of Mental Hygiene policies had many "valid" criticisms, Gov. Ronald Reagan said yesterday.

The governor was asked at a news conference if he believed hospital trustees should be given more control.

"I don't know whether that's the answer or not," Reagan said, "but the whole area of mental hygiene must have reform."

Dr. James V. Lowry, mental hygiene director, issued a statement through an official spokesman defending the department against criticism by Thomas J. Farrell, a Republican trustee of Sonoma State who resigned after eight years.

Farrell said he had become "increasingly dissillusioned after Dr. James V. Lowry became state mental hygiene director." He charged the department's bureaucratic system no longer responds to the voice of the people. It dictates without representation."

One-Car Accident Injures Vallejoans

Bobby E. Weir, 32, and his wife, Bobbie A., 29, were reported in satisfactory condition at Petaluma General Hospital. Weir suffered head cuts and his wife a possible broken nose. The California Highway Patrol said the car ran off the roadway and overturned.

Broadcasters Would Phase Out Tobacco

WASHINGTON (AP) — Cigarette commercials on most of the nation's television stations would be phased out over a four-year period under a surprise recommendation by the TV Code Review Board of the National Association of Broadcasters.

The plan, which would eliminate all cigarette commercials from subscribing networks and stations by Sept. 1, 1973, must be approved by the association's TV board of directors before it becomes effective.

In phasing out the commercials in a five-step program, stations and networks would first figure the minutes of such advertising each carried in a base year from July 1, 1968 to July 1, 1969.

Beginning next Jan. 1 each station or network would cut back advertising to 90 per cent of the base period. They would reduce cigarette ads to 75 per cent by Sept. 1, 1970; 50 per cent by Sept. 1, 1971; 25 per cent by Sept. 1, 1972; and be totally eliminated by Sept. 1, 1973.

The phase-out would apply specifically to the three national networks and 64.4 per cent of the nation's 623 commercial stations which subscribe to the NAB television code.

In other action, the review board moved to prohibit cigarette commercials in or adjacent to any program directed primarily at young audiences.

Driver Treated For A Possible Stroke

A Petaluma man was injured yesterday at 9:50 a.m. when he apparently suffered a seizure and struck parked car at 830 Petaluma Boulevard North, Petaluma, according to police.

Abe Feit, 69, of 14 Payran Street, was reported in satisfactory condition at Petaluma General Hospital suffering from a possible stroke. Police said he struck a car owned by Edward Matthias, 404 Cortez Drive, Petaluma.

Big Fuss Erupts In Parliament

LONDON (AP) — Members of Parliament hurled books, paper and invective at each other in the biggest row under the face of Big Ben since the Suez crisis of 1956.

Nearly 500 MPs participated in the uproar last night after the Laborite leader of the House of Commons, Fred Peart, moved to shelve a review of constituency boundaries under which opposition Conservatives had hoped to gain 15 seats in Parliament.

Conservative MP Geoffrey Rippon tore up paper and flung it at Peart, following through with a flying book. Peart winced when the paper hit him, caught the book and, white with anger, hurled it back.

Other Conservatives began chanting "shame, shame" and unleashed a barrage of paper on the Laborites opposite them.

Spaceship Gets Detailed Check

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — Crews of specialists painstakingly inspected the Saturn 5 rocket and Apollo 11 spaceship today with only hours remaining before the start of the countdown for the moon-landing mission launch.

Engineers and technicians prowled the 36-story-tall combination both inside and out, searching for possible flaws that could delay or ruin the $350 million flight.

The lengthy countdown is to start at 8 p.m. (EDT) tomorrow, aiming for a liftoff next Wednesday at 9:32 a.m.

TELEVISION IN REVIEW

Seizure Of Pueblo Documentary Is Set

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Several highly provocative summer documentaries have been announced by the television networks: one about the seizure of the American ship Pueblo, the other concerning the 1968 presidential race.

"Pueblo: A Question of Intelligence" is the title of a one-hour program that will be broadcast on NBC-TV Aug. 25. The network describes it as a "closeup study of a traumatic military event in American life," and makes clear the hour will go well beyond a mere recapitulation of the well-known events.

The broadcast "will attempt to assess the implications (of the Pueblo case) on American society today," says NBC-TV.

The purpose of the program, says the network, is "to examine all factors concerning the seizure of an American ship in neutral waters by an enemy nation, the internment of her crew in that country, and the failure of the military and the intelligence community to foresee what might happen under the existing circumstances—and to act when it did happen."

First, there will be a study of the mission itself. Next, the program will ask: "Who was to blame? . . . was the incident more than just a failure of a man, or a ship, or a service, or a government, or a national policy?"

Finally, the broadcast will explore "the role of the intelligence community, and the methods of gathering of military information . . .

Several weeks after "Pueblo: A Question of Intelligence" is broadcast, another provocative network documentary, "The Making of the President: 1968" will be presented for 90 minutes on CBS-TV. The air date is Sept. 9. it is the third in a series of programs that also covered the 1960 and 1964 presidential campaigns, and once again it reunites historian Theodore H. White with producer Mel Stuart of David Wolper productions.

Says an announcement from CBS News: "The production of the broadcast has been under way since January 1968, beginning with the primary in New Hampshire and running through President Richard M. Nixon's victory election night. There were three film crews in the field acting on directions from White as to what to cover."

Captain Raps Vessel Holding

VANCOUVER, B.C. (UPI)—Coast Guard officials boarded and detained a Canadian fishing vessel for seven hours on June 26 before ordering it from American waters, a Vancouver skipper charged yesterday.

Hugh MacLean, 52, captain of the Shirley Rose, said the unprecedented incident occurred off the Shumagin Islands, located some 300 miles southwest of Kodiak, Alaska.

Capt. MacLean claimed the action was a violation of an unwritten agreement between Canada and the United States which allows fishermen from both nations to fish within three miles of each other's shores.

He admitted his halibut vessel was three miles inside the U.S. 12-mile territorial limit when intercepted by the U.S. Coast Guard Cutter Confidente.

Two Bus Stop Shelters Planned

The Loma Verde Homeowners Association has voted to put up $275 to construct two school bus stop shelters for children during the winter rains, according to President Bruce B. Robinson.

One of these will be constructed in front of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints on Calle Arboleda. The second location will be selected later, he said.

Construction on Lois Curtain Playground Park on the same church site is progressing slowly because it is all being done by volunteers. The completion date has now been moved to August, he said.

Richmond School Tax Hike Passes

RICHMOND (UPI)—Trustees of the Richmond Unified School District were relieved today after voters in the area approved a school tax increase to $1.50 per $100 of assessed evaluation.

Of the district's 73,000 eligible voters, 31,410 turned out yesterday to pass the plan 16,558 to 14,852. A simple majority in the vote was necessary.

After a higher tax increase plan was defeated last month, trustees of the district expressed fears that special programs would have to be stalled and some schools run on a double-session basis.

The Richmond school district, which encompasses the area between Pinole and El Cerrito, defeated a proposal in May which would have placed the school tax at $2.50 per $100 of assessed evaluation.

New Parking Fine Rates In Effect

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — New parking fine rates went into effect yesterday in San Francisco, most of them an increase of $3.

The fine is now $5 for parking in crosswalks, in curbs and safety islands, on a sidewalk and in construction zones designated as no parking areas.

Overtime meter parking and parking in taxi zones still costs $2.

$2.4 Billion Tax Base Is Announced

SAN JOSE (UPI) — Santa Clara County published its new tax assessment roll yesterday, showing a $2.4 billion tax base, highest in the Bay Area.

Assessor Dwight Mathisen said the assessment role showed a value of $2,463,319,080 — a net increase of $185.5 million despite reduction in assessment of business inventories and elimination of household goods under new state law.

Arizona Seeks Judd Delivery

Williams yesterday signed the papers which charge that Mrs. Judd is a fugitive from a murder conviction.

A woman identified as Mrs. Judd has been in custody in Martinez, Calif., since being arrested June 27 at Danville where she was working as a housekeeper. Her fingerprints turned up while detectives were investigating another case.

Stanford Seeks Robot Teacher

STANFORD (AP) — Stanford University has received $300,000 from the National Science Foundation for development of a talking computer that would be able to teach classes.

The computer, he continued, will be programmed to conduct a dialogue with students on a question and answer basis.

Although the goal is a long way away, the computer may be a "teacher in every sense of the word," he declared.

No Neighborhood Restrictions For 100 Novato Low-Rent Units

Novato will have 50 more low-cost leased housing rentals for a total of 100, not limited to districts, the Novato City Council decided last night.

Philip S. Ehrlich Jr., chairman of the Marin County Housing Authority, asked the council — which had previously authorized 50 units, five in each of 10 districts — to permit another 50 units.

He said the housing authority had filled 39 of the first 50 authorized, but that the avialable low rent units were in the older portions of the city and not located according to the district limitations set by the council.

The vote on eliminating the district qualification was 3-2 with Mayor Harley A. McAskill and Councilman M. E. Babe Silva against because they felt that without the district limits, that there would be a concentration of low income families in the older areas of the city.

At Ehrlich's request, the council raised from 10 to 20 per cent the number of apartments which could be leased in one building. It also eliminated all duplexes and triplexes from any restrictions for low rent housing.

Ehrlich also asked that next fall the council consider putting permissive legislation on the ballot next June to authorize the housing authority to develop public housing in Novato. This must be approved by the people before the hossing authority can construct housing within the city, he said.

The Novato City Council Also:

SAN MARIN PARK — Upheld the planning commission's denial of a change in the San Marin master plan to allow multiple dwellings on 3.8 acres of a designated 4.6 acre park adjacent to the junior high school site on San Marin Drive. The request was made by Terrence McGuire and had been denied by the planning commission.

SIMMONS LANE — Awarded a $48,957 contract to Ghilotti Brothers Inc. of San Rafael, lowest of four bidders, for reconstruction of a portion of Simmons Lane from Novato Creek South to Novato Boulevard.

SLURRY SEAL — Awarded a $11,350 contract to Valley Slurry Seal Co. of Sacramento to install a waterproofing seal on certain streets before they are overlaid. This was the lowest of three bids.

OVERLAY — Authroized calling for bids to be opened at 4 p.m. July 21, to resurface with asphalt overlay portions of San Marin Drive, Grant Avenue, Diablo Avenue, San Jose Boulevard, Sunset Parkway and Rowland Boulevard, estimated to cost $181,220.

MONTE MARIA — Approved the 169-70 budget for the Monte Maria Maintenance District for $1,250. The district has $500 in carry over funds, leaving $750 to be raised by taxes this fiscal year.

SENIOR CITIZENS — Approved the annual contract of $2,000 with Marin county for the senior citizens program.

REZONING — Introduced an ordinance rezoning from single family to multiple dwelling three lots on the west side of Third Street between Vallejo and Olive avenues for Robert Hune.

TRAFFIC — Approved making Sutro Avenue a through street from Center Road through Stasia Drive and put a no-parking zone along the west side of Fifth Street from Grant Avenue 270 feet south.

STREETS — Approved adding De Long Avenue, Diablo Avenue, South Novato Boulevard and Novato Boulevard as streets to come under the federal aid to secondary streets. The council also approved making Marin county the coordinating agent for Novato in the bureau of public roads which will give Novato 71 per cent federal money for improving urban traffic conditions on streets approved under the new program.

CONSTRUCTION STANDARDS — Approved uniform construction standards for streets to conform to other cities and Marin county in the construction of streets.

IMPROVEMENT AGREEMENTS — Approved a deferred improvement agreement with Henry W. Silk for the frontage of his lot on Cypress Avenue and with Lloyd Benson for 50 feet along Eucalyptus Avenue.

APPRAISER — Authorized City Mgr. Charles A. Brown to negotiate terms with Charles Semple of San Rafael or another appraiser to get an appraisal on the Rodoni property immediately to the north of the Community House which the council is considering purchasing for a teen center.

TRANSFER — Approved the transfer of $210 from part time salaries for the parks and recreation department to the Community House fund and $1,200 from the nondepartmental fund to the planning department.

PERSONNEL — Accepted the resignation of Robert Lagle from the planning commission because of personal business and appointed Kay England of 25 Hickox Road to replace him after a 10-minute closed meeting. It also appointed James R. Gordon of 415 Country Club Drive and Robert E. Ecklund Jr., of 13 Hayes Street to the plan review committee to fill two vacancies there. It named Planning Commissioner George C. Quesada to the city-county planning council.

ADJOURNED — Adjourned at 11:25 p.m. until 8 a.m. Saturday when it will consider a changed contract with Sedway and Cooke, planning consultants, on the federally assisted downtown study grant.

Skeleton Solves An Old Mystery

SANTA CRUZ (AP) — A skeleton found in a hollow log at Big Basin State Park was identified yesterday as that of a San Francisco medical student who disappeared nine years ago.

Hugh Kilpatric, Santa Cruz County deputy coroner, said a wallet found with the skeleton contained papers belonging to William J. Moger, 28, a San Franciscan who had been a student at the University of California Medical Center.

Moger, who had previously threatened suicide, vanished from his home April 13, 1960. His car was found then near the park but a search by sheriff's deputies and rangers was unsuccessful.

A hiker found the remains on Friday, in a sleeping bag inside the hollow log, in a remote part of the park.

Four Piggy Banks Looted

Four piggy banks in two Fairfax homes have been robbed recently, Fairfax police reported today.

Dale Alstrom of 19 Rocca Drive reported yesterday his home had been entered, possibly through a window, during the July 4 holiday and $30 was missing from two banks.

Carolyn Sue Jean of 14 Sequoia Road reported Monday $18 in cash had been taken from two piggy banks at her home while she was away for the weekend. She reported the burglars had dumped garbage from a sack to the living room rug and apparently used the sack to carry away the banks.

Bando Likes New Role Of A's Team Captain

OAKLAND — Can a chubby little Italian boy from Cleveland find happiness with a lovely heiress from New Jersey while at the same time performing inspirational duties as captain-select of the good guys in the White Shoes?

Probably.

Salvatore Bando, the teddy bearish third baseman of the A's, was blessed before the season with a marriage to a lovely girl from the East and a month ago was named team captain by Manager Henry Bauer. If all these pleasures have his Italian crebellum swimming, there's no outward sign. Marriage, he says, has provided him more rest, which can mean anything. The captaincy, he says, has given him more baseball insight.

Like A Legal Mussolini

"I've matured with this," says Sal, who is only 25 and playing but his second full major league season. "Before Bauer named me captain, I used to do a lot of the same things I'm doing now. Talking to the pitchers when they seemed to be in trouble or hollering it up in the infield.

"Now I feel I have a license to do this 'advising.' You know, now I'm sort of a legal Mussolini."

Because there are older players on the A's than Sal, and because others have been on the club longer there might have been some resentment when Bauer gave Bando the title and the 500 buck bonus that goes with it. Did Sal encounter any?

"If there was any there, nobody said anything," said Sal.

Soured After 1967 Incident

Dick Green was team captain in Kansas City but soured on the job after the "cocktail party in the sky" incident late in the 1967 season. And because, as Sal suggests, the captain should be an infielder, Bando seems a logical choice — for shortstop Bert Campaneris speaks only with his feet, second baseman Green is becalmed and first basemen Danny Carter prefers to concern himself with hitting to the exclusion of most other team issues.

Thus the investiture of Bando. Yet, Sal finds he's had to adopt a toothy-grin image that often is uncomfortable. "I can't let myself get down. If I strike out or hit into a double play, I can't sulk about it. I have a responsibility, I think, to keep everybody else up. Yet I've got to get on the backs of the other guys if they let down — if they don't hustle on a defensive play or if they ignore being called off a fly ball or pop up.

Knows Problems Of Manager

"But the interesting thing to me is the insight I've gained into the manager's problems. I see his job in a new light. Now he takes me into his confidence, he talks to me more." And Sal, in turn, talks to the pitchers more.

"It's an impossibility for a pitcher to know what's going on all the time during a game," he says. "He's so busy thinking about making his pitch that he ignores maybe a double play situation or foreout possibilities, or who's covering on a pickoff. So I just walk over there and give the pitcher friendly reminders."

Friendly? "Well," smiles Sal, "I guess I do enjoy this sort of leadership role. Just like Mussolini . . ."

The next thing Charlie Finley may build in the Coliseum is a balcony on which Bando can watch his troops pass in review.

(Jim Gilmartin is on vacation.)

Raider Rookies Open Grid Camp

SANTA ROSA (UPI) — First year coach John Madden greeted rookie hopefuls today as the Oakland Raiders opened their training camp. Madden and his staff have 11 days in which to get the "rooks" into shape for the "All-Rookie" game against the Dallas Cowboys July 21st at the Oakland Coliseum.

The Raider veterans report to camp Monday.

Hazeltine Hesitant About Reporting

Fourteen years ago, a young first-year San Francisco 49er linebacker named Matt Hazeltine was having trouble making up his mind about staying in professional football.

Today, 14 full seasons later, the former Tamalpais High School star, University of California All-American and 49er senior citizen in terms of service, is having doubts again.

"It's been 14 years," he said yesterday. "It's a great sport. It allows men to be little boys for a long time. But you just can't go on forever."

With the opening of rookie training camp only four days away; Matt isn't sure whether he'll show up. (Veterans are due at the 49ers' Santa Barbara camp July 20.)

'I haven't made up my mind," he said. "I am very unsure.

"I don't know though," he added. "I may change my mind. Maybe this is the year and my eyes will get big again."

Hazeltine, called on to assess the 49ers' chances in the National Football League race this season, explained that his hesitancy about playing is not a matter of any difficulties with the 49er organization. nor a matter of not being in shape.

"I've stayed in good shape," he said. "I run every day. I run in the rain, I run in the wind. You have to do that."

As far as the 49ers chances, Hazeltine was full of his usual optimism.

"It's going to be a hell of a season," he declared. "The 49ers have probably the best passing attack in the league. It might be a year away, but it's a great one. And that's the name of the game. We're looking for a winner.

Elmer Collett, the Tamalpais High School grad and No. 1 offensive left guard for the 49ers, will be playing this year, although the issue was in doubt at one time.

Elmer, an Army Reserve private with the 6253d hospital unit of the Sixth Army, had received orders to report for 120 days of active duty next Monday, which would have all but nixed any football this season.

Collett, however, managed to receive a deferment on grounds that he is head of the household that consists of two young brothers and his mother, and that football is his only livelihood. Collett will also be taking six units of classes at San Francisco State.

The San Francisco State grad, who broke into the 49er starting lineup in his rookie season two years ago, was originally scheduled to report for active duty Nov. 20 but had received no orders until this month.

PRAISES RESERVES

King: Don't Give Up On Giants

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — What happens if you are Giants Manager Clyde King and five of your regulars are out of the lineup while Houston right-hander Larry Dierker hurls a one-hitter for six innings?

The answer is simple. You sit back patiently, watch reserves collect seven of the last nine hits and the Giants overcome their Houston hex with a 7-4 victory over the Astros.

RALLY

"Don't ever give up on this club," warned King after the Giants scored twice in the seventh yesterday and bunched singles in a five-run rally in the eighth. The win ended Houston's seven game victory streak against San Francisco.

This afternoon Giants hurler Bob Bolin, 5-5, faced Houston's Denny Lemaster, 7-8.

"Our guys just don't care who is pitching," added King. "A lot of clubs would relax if they are behind a top pitcher. But these kids don't know how to quit. The reserves are doing quite a job."

IN LINEUP

Mays was back in the lineup when the three-game series ended today.

Despite five walks in the first five innings, Dierker was in command against the second-stringers, allowing only a single to reserve outfielder Dave Marshall in the first six innings. Marshall opened the seventh with his second single and Tito Fuentes and Ron Hunt each belted run-scoring doubles, pulling the Giants to within 3-2.

With one out in the eighth, Bob Burda singled and went to second on Jim Wynn's error. Ken Henderson followed with a run-scoring single, and Marshall collected his third hit, chasing Dierker, 11-6.

Catcher John Stephenson, obtained from the minors Saturday, greeted reliever Fred Gladding with his first major league hit of the season, scoring Henderson.

With two down, Fuentes ripped a run-scoring single and Hunt followed with a two-run single. Hunt, shaking an 0 for 10 slump, was the only Giant regular to figure in the scoring.

Fuentes, who is batting .500 in the four games since replacing Lanier, collected two hits, scored twice, had two RBIs and made a defensive gem prior to Wynn's second homer.

"I know I'm playing for a guy who's doing a great job, so I know I have to play well," said Fuentes.

Athletics In July Swoon?

CHICAGO (AP) — Are the Oakland Athletics suffering a June swoon in July?

The Athletics, who held the American League Western Division lead last month, slipped another half game behind the Minnesota Twins last night as they split a doubleheader with Chicago while the Twins beat Kansas City.

The A's, who have lost five of their last six games and are 3½ behind the Twins, send Chuck Dobson, 9-7, to the mound tonight against Chicago's Billy Wynne, 3-1.

SPLIT

Oakland clipped Chicago 2-1 in yesterday's first game on Jim Hunter's rocky seven-hitter but dropped the nightcap 5-2.

Hunter, gaining his sixth victory against seven losses, was in trouble much of the way in the first contest.

He retired the side in order only in the second, third and ninth innings and needed Dick Green's great catch of a pop fly down the right field line to avert a tie in the eighth.

STRAND SIX

The A's, who left six men stranded in the first four innings, scored in the fifth on Sal Bando's single and got the winning run in the eighth on Green's sacrifice fly.

The White Sox broke open the second game with a four-run sixth inning, highlighted by Tom McCraw's bases-loaded triple.

Bando figured in the A's two runs in the second game. He was hit by a pitch to open the second and eventually scored on Dave Duncan's single, then walked to open the fourth and scored on Ted Kubiak's single.

CATER HURT

The A's took a 2-1 lead into the disastrous sixth, when the White Sox knocked out A's starter Jim Nash.

The first White Sox run came in the third on two singles and a throwing error by Reggie Jackson, who hit teammate Danny Cater in the back of the neck and knocked him out of the game. It was not immediately known whether Cater could play tonight.

BRIT!SH OPEN

Charles Shoots A Sizzling 66

LYTHAM ST. ANNES, England (AP) — Bob Charles, the New Zealand left-hander who won here six years ago, equalled his own course record with a five-under par 66 and seized the early lead over a star-studded field in the first round of the British Open Golf Championship today.

Among the first American finishers the leaders were Orville Moody of Killian, Tex., and Davis Love Jr. of Atlanta, who shot 70s. Neither of the other two, Gardner Dickinson nor Lee Trevino was able to break par. Trevino, of Dallas, finished with a 75, Dickinson, of Palm Beach, Fla., came in at 76.

RAIN

Charles fired his superlative round over a course freshened by overnight rain and, with only a light wind blowing, the field of 130 had virtually ideal conditions.

The New Zealander went out in 31 and came home in 35 over a course lengthened by 200 yards over the one he mastered in 1963. He had a 277 total that year and won the title in a 36-hole playoff with Phil Rodgers of La Jolla, Calif.

He had five birdies on the front nine and three on the back nine, and his round far outstripped the field. The nearest to him at this point were Moody and Love.

LIKES START

Moody, the 35-year-old former army sergeant who won the U.S. Open earlier this year, said after his round:

"That's the way I started out when I won the U.S. Open. If I start out like that then I tend to improve."

Trevino, taking a 41 coming home after opening with a 34, was anything but exuberant about his round. "Thursday," he said, "I'm going to leave my driver in the clubhouse and go out with a three wood and one iron.

"Once you get into the rough here you've got a bogey. That's why I bogeyed so many holes on the last nine."

Dickinson also had trouble on the back nine, taking a 41 after going out in 35. Included in his last nine were two sixes.

Among the other early finishers, Bruce Devlin of Australia shot a 71 and Roberto de Vicenzo of Argentina had a 72.

De Vicenzo, the British Open champ in 1967, had a brilliant 32 going out, but slipped to 40 on the back nine.

Young Red Sox Hurler Triumphs

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

Nagy, Boston's 21-year-old pitching prodigy, ended Lolich's string of nine consecutive victories last night with a 4-1 three-hit triumph over Detroit.

The Red Sox' right-hander also drove in the first two runs of his brief major league career with a second inning single—after Lolich loaded the bases on three straight walks.

NOT OFF HOOK

"He had walked a few, and I didn't want to let him off the hook," Nagy said after reeling off his fifth victory in six decisions. "They never let me off the hook when I walked a few."

Lolich, 11-2, had been beaten just once—by the Red Sox 5-4 on April 25—in 19 previous verdicts, three of them in the 1968 World Series, since last Sept. 9.

The victory sent the Red Sox back into second place in the American League East—one half game ahead of the Tigers—but they lost half a game to Baltimore's runaway Orioles, who swept a twi-night doubleheader from New York 10-3 and 4-1.

Elsewhere, Chicago shackled Oakland slugger Reggie Jackson in a doubleheadersplit with the Athletics, taking the nightcap 5-2 after a 2-1 loss; Clevelandpitched around big Frank Howard and nipped Washington 6-5; Cesar Tovar's first 1969 homer got Minnesota past Kansas City 4-3 and Seattle beat California 3-1 on Don Mincher's three-run blast.

LONE RUN

Nagy was tagged for a first inning double by Tom Tresh, then held the Tigers hitless until the eighth, when Dick McAuliffe singled. A hit batsman, Jim Northrup's double and a ground out produced Detroit's lone run in the ninth.

Lolich walked Tony Conigliaro, George Scott and Russ Gibson in the second before Nagy's single to right put Boston ahead to stay. Gibson's bases-loaded single in the third gave the Red Sox a pair of insurance runs.

Dodgers Take Over Lead From Slumping Braves

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Los Angeles Dodgers ache all over but the Atlanta Braves are the ones feeling the pain.

Led by super-cripple Manny Mota, who banged out eight hits, one short of the major league record for most hits in a doubleheader, the Dodgers swept Atlanta 5-3 and 4-3 last night and took over first place in the National League West from the Braves by one-half game.

After rapping seven singles and a double in 10 at-bats, driving in three runs, scoring twice and stealing a base, Mota limped into the clubhouse, where his left elbow and left knee were packed in ice.

Mota broke the elbow playing winter ball in the Dominican Republic and injured the knee sliding a few days ago. The elbow probably will require post-season surgery, but the injuries didn't stop the 5-foot-11, 168-pound outfielder from raising his average since coming to the Dodgers from Montreal to .412 and his over-all mark to .366.

Elsewhere, the New York Mets rallied to nip Chicago 4-3 and trimmed the Cubs' lead in the East to four games, Cincinnati whipped San Diego 8-2, San Francisco turned back Houston 7-4, St. Louis downed Philadelphia 6-3 and Pittsburgh walloped Montreal 8-2.

Mota's big night began with an infield hit in the first inning of the opener, after Hank Aaron had put the Braves ahead 1-0 with his 23rd home run and 533rd of his career. Willie Davis singled Mota to third and they both scored when Orlando Cepeda threw wildly to second trying to trap Davis in a rundown.

In the third inning, Mota singled and was out trying for a double. In the fourth, he doubled a run home and was out trying for third. In the sixth he got a harmless single and he flied out in the eighth.

Mota singled in the first inning of the second game and stole second, but was stranded. He wasted a single in the third and grounded out in the sixth, one of 14 straight batters retired by Ron Reed.

But Maury Wills broke the spell in the eighth with a two-out triple and Mota singled him in, cutting Atlanta's lead to 2-1. Mota then scored the tying run on singles by Davis and Len Gabrielson.

The Braves went ahead 3-2 in the ninth on Rico Carty's pinch double, but Tom Haller, who homered in the first game, started another rally with a lead-off double in the Dodgers' half. A single by Bill Sudakis knotted the score again and, after a single by Willie Crawford, the Braves elected to walk Wills intentionally and pitch to Mota. He promptly singled, scoring Sudakis with the winning run.

Hunters Get Chance At Special Elk Hunts

A special controlled hunt for tule elk in the Owens Valley has won the conditional approval of the California Fish and Game Commission and special hunts for the Shasta elk herd and antelope have been approved.

The commission, at its June 27 meeting in San Francisco, approved the Owens Valley elk hunt on the condition that the Department of Fish and Game use only DFG personnel in making its August census of the herds and the census discloses at least 300 elk.

THE DEPARTMENT of Fish and Game has recommended a controlled hunt for 85 animals, 34 bulls and 51 cows, under the commission's policy of keeping the herds between 250 and 300 animals to maintain them in healthy condition. The August, 1968, census disclosed 335 animals in the five Owens Valley herds.

Applications for the hunt will be available from DFG offices and license agents about Aut. 1. Deadline for submitting applications will be 5 p.m., Aug. 20, and a statewide public drawing for permits will he held Aug. 25. The fee for successful applicants will be $50. The hunt will be held in three periods during October.

THE SPECIAL Shasta elk hunt will be held Nov. 8-30 with 100 permits for Rocky Mountain elk in the rugged Squaw Creek country around Shasta Lake in Shasta and Siskiyou counties. The herd consists of about 1,000 Rocky Mountain elk which are descendants of 50 elk transplanted to the area from Yellowstone National Park in 1916.

The DFG cautioned hunters that success will be low, probably 10 per cent or less, because of the difficulty of spotting elk in the heavy cover of mixed brush and timber.

APPLICATIONS for the drawing must be submitted to Department of Fish and Game Sacramento headquarters by 5 p.m. Oct. 1. The drawing will be held Oct. 6 and successful applicants will be notified by mail and required to pay a fee of $25.

The state's sixth consecutive special controlled hunt for surplus buck antelope will be held Aug. 23 - Sept. 1 in Modoc, Lassen, and eastern Shasta and Siskiyou counties, and will involve 315 permits costing $15 each.

Applications will be available about the middle of this month, and the deadline for submission is 5 p.m., Tuesday, Aug. 5. A public drawing will be held Aug. 7.

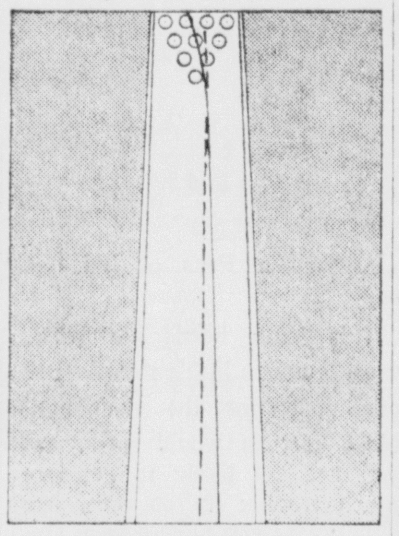
THE STATE Fish and Game Commission has approved 42 special antlerless, either-sex deer hunts with 14,980 permits for the 1969-70 season. The Department of Fish and Game had recommended 50 special hunts with 17,860 permits but six counties vetoed or modified hunts proposed within their boundaries.

Permits for the special hunts will be awarded on the basis of statewide public drawings. Applications for the drawings are included with the regular deer tags. Successful applicants will be required to pay a $5 fee for special hunts except on the Dixie Refuge Hunt in Plumas County, in which hunters will need a permit and a regular "B" buck tag.

APPLICATIONS must include both the name and number of the hunt applied for. The Department of Fish and Game will distribute special hunt maps showing the hunts and listing their names and numbers. Drawing for early hunts will be Tuesday, Aug. 12, with applications due at DFG headquarters in Sacramento by 5 p.m. Aug. 11. Drawing for the late hunts will be Thursday, Aug. 21, with the application deadline 5 p.m. Aug. 19.

BOWLING TIPS

By DON CARTER



On fast lanes, which don't allow the ball to hook normally, don't give the ball an exaggerated lift. Instead, move a few boards to the right of your usual starting point. If that doesn't get the ball up to the pocket, try slowing down a little.

Quite A Start For Golfer

BURLINGTON, Vt. (AP) — It was the first time Dale Dusablon, 18, of Burlington had ever held a golf club.

It was the first hole of the Quarry Hill Golf Course, 115 yards long, and Joseph Boutin, of Essex Junction, Vt., with whom she was playing, told her: "Spread your feet and hit the ball easy."

The ball popped in the air, landed about a foot short of the green and rolled into the cup.

Wolman Not Giving Up

BALTIMORE (AP) — Jerry Wolman asked U.S. District Court today to void its previous approval of Wolman's conditional sale of the Philadelphia Eagles football team to Leonard Tose.

The Silver Springs, Md. financier contended that Tose, a Norristown, Pa., trucking executive, "acted deceitfully and in bad faith" and repudiated "his written and court pledged undertaking to resell the Eagles" to Wolman.

Hyman P. Tatelbaum, Baltimore attorney for Wolman, filed the application for a restraining order against Tose. Joseph O. Kaiser, U.S. referee in bankruptcy, signed an order giving Tose 20 days in which to show cause why the relief should not be granted.

CHAMPS GOLF

'New' Don Lazzarini To Play This Time

(Third in a series on entrants in Sunday's Marin County Golf Tournament of Champions.)

Don Lazzarini will be playing in his third Marin Golf Tournament of Champions Sunday, but there is a big difference in the Meadow Club champ.

He's married, now.

Lazzarini, 28, third in the 1967 tourney and fourth last year, was a bachelor in those two tournaments. Eight months ago the handsome young golfer was wed to Sharon Serafin of Denver, and the couple now make their home at 118 Ross Street in San Rafael.

Don, a two-handicapper, concedes an advantage over the field by playing on his home course. "Anytime you play on your home course there is an advantage," he said, "mostly on the greens."

"I feel I have as good a shot as anybody in the tourney," said the husky belter, "and my game is starting to fall into place."

Lazzarini, a sales representatie with J. H. Baxter Co. of San Mateo, dealing in forest products, feels it will probably take a score of about par to win on the par-71, 6,383-yard Fairfax course.

He won his third straight Meadow Club championship last August, breezing to the title by downing Dr. Marv Gilberg by nine strokes in the 72-hole tourney.

Lazzarini says he doesn't know much about the other golfers in the tourney, as he, Ken Harnquist of San Geronimo National and Mill Valley's Byron Eggleston are the only repeaters in the TOC. "But I heard that Orv Suttles is quite a golfer," he said.

Don, like younger brother Dean, was a football star at Drake High School and made all-county in 1957. "But I wasn't as fast as Dean," laughed Don. (Dean, now 21 and a halfback at University of Pacific, is coholder of the Marin County Athletic League record in the 100-yard dash, 9.8).

Refectory Wins

The Refectory outslugged the Post Office 15-11 in a 16-inch slow pitch division game of the San Rafael Recreation Department Adult Softball League last night at Albert Park.

Black Fin Takes Lead In Transpac

SAN PEDRO -- Black Fin, a 73-foot ketch skippered by Kenneth De Meuse of Hayward, moved ahead of Windward Passage yesterday into the overall lead of the Transpacific Yacht Race to Hawaii.

Windward Passage's owner, Robert F. Johnson, skippered the Ticonderoga to an elapsed time transpacific record of nine days, 13 hours and 51.2 minutes in 1965.

Ronald MacAnnan Jr.'s cutter Pursuit lost her rudder but continued the race with a makeshift steering aparatus.

Mir of Vancouver, B.C., was 30 miles back of the overall leader followed by, in order, Pursuit, Rascal, Kamalii, Concerto and Queen Mab.

HOW TO PLAY WINNING BRIDGE

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

Hold-Up Play Sometimes Worst Possible Of Actions

Every experienced player knows the hold-up play: you refuse to win the first trick or perhaps even the second trick when the opponents lead their best suit against your no-trump contract. Only the expert knows that this useful maneuver is the worst possible move in some hands.

No. 3915 .... July 9, 1969

LOW CARD

West opened the four of spades, and South played dummy's low card, following the "rule" of holding up the ace. East won with the queen of spades and returned his other spade to dummy's ace. West got in with the king of clubs in time to defeat the contract with the rest of his spades. Down one.

South would make his contract if he played the ace of spades at the first trick. He would have to take the club finesse, of course, and West would win with the king.

If West then led a low spade, East would win with the queen but would be unable to continue the suit. Any switch would allow South to take 10 tricks in a hurry. If West led the king of spades instead of continuing with a low spade, he would overtake his partner's queen and could next take the jack, but South's ten would then provide a second stopper.

HOW TO TELL

Do not hold up the ace when you have A-x in one hand opposite four to the ten. Your best chance is to block the suit by playing the ace at once.

In today's hand, for example, South is not worried about a 4-3 break of the seven missing spades since he can afford to lose three spades and one club. He is in danger only if West has led from a five-card suit, which means that East will have only two spades.

REASON FOR KING

If West held five spades headed by K-Q-J he would lead the king. Therefore if East has a doubleton it must be headed by the king, queen or jack; and the play of the ace immediately is sure to block the suit.

DAILY QUESTION

As dealer, you hold:

♠ A 6
♥ J 9 5
♦ K J 8
♣ Q J 10 6 5.

What do you say?

ANSWER: Pass or bid one club.

This is a borderline hand, with 12 points in high cards and one point for the doubleton. Most experts would pass, but you are not likely to get into much trouble if you open one club unless you have a very ambitious partner.

Educational Goals

VIENNA (AP) — Austrian students called for abolishment of academic titles, saying the goal of their studies should not be to gain a title but a qualified education.

ALMANAC

Today is Wednesday, July 9, the 190th day of 1969 with 175 to follow.

The moon is between its last quarter and new phase. The morning stars are Mercury, Venus and Saturn. The evening stars are Mars and Jupiter.

On this day in history:

In 1850 President Zachary Taylor died of a typhus infection after serving one year and four months. He was succeeded the next day by Vice President Millard Fillmore.

In 1900 Queen Victoria signed an act by which the individual state of Australia agreed to join into a federal commonwealth.

In 1943 American, Canadian and British forces invaded Sicily.

In 1960 Russian Premier Nikita Khrushchev threatened the United States with Soviet rockets if Washington attempted to oust the Castro Communist regime in Cuba.

A thought for the day: Friedrich Wilhelm Nietzsche said: "Distrust all in whom the impulse to punish is powerful."

Inspection Law Clears The Roads

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP) — The state estimates that its new compulsory vehicle inspection law has contributed to removal of more than 200,000 old cars and trucks from the road last year.

A survey indicated many car owners and dealers decided to junk their $100 automobiles rather than bear the expense of repairs to pass the annual test.

INVESTING

New Look At Hospital Bonds, Value

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. What types of investment are school and hospital bonds? — B. J.

A. I assume that you have in mind public schools and community hospitals. The latter may be operated by the community itself or by independent medical groups, often affiliated with religious organizations. When public school districts need to finance new buildings or provide improvements for existing plant, they issue bonds for public sale which are underwritten by investment houses and distributed through the market for municipals or tax-exempts.

Interest income from these bonds is exempt from federal income tax. Cities and towns float their bonds with interest exempt from federal levy. A single bond issue may cover a group of expenditures anticipated by a community.

If a publicly supported hospital is included, or if one is the sole beneficiary of a community bond issue, the interest received from these bonds would also qualify as tax-exempt. Interest from bonds offered by hospitals independently sponsored does not qualify as tax-exempt and consequently such issues are likely to provide a better than average yield.

Some new municipal offerings are meeting noticeable sales resistance because their interest return is limited by the issuing authority. Municipals generally attract large-scale investors looking for tax relief and hence owners of these bonds in smaller quantity may find that their holdings are not readily marketed when they want to sell them.

I would also add this word of caution about hospital bonds. After the initial sale the holder may find it difficult to arrange either a resale or a redemption, should cash suddenly be needed.

Gas In Adriatic

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Weststates Petroleum Co. is now testing the first gas well drilled in its Adriatic Sea development. The well, Riccione Mare 3, was drilled to a depth of 10,893 feet and productive gas sands were encountered at depths between 4,300 and 7,300 feet.

Jet Commuter Fare Hikes Slated Aug. 1

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Jet commuter fares in California will be increased Aug. 1 under a state Public Utilities Commission order announced yesterday.

The increases, ranging from 4 to 14.3 per cent, were given to Pacific Southwest Airlines, United Air Lines and Western Air Lines.

Air California had been granted interim increases earlier this year and put some into effect at that time.

Fares between Los Angeles and the San Francisco Bay Area will increase 7.6 per cent from $13.50 to $14.52, exclusive of tax.

The San Diego - San Francisco fare will go up 5.9 per cent from $19.85 to $20.95.

The PUC said fares will still be well below those for similar services elsewhere in the country.

It described PSA as the "rate making carrier," saying no other carrier can compete effectively at higher fares.

The PUC said airlines have been faced with substantial cost increases in the past few years. It estimated PSA's rate of return will be 9.35 per cent as compared to the current 5.6 per cent.

Wall Street Depressed Again By Bad Outlook

NEW YORK (UPI)—A general uneasiness over recent domestic and foreign developments kept the New York Stock Exchange a sellers market today, driving prices down for the third session in a row in fairly light trading.

The UPI market indicator was off on 1,530 issues traded. Declines held a nearly three to one edge over advances, 952 to 323.

There was little incentive for buying and prices fell for lack of support, rather than any real selling pressure. The lethargy and caution stemmed in part from concern over the fate of the income tax surcharge. The Senate Finance Committee is balking at an extension of the surcharge until tax reforms can be considered along with it. It now appears that the bill to extend the tax will not come to the Senate floor for a vote until late summer or early fall.

The continuing crisis in the Middle East also was causing some investors to react cautiously. Many apparently have decided to remain on the sidelines until the domestic and international pictures are clarified.

Giant Pan Am Food Center Plans Backed

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Plans of Pan American World Airways to build the largest food preparation center in the west at San Francisco International Airport were approved yesterday by the San Francisco Public Utilities Commission.

The plans call for a $4 million structure in which 340 persons will be employed. The building will be one of a series Pan American is constructing in anticipation of expanded Pacific area traffic which will be generated by jumbo jets.

Texas Land Sold

DALLAS (UPI)—Texas Pacific Land Trust has sold its surface estate in a square mile section of land in Culberson County, Tex., 20 miles northwest of Duval Sulphur Co.'s sulphur plant. The sale is subject to retained mineral royalty interest and an agreement with Texaco, Inc., concerning the mineral rights.

Crocker National Reports Gains Over Year Ago

SAN FRANCISCO (BW) — Crocker National Corp. has reported that a sharp increase in second quarter net operating earnings brought earnings for the first six months of 1969 to a level 12.9 per cent above the 1968 first half.

Net operating earnings for the six months ended June 30 were $15,609,707, equal to $1.51 a share, compared to $13,823,078, or $1.34 a share, for the corresponding period of 1968.

In the second quarter of this year, net operating earnings were equal to 84 cents a share, vs. 71 cents a share in the 1968 second quarter.

Emmett G. Solomon, board chairman of both Crocker National Corp. and Crocker-Citizens Bank, said the bank's deposits and loans reached new highs on June 30, while the corporation's total resources crossed the $5 billion mark for the first time.

Deposits on June 30 were $4,254,835,305, as against $3,746,085,712 a year ago. Total loans were $2,965,762,281 vs. $2,577,282,304 on June 30, 1968.

Total resources were $5,009,490,927, compared with $4,296,053,904 a year earlier.

MOUNT WASHINGTON

Mountain Rail 100 Years Old

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

On July 3, 1869 the world's first mountain-climbing railway engine chugged triumphantly to the summit of Mount Washington, N. H.

It was a feat regarded then as more impossible than a landing on the moon appeared to be 100 years later.

In fact, when builder Sylvester Marsh sought a charter from the New Hampshire legislature in 1858, he was told scoffingly, "Might as well try to build a railroad to the moon."

But Marsh got his charter and the highest mountain in New England — 6,293 feet above sea level — got its railroad. The Mount Washington Cog Railway is celebrating its 100th anniversary with special events throughout the summer, and every 100th passenger will ride free.

The observance started last week with fireworks and a centennial dinner at Crawford House in Crawford Notch, N.H., where President Ulysses S. Grant, his wife and son stayed when they rode the railway in August 1869.

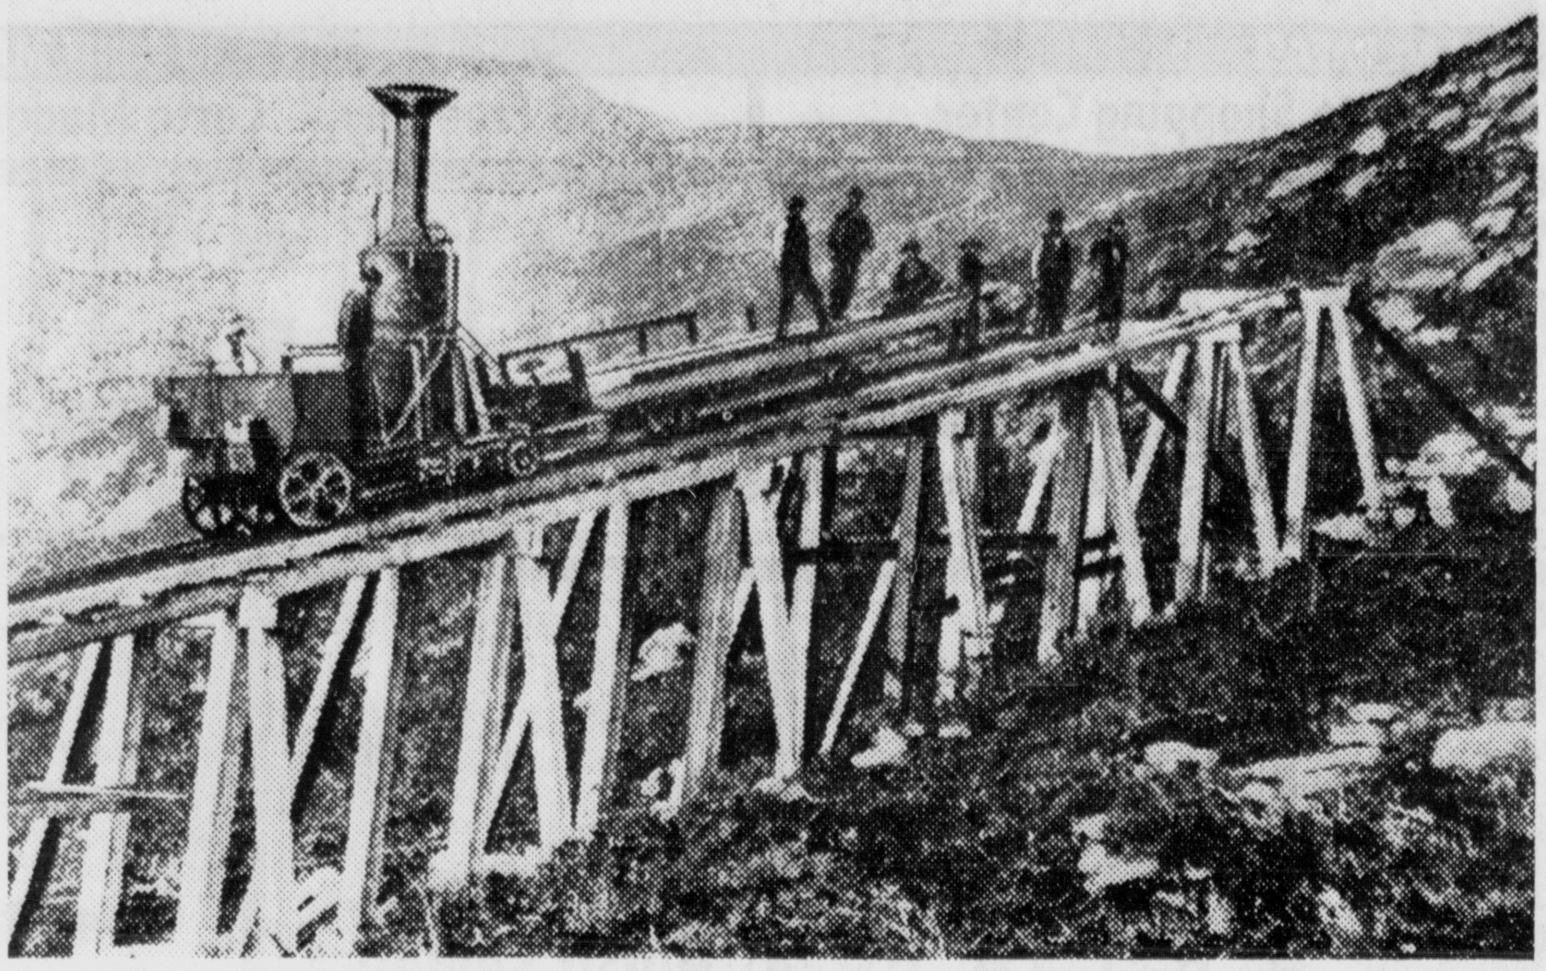
A new locomotive, the first since 1908, is being built to mark the centennial. It is called the Colonel Teague, for Col. Arthur S. Teague, president and manager from 1951 until his death in 1967, when his widow, Ellen, succeeded him.

The railway has come a long way since that first year when it carried only some 5,000 passengers. As many as 53,000 passengers now ride during a season, from the middle of June to the middle of October. But the way they are propelled up the steep mountainside remains unchanged. There's a cogged rail along the center of the track into which fit the heavy-toothed wheels under the engine.

The Mount Washington Steam Railway Co. was organized in 1865 with Marsh, a retired meat packer, as president and construction manager. Marsh had devised this easier and safer way to the mountaintop after hiking there in 1852 and losing his way in a severe storm.

But construction of the three and one-half-mile-long road, with an average grade of 25 per cent, was far from simple. Materials, equipment and supplies had to be hauled by oxen 25 miles from the nearest railroad station in Littleton, N.H. Because the road was being built on a continuous trestle, logs had to be hand-hewn into timbers, on which the rails were to be laid. It was not until 1867 that a sawmill was set up.

Once completed the railroad faced another problem that it still contends with today — wind. Sometimes the wind is so strong that firemen fight to keep gusts from blowing coal off their shovels.



CLIMBING TO THE CLOUDS—Crew building the Mount Washington Cog Railway complete the great trestle called Jacob's Ladder with steepest grade of 37.4 per cent early in 1868. The engine is Old Peppersass, first of the line's locomotives.

In 1934 — before the instrument was blown away — the world's highest wind velocity — 231 miles an hour — was recorded on the summit by the Mount Washington Observatory. To this day trains stop running when the wind reaches 70 miles an hour.

The first locomotive, with its funny little upright boiler, was officially called hero, but nicknamed Peppersass because it resembled a pepper-sauce bottle.

Peppersass served until 1878 when it was retired and exhibited in fairs around the country. But in 1929, as a publicity stunt, the old engine set out on a last — and as it turned out, tragic climb. Half a mile from the summit a tooth broke in a gear wheel and the engine fell to the rocks below. The crew jumped out but a photographer was killed.

The engine parts, salvaged from the ravine, were reassembled and Old Peppersass is now on display outside the railroad's base station.

Other accidents have followed: some minor, some expensive to repair, and one costly in human lives.

On Sept. 21, 1938, a hurricane destroyed Jacob's Ladder, the railway's steepest part where the grade is 37.4 per cent. It was rebuilt in time for the next spring's opening at a cost of $60,000. The original over-all cost of the railroad and equipment had only been $100,000.

The railway's operations are inspected for safety by the New Hampshire Public Utilities Commission and the train runs at a speed of four miles an hour for complete safety on the grade.

The unique engines are taken apart and gone over carefully every fall, the track is inspected regularly and the locomotive has four braking systems, any one of which can stop the train. The coach, which is always above the locomotive, has two sets of brakes of its own.

Despite all these precautions tragedy struck on Sept. 17, 1967. A locomotive descending the mountain and its aluminum passenger car were derailed at the Skyline Switch and both crashed into the rugged terrain, killing eight. After this — the railroad's first passenger fatalities in 98 years of operation — further safety measures were added.

Soul Singer Says He's Not Father

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Soul singer James Brown's attorney says the star had only been interviewed by Mary Florence Brown, but had not fathered the woman's child.

Miss Brown, who once headed the singer's Sacramento fan club, filed suit in Sacramento Superior Court Monday charging Brown fathered her 10-month-old child.

"She knows it's completely untrue," said attorney Donald Worden. He said yesterday the suit was prompted by people who want to destroy the singer's image.

Worden said Miss Brown had interviewed the singer but only in the company of other people. Her suit says the two met in Los Angeles, Oakland and San Francisco.

Judge Gordon D. Schaber has scheduled a hearing July 28 to determine whether Brown should pay temporary support and attorney's fees.
